GO GET 'EM OREGON.

Fighting like fury from first whistle to the last; the Varsity basketball team last night won its first victory in two years; really the first in four years, for during the 1915-16 seasons the lemon-yellow put no teams on the floor.

Never was a stronger example of what Oregon Fight can do shown than in the game of last night. Pure determination to win, both on the part of the team and by the crowd of students who filled the bleachers, carried Coach Hayward's men to victory over the purple and gold. Judged from the standpoint of technical basketball, the game put up by both teams might have been ragged, but no loyal Oregon student could have watched the game—even though we had lost—without feeling that we were once more coming into our own.

Even before the first whistle called the men onto the floor and the rooters saw their own team in action, everyone in the hall sensed the fact that Oregon would spring the promised surprise. The crash of the band, the yells and whistles that echoed back and forth, every sound seemed to interpret itself into the words, "We'll win, We'll win, We'll win." The team took the floor charged with that spirit and for the second time this year the fight came back.

This time it is back to stay. Tonight is going to see it again, Friday and Saturday nights the Aggies are going to face the "old fight" that has ever been their Waterloo in years gone by and, whether on the long or the short end of the score, Oregon will be winner.

Last night the bleachers were full. But there were ragged gaps which should have been filled with howling fighters for Oregon in other parts of the hall. In the balcony there was room for three times as many girls as were there and there are ten times as many women in the University as put in an appearance at the game last night. Tonight we go again. The Oregon Fight is alive—Let's keep it alive and working, every man and woman of us.

Go get 'em Oregon—We're with you.

BIBLE CLASSES BEGIN

Work to Be Given by Faculty and Student Leaders.

Miss Mary Watson to Hold Normal Classes Sunday Afternoons at Y. W.

Bible study classes on the campus will base their work upon Dr. Walter Rauschenbusch's book, "The Social Principles of Jesus." The book was written at the request of a joint committee from the Christian associations and several church denominations, and is listed as fourth year work in the schedule of student Bible study arranged by the national Young Men's and Young Women's Christian associations.

Dr. Rauschenbusch is professor of church history in the Rochester Theological seminary, and his book is recommended as setting forth those principles which college people must understand if they are to follow Jesus Christ in modern life.

Miss Mary Perkins, professor of English, will teach a class at the Alpha Phi house. Ruth Wilson, president of the campus Y. W. C. A., is to lead a class at Hendricks Hall, and the leaders at the other houses are yet to be decided.

Miss Mary Watson, of the English department faculty, is to conduct a normal class, to be held Sunday afternoons at the Y. W. C. A. Bungalow for upper-class women, who will lead small group classes some time during the week, when they will give the same lesson to their group.

These classes led by students will be largely open discussions, and will be very informal.

President P. T. Campbell, in speaking to the group of men who met Sunday morning in Villard Hall to discuss campus classes, said that he considered Bible study most essential, and that he felt that it would fill a most important need on the campus.

The question of student leaders for men was discussed.

Prospective faculty leaders present were: Dr. W. P. Boynton, Dr. A. E. Caswell, and Professor A. P. R. Drucker.

Wrestles at 115; Name Is Simola; Therefore—

Seattle Post-Intelligencer Carries Feature When "Jap" Meets Jap.

What's in a name when a newspaper wants a feature story?

Arvo Simola, 115-pound wrestler on the University squad, when in Seattle last Friday with Oregon's grapplers, who were scheduled to meet Washington's team that night, picked up the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and on the sporting page read that it was quite a coincidence that Arvo Simola, Jap wrestler for Oregon, would meet Masui, Washington's 115-pound Japanese wrestler, on the mat that evening.

A copy of the Stanford directory of students enrolled for the winter term 1917-1918 contains 1709 names, which includes all regular, special and graduate students. Last year 2185 students were enrolled. The spring 1918 issue of officers and students contains 4610 names of students enrolled in the colleges at Berkeley, as compared to 5684 names appearing in the 1917 issue.—Daily Californian.

WRESTLERS TRAINING FOR O. A. C. MATCHES

Shockley Pleased With Showing of Team at U. of W.; Says Simola's Injury Cause of Defeat.

Wilson Wins, But Gray Is Beaten by Cleverest Grappler On Northern Team.

With but three weeks remaining before the wrestling meet with O. A. C., the Varsity wrestling team which lost to Washington three matches to two, returned to college Sunday and immediately settled down to another period of training. All of the men came through their matches in good shape except Si Simola, who was forced to forfeit his bout on account of a strained ligament in his arm.

Coach Ed Shockley expressed himself as satisfied with the results of the meet.

"We would have had a draw at least," said Shockley, "if Si had been able to continue. He was giving the Japanese all he could handle when he had to quit. I'm not making any promises about O. A. C. Wait until March 8 and I'll tell you who will win."

