

VARSITY WOMEN TO MAKE SERVICE FLAG

Women Back Project to Have Big Starry Banner in Front of Administration Building.

"We Owe It to the Boys" Is Sentiment of University. Sewing to Be at Bungalow

What do you think of a service flag, 10 by 18 feet, displaying 350 to 400 stars, hanging in front of the marble pillars at the entrance of the administration building. This is what the University wants, and that is what it will have, if the women of the University will get together and make it.

Representative University women feel that Oregon should have such a flag, and are willing to give as much of their time as possible toward making it.

Helene Delano, president of woman's league, is enthusiastic over the prospect of having the flag.

"I certainly feel that we owe it to the boys," she said yesterday, "and I shall do all I can through woman's league, to have the girls get to work on it. Of course, I feel that it is really up to the girls themselves, but I think they will be able to take enough time to make it."

Dean Fox Favors Plan

Dean Elizabeth Fox also favors the making of the flag. "Red Cross work is imperative," she said, "but if the girls can make the flag in the bungalow, they may be able to sew on it for an hour, when they would not have time to go to Red Cross headquarters down town." Dean Fox thinks it will be splendid to have the flag so that people all over the state may see just how many Oregon men have answered the call to the colors.

Ruth Wilson, president of Y. W. C. A., after a discussion of the question in Y. W. cabinet, reported that the girls felt that the making of the flag was a way of showing their patriotism, and the girls were agreed that they would do all they could toward making it.

Girls Should "Make Time"

Emma Wootton, secretary of the student council, said that everyone is busy, but that the girls ought to be able to make time. "The girls will be doing it directly for the boys they know," she said, "and we will be showing the people of the state just how loyal our boys are."

Helen Brenton said that by making the flag, we show in a concrete way our pride in the boys, who have entered the service. "I want to give time myself to work on the flag, and I think the other girls will, too," she said.

No definite plans have been made as to the purchasing of materials. "We want first to get an expression from the women of the University," said Karl Onthank, secretary to President Campbell; "when the women are ready to make it, the University will see that the material is provided, in some way." Mr. Onthank thinks that perhaps the stars may be purchased cut out, ready to sew on, which will save much time.

Sewing Machine Needed
The flag will probably be made in the Y. W. C. A. bungalow, if someone will lend a sewing machine.

The exact number of Oregon men who have answered the call to the colors is not known, and space will be left on the flag where a star may be added each time it is learned that another Oregon man has entered the service.

TO MEET MAJOR WASHBURN

H. B. Miller of Commerce School On Entertainment Committee.

H. B. Miller, director of the school of commerce, is detained in Portland this week, as he is a member of the chamber of commerce committee, for the entertainment of Major Stanley Washburn, the representative of the Russian-American chamber of commerce who is touring the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Miller will serve in a similar capacity for the imperial Japanese commission, in Portland this week. His long residence in the Orient, makes Mr. Miller particularly familiar with conditions in the Far East.

Efforts were made to bring Major Washburn here for an address before the student body, but his schedule would not permit him to stop in Eugene. He is lecturing on the trade possibilities of the United States in Russia, following the war.

thus far. The Chemawa team held them to a scoreless tie, the Willamette University eleven, of Salem, finished with the short end of a 14 to 0 score, and "Tick" Malarkey's Columbia Prep products, were downed 24 to 0. So far no opposing eleven has been able to register a count against the frosh.

Tie Count Last Year

Last year the yearly battle ended in a tie count. The freshmen, five of whom are now playing on the Varsity team, went into the game with the dope highly in favor of the Corvallis squad. Seven of the members of that team, including the much-touted "Tuffy" Conn, who made such a name for himself during his one year on the coast, had played with the regulars, and it was expected that they would squelch the freshmen. But a great bit of the old "Oregon Fight," which has won so many contests for the lemon-yellow, sprang forth, and as a result, the playing was in the Aggie territory during the entire struggle.

Rooters to Go Along

A great number of rooters will accompany the squad to Corvallis on Saturday. Coach Walker is hopeful that his proteges will come out on top. Every evening this week, he has held a strenuous practice, and expects to have his warriors in good condition for the fray on the Corvallis campus.

Masterson will be unable to enter for the freshmen, because of injuries sustained in the Willamette game. Outside of this one man, however, every regular will be started.

SEEKS TO DIM GLORY OF OREGON'S VICTORY

Oregon's victory Saturday, which possibly have escaped the eye of the casual fan, and which Mr. Bezdek probably will have pointed out to him a time or two before he shouts too loudly of the 28 to 0 beating which the Bears handed the Washington team, three weeks before his proteges white-washed the Californians.

"Lovers" Lane, California's great guard and kicker, has been drafted and is now turning out with the Ninety-first division team at Camp Lewis. He was one of the stars of the Washington-California contest, and his absence from the team is held directly responsible for the 14-13 defeat, which the Native Sons met at the hands of the St. Mary's college team a week ago, as it is felt sure that Lane could have at least turned defeat into a tie with his wonderful right toe, when it came time to kick the goal, after his former teammates had smashed over the St. Mary's goal, for the second touchdown.

Lane Goal Kicker
In the Washington-California game Lane kicked three goals out of four chances offered, and he has kept up this record very consistently since the start of the season. Richardson, another star punter, has been called to a San Pedro hospital training camp, leaving college immediately after he had helped beat the purple and gold eleven. The third, and probably most important reason why Bezdek will reconsider claiming any superior grid honors over the Washington team is Hayes, California's great halfback, who deserted his alma mater for the olive drab and spiral leggings with Lane and Richardson.

Had California been able to send this trio with the rest of the team, which met Washington, it is safe to say that a totally different story would be in the telling today, and Hugo would be back at his old waiting game, watching for a chance to "slip something over" on his old enemies on the University of Washington campus.

California was heavier Saturday than the boys from Eugene, but the loss of her three mainstays shook her as nothing else could have done, and Oregon was able to work the forward passing game successfully, while the visitors had lost the power which they had formerly used in battering down any resistance offered by an opposing team. That Oregon would have scored in any event in the early stages of the game, while her players were still fresh, is not doubted, but a white-wash, even a victory, would have been out of the question three weeks ago.

Game Canceled
The unfortunate part of the whole situation is the impossibility of really testing the merits of the claims of both teams. That Washington is not of championship caliber is freely granted by any one who has followed the team through the season, but a comparison between the Washington-California scores leads nowhere, and Bezdek probably will be the only man on the Coast who will be able to find real consolation in it.

A game was scheduled between Oregon and Washington, but the schedules of both were found to be so heavy that it was canceled. This probably was a severe blow to the Webfoot coach, because nothing could have furnished him with half so much delight as the chance to trounce Washington, while his arch enemy, Gil Dobie, had his back turned—and all of this despite the fact that all but one of the purple and gold letter men are in the national service.

COMMUNICATION

Editor Emerald:

I have just learned that students are to be given a special rate of 75 cents for the four remaining numbers of the Lyceum (formerly Buccel) course. This is so remarkable an offer and three of the events with which I am familiar are so worth while, that I feel it my duty to tell the students. I do not doubt the quality of the fourth number, but I do not personally know it. But to hear Francis Neilson, for several years a liberal in parliament, a well-known author, playwright, actor; Arthur Evans, nephew of Lloyd George and a noted student of political and economic questions and a famous English athlete; and James Burns, "Burns of the Mountains," whose story every student ought to know—to hear any one of these is worth more than the cost of hearing all, and I hope many students may be able to go.

Respectfully,
—ALLEN EATON.
