

JUNIORS MUST POSE

Photographing for Oregana to Begin This Week.

Plans for Year Book Underway; Military Department to Be Added This Year.

It is now time for students to have their pictures taken for the Oregana, and Helen Brenton, editor, asks that this be done before the Christmas holidays so that they may be carefully checked to avoid omissions. Since the school year is now divided into three terms it is necessary that pictures for the year-book be attended to at once. Several photographers are offering special Christmas rates now.

Schedule Made for Juniors.
Every member of the Junior class is in addition expected to appear for a special picture to be taken in the vicinity of the library some time this week. Arrangements have been made with Stanley Atkinson, who represents a kodak shop down town, to take these individual junior pictures at a cost of twenty cents each. In order to systematize the taking of these pictures, juniors are requested to observe the following schedule: those whose names fall between A and E should appear at the library Wednesday morning between 9 and 12; those between E and L, during the afternoon from 2 till 4; those between L and S are due Thursday afternoon from 2 till 4; and the rest will be taken care of between 2 and 4 on Friday afternoon.

Something new in the line of pictures is promised by the editor for this year, and there will also be a new section to be called the military department.

Since the Oregana is a student body publication published under the direction of the junior class, anyone who has an idea for the book is asked to contribute it. All sorts of interesting snapshots of student activities will have a chance at publication.

A partial staff has met to plan for the book, but the names of the complete staff are not yet to be published. Due to a very large enlistment from the staff chosen last spring, there will be some vacancies to be filled from outside the junior class.

Informal Dances

the doing away with formal dances. "This should extend only to the class formals and the campus formals," said Dundore. "As far as the separate organizations are concerned I would advocate leaving it to their own judgment, always with the feeling that a decrease in the number is advisable.

"The fact that the college formal is a very much misunderstood affair and suggests enormous expense, makes its abolition advisable from the standpoint of the University's reputation through the state."

Infrequent Formals Urged
Many of the women of the University are equally as loud in their recommendation that the formals be either discontinued or at least given infrequently. "While we can't quit all entertainment," said Tula Kinsley, "I think that we should do everything to cut down expenses. While in reality there may not be much difference between our formal and informal class dances, still a formal dance sounds worse to the people outside of the University and some girls might not go to a dance if they heard that it was going to be formal, while they would otherwise."

Emma Wootton believes that all of the dances should be informal. "The money is needed in so many ways," she said, "and we can cut down on the decorations and the eats."

Pearl Craine favors informal dances. "But," said Miss Craine, "I don't think that people should give informal dances that require more work and trouble than formal ones."

Favor Class Formals
"I most certainly think the dances should be informal," said Roberta Schuebel. "We are starting out right by having the junior Homecoming dance informal."

Helen Delano believes that the dances should be very informal and Miriam Page is in favor of having all the dances informal, except the four class dances. Elsie Fitzmaurice is of the same opinion.

Many fraternities and sororities have practically agreed to not give any formal dances this year, although action has not yet been taken by all of them.

"I am firmly against formals of any kind on the campus," said Fred Packwood. Ray Couch, while not strictly opposed to formals, feels that the reputation of the school demands that the student body make the sacrifice this year if possible.

Thanksgiving Game

football game between the two schools should be played on Multnomah field Thanksgiving day, instead of at Eugene. They signed an agreement which called for a 50-50 division of the spoils.

In making her latest brew Dame Rumor took the above ingredients and added to them the report that the Corvallis authorities claim the document signed last December in Portland was to be a supplement to the original agreement calling for $2700; that they were to have option of taking $2700 or a choice of a 50-50 division of the receipts, and that as it now looks that the Oregon-Corvallis game at Portland might not be such a money-making proposition as it has been in the past years, the O. A. C. officials want their original document calling for a $2700 guarantee to replace the contract signed in December.

Misunderstanding Not Serious
According to local athletic authorities, Dame Rumor's latest brew is one of the biggest unfounded concoctions which she has ever made. That there is a misunderstanding growing out of the contract signed last December, which provided that the annual classic should be staged in Portland is admitted, but that it is sufficiently serious to endanger the playing of the game is denied. In fact, until a few days ago it was supposed by University authorities that all preliminary arrangements for the game were settled in the agreement drawn up in Portland last year.

So far the University authorities have taken no official action in regard to the matter and are awaiting further word from the O. A. C. officials. The whole matter has been placed before the athletic council of the University and the board of control of the college.

HOUSE GRADES INCORRECT

List Given to Morning Paper Found to Have Omitted Honor Students.

Due to a mixup in computing the grades and the omitting of the marks of the honor students, the list of house averages which appeared in the morning papers are incorrect. Registrar A. R. Tiffany discovered the error too late to stop the stories from going in.

The office is working to have the list corrected and it will probably be ready for Thursday's Emerald.

SOCCER MEN GET BUSY

Eleven Preparing to Even Up for Defeat at O. A. C.

Team Handicapped at Corvallis by Unfamiliar Wet Field and Heavy Ball.

Determined to reverse the count when they play the Aggies next Saturday, the University soccer eleven settled down last night to a steady, hard practice in an effort to smooth out the rough edges that showed up in the game at Corvallis.

The Oregon players attribute their defeat mainly to the fact that they had to play on a soggy, slippery field for the first time this year. The ball absorbed so much water that along toward the end of the game, not a kick went more than 20 yards.

O. A. C. Gets Jump
O. A. C. managed to get the jump on the locals and put through two goals before the lemon-yellow were thoroughly warmed up. Oddly enough, two ex-Oregon men were responsible. Hugh Ford caught the leather just right on a dribble from the center forward and sent the ball zipping through the posts at a mile-a-minute clip.

The second goal came on a penalty on a foul by one of the halfbacks. Neil Ford, ex-Oregon left wing, made the point. Although the Varsity had chance after chance to even the count in the second half, the forwards simply could not find the goal posts.

Kelleher Fights Hard
The whole Oregon team played good ball, but it was not in the deck for Oregon to win. Kelleher, the scrappy Irishman, who played inside right, was the star on the forward line, while none of the backs showed up to particular advantage.

Before going on the field, Alex Pearson, three-year man on the team, was elected captain. Pearson plays center half.

The game Saturday is scheduled for 10:00 a. m., on the girls' hockey field.