All of the men praised the treatment accorded them at the northern institution, and reported a fine trip.

New Scoring Used.
Washington introduced a new one in scoring the meet. According to the purple and gold dopsters, a fall counted five points, and a decision three. Figuring it this way, Oregon lost 31-14.

Simola obtained a draw in his first go with Masui, but when the time came for the next round, he was unable to raise his arm. Consequently Masui was credited with two falls, good for ten points. Claude Hill struck a veteran man in Ginson and lost in two straight falls, both by head scissors.

Dwight Wilson lost the first decision to his opponent, Sellick, but came back strong and won the next two. An instance of how the Washington rule works was shown here. Although Wilson won his match, he received six points, while Sellick scored three for Washington. A team could win three decisions on points, lost two on falls, and lose the match. Sellick has played in hard luck. He has made the team for four years, and yet has failed to win a conference match and get a letter.

Gray Meets Cleverest Man.
Captain Harold Grey met the cleverest wrestler Washington had, according to Shockley, in Captain McGovern. McGovern won the first bout on a fall and the second on a decision. George Taylor had an easy time with his opponent, Foreman. Taylor outweighed him about ten pounds, and gained one fall and one decision.

Washington wrestles O. A. C. at Corvallis Friday night, and so a comparison can be made on the comparative showing of Oregon and O. A. C. against Washington. Little is known of the strength of the O. A. C. team, as they have had no matches so far this year.

BATTALION FLAG IS FINISHED

Fifty Girls Work to Complete Standard for Presentation Wednesday.

The battalion flag, which is nearing completion, will be finished by midnight Tuesday. Even if the girls have to work until that hour, it will be finished, according to Gladys Wilkins, chairman of the committee in charge of the making of the flag. The work on the flag had not progressed very rapidly during the past three and a half weeks, so that it was found necessary by the committee to send out a call for help to the women of the University in order that it might be finished for presentation to the battalion Wednesday, as planned.

Since that time about 50 girls have worked on the flag. A schedule posted in front of the library was filled out by the girls, who have spent their spare time embroidering. The names of the girls who have worked on the flag will be printed on a piece of parchment and hung in the Architectural building, where it will be kept as a roll of honor.

When finished, the flag will measure four by two and one-half feet, and will weigh about five pounds without the staff. The girls working on the committee under Miss Wilkins are Elsie Fitzmaurice, Roberta Schuebel, Gladys Conklin, Katherine Twomey, and Janet Frasier. The committee was appointed by Helene DeLano, president of the women's league.

The flag will be presented to the battalion Wednesday by Mrs. George Gerlinger and Mrs. A. C. Dixon.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Faguy-Cote, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Giltner, of Portland, and Florence Hemenway were Sunday dinner guests of Beta Theta Pi.

FOR PRACTICAL CIVICS

Prof. A. N. French Suggests New Way of Teaching.

Favors Organization of School Community; Leadership Emphasized.

Civics as common sense, not merely a required study, is the aim of Professor A. N. French, of the University high school, in his carefully-worked out system of teaching the subject. Everyday applications and examples, such as the election of the "school community" president, which is the same as a state primary election, are used.

"Civics, history and geography are not separate studies," in the opinion of Professor French, "but different sides of the same thing. We try to correlate them here, and teach them so they can be used in the regular citizen life of a man or a woman."

The first thing is to make a child realize that it is himself he studies about, in the duties of a citizen. When a boy sees that he is learning what he will have to know later on, he is more interested.

Develops Community Sense.
"We bring him to a realization of a social community, by his participation in the school community," declares Professor French. "He is part of the group, and votes on its by-laws and constitution, and performs his duties as though he were on the city council or the school board, or any other civic committee."

The president of the community and his officers and cabinet are chosen by vote of the people. The ballot is the same as a state primary ballot; the polling booth and ballot box are identical. The tellers, clerks and other officials proceed under the laws of Oregon. This familiarizes both girls and boys with the conditions as they will be when they are called on to vote.

The value of good leadership and character is emphasized in the nomination of candidates. No one is eligible except he be a good student, well-behaved, on good terms with the community, prompt, dependable, and something of a leader among them. A committee of the community meets to decide on the eligible ones.

Responsibility Is Developed.
"This system, I find," says Mr. French, "makes a boy or girl realize his own responsibility in community and civil life, and gives him a greater interest in civics as a study."

An article by Mr. French in explanation of his system and its workings, appears in a recent Extension Monitor.

"Washington has a green team; the men haven't the basketball instinct," said Coach Hunt, of Washington, last night.

The two teams will clash again tonight in the University gymnasium. If Oregon fails to keep its present edge on the Washingtonians, and allows Hunt to take the game, the two teams will again be tied for the cellar position in west side division.
