JOHN BECKETT IS KING FOR A DAY

Modest Marine Chief Is Hero of Game at Pasadena.

Pays Big Tribute to Ability of Coach Hugo Bezdek.

The football heroes of the Marine team which vanquished the Camp Lewis aggregation on New Year's day, gained a lot of publicity among the sport writers of the sunny south. Here is a story from the Los Angeles Times for January 3 telling what happened to Johnny Beckett:

"Blushing Jawn" Beckett, king for a day held sway over the Castle Maryland yesterday with everyone from the genius who peels the potatoes to the stoutest on the register, his most devout slave. Even Jawn himself admitted that it's great to be a football hero, while the coterie of society rosebuds hovering in the background seemed content merely to feast their eyes upon the bluecoated, brass-buttoned celebrity.

Accompanied by a humble scribe Jawn attempted to run the gauntlet of the Maryland court and reach the protected seclusion of his bungalow. National celebrities popped from behind arbors and hedges to offer the embarrassed idol cigars that would have plugged a fire hydrant, pretty maidens parted bungalow curtains to smile upon him and a troupe of bright-eyed kiddies, representing the clan of Cudahy, ham specialists, whooped around a corner to tell Jawn that their daddy said the Cudahy car and chauffeur were at his disposal.

In Seclusion.

Beckett dove into the seclusion of his room and proved himself a real cosmopolitan by laying aside the bright-banded gifts of his admirers and "rolling his own."

"Yes, the game must have looked good from the sidelines," he mused as the smoke rings curled around the chandelier. "If Camp Lewis had reduced her substitute list early in the season and specialized in developing about fifteen or sixteen players we would have had harder time winning. The army subs did not fit into the machine smoothly and we got just the advantage we were looking for."

"Believe me, Bezdek is a wise guy and a real sport. Perhaps nobody knows him better than I do and I am sure he will be a big sensation in eastern baseball. This talk about stolen signals makes me laugh. Knowledge of the other team's numbers only serves to confuse one in the excitement of the game. I believe, that the Oregon men on the Camp Lewis team were really handicapped because they knew, or thought they knew, some of the plays that Brown called for. We fooled them by reversing the side of the line attacked.

"Our game with Camp Lewis earlier in the season was a much harder one than that of yesterday. We had practically no plays at that time and had to fight harder than ever before. Since Bezdek took charge of us we have been welded into a real team instead of eleven players.

"We certainly have enjoyed our trips up and down the coast, and just after we signed up for the Pasadena game we got an offer to play in Honolulu. I hope they send us over the water soon, for we are all crazy to get into a real scrap, unhindered by the official rule book. After the war I am going ack to the farm in Oregon, which I left to attend college. No military stuff and drills for nine after the kaiser is licked!"

Go to it Jawn, we're strong for you. Whether the line of scrimmage be on a chalk-marked gridiron or the shell-torn ground of No Man's Land, we know that you will be where the Boches are thickest. Here's to you, you modest six-foot country boy, when you go over the top with the shock troops and the Hymn of Hate, and scream of schrapnel is dinning in your ears instead of the song of the bleachers.

PEACE NOT TO END WOMEN'S HARD WORK

portant duty of the women to keep up the spirit of the men.

"Although you are not there in person," he said, "you are there in spirit, and when they crash their way through to Berlin, you'll be there with your men, living or dead, and finally when 'Unter Linden' they sing 'The Star Spangled Banner,' every man will have the girl he is thinking of by his side."

University Instructor Is Washing Dishes in Army

From university professor to army private with duties ranging from dish-washing to wood-chopping is the experience of Louis C. Rosenberg, former instructor in the school of architecture, who is now a member of company F, 25th Engineers, camouflage, stationed at Washington, D. C. Mr. Rosenberg, however, is enthusiastic about his work, which he says is practically all out of doors.

"Two-thirds of our company are movie men and the rest are everything from sign painters to carpenters," says Mr. Rosenberg, in a letter to friends on the campus. He expects to "go across" within a short time.

POLISH CHILDREN DIE FROM STARVATION

In Poland most of the children under 4 years of age are either dead or dying from starvation. The old and the very young are always the first to succumb when a country is starving.

Through the American Red Cross it is planned to send aid to these starving Poles as soon as adequate guarantees are given that the money will not cause food or funds to be released for the benefit of the German army now occupying Poland.

Try to picture the starvation of Poland, of Serbia or Belgium, of other neutrals and it will not be hard for you to make up your mind to conserve every bit of food possible.

The Red Cross has begun a nationwide drive for membership. This is the only authorized agency for extending relief to suffering humanity. You will be given an opportunity to hold a membership in this organization and play a part in helping to care for our soldiers and sailors and feeding the hungry of our allies so far as it is possible for us to do.

MORE OF THE SAME

An old negro drove into an Oklahoma town one market day behind a tall lean mule, which he left tied to the courthouse railing. Evidently the mule liked the location, for she would not stir an inch when the darky returned later with the intention of going home.

He tried coaxing and cussing; he tried beating and kicking. He tried a slow fire under her; she perspired freely, but she didn't move.

"Doc," said the driver plaintively to a medical man who was among the admiring spectators, "caint' you ease this fool mule somepin dat'll git her goin' good?"

Filled with high exaltation, the doctor hastened into a drug store and presently returned with a syringe. He gave the mule a stiff dose and stepped back. Another moment and the hybrid was leaving those parts, bound nor' by nor'east, in the general direction of Indiana.

The negro watched the cloud of dust that marked her progress.

"Doc," he said in a piteous tone, "how much did dat stuff cost?"

"I gave her a dime's worth."

"Well, go back right quick and git two-bits of the same fo' me pusbsonally. I gotta go ketch dat mule!"—Exchange.

PRIMAL DEMOCRACY

Among the boys who have gone out to fight for the safety of democracy there are at Yapbank quite a number still who believe that said democracy extends even to army life, says an exchange. One man is just as good as another, is their theory, and even better if he has a good uppercut with his left. And if a man has a good right jab he has a right to almost anything else he can take away from the other fellow, no matter how many straps, bars or stars he wears.

It was one of the newest rookies recently who exemplified his belief in this primal democracy. Shortly after he had learned where his bunk was and had stowed away his few belongings there came a call at his door.

"Murphy, cried the voice, 'the colonel wants to see you.'"

And Murphy replied: "Aw right, send him in!"—Exchange.
