

EUGENE CLUB BEGINS RE-EDUCATION WORK

Local Physical Training Society Appoints Committees and Reorganizes; to Meet Regularly.

Col. Leader Says There Is Need of More American Women in France.

Taking up the problem of re-education of the wounded soldiers, and the treatment of shell-shock cases, the Eugene Physical Education society held its first meeting of the year in Villard Hall, Tuesday night.

The club was organized last year, with Ed Shockley as president, but due to Mr. Shockley's absence, the first meeting was not held till last night. A membership committee, with Miss Charlotte Ballard, chairman, and a nominating committee, headed by Miss Hazel Rader, were appointed, and the society is planning to hold regular meetings hereafter. The society is for those interested in physical education work and the meetings this year, so far as known, will deal with the re-construction work among the soldiers.

Colonel Leader Explains Work. Colonel Leader answered questions in regard to the work, as he had found it, and Miss Harriett Thompson gave a talk on the reconstruction work in the convalescent hospitals both here and abroad.

According to Colonel Leader, the only possible cure for shell-shock cases is found in massaging. The need for workers in this field, he said, is very great, and the call will soon become more urgent. One girl whom he met was working ten hours a day, and said she wished she had 200 hours to work. The massaging of the spine of the man who is mad, was said to have a very soothing effect, and resulted in the soldier falling off to sleep, while a few minutes before he was alternately shrieking and laughing.

In the shell-shock cases, Colonel Leader said, the patients were sent home to convalescent hospitals in country places. Here they have people who entertain them, and often through suggestion and hypnotic influence, they are brought back to their proper senses. Gardening and walks are two of the important means of recreation at the hospital, although the patients are left alone a great deal, and not allowed to read any but very light matter.

Disabled Taught Trades. Colonel Leader also explained that there were places where people who had lost limbs, or who had part of their faces carried away, or suffered like loss, might have their muscles retrained and be taught trades which would enable them to earn their way through life. There is a great shortage of wooden legs and arms, according to the colonel.

The different kinds of gas used in modern warfare, and their effects, were discussed. The treatment, Colonel Leader said, was much the same as for tuberculosis, and the patients are generally sent to a dry climate. Walking and Swedish exercises are used in the treatment. The testing is done by walking, and as soon as a man can walk 16 miles he is sent back to the trenches.

Several of the girls present were particularly interested in the message work, but asked why the government would not take those under the age of 25. Colonel Leader expressed the opinion that this would soon be changed, and that the government would be begging for workers.

All Not too Many. "If all the American girls would learn massaging there would not be too many," he said. He explained this statement by saying that many of the women in England were not trained or strong enough for the work, and that if Russia enters the war against us, she will have twice as large an army fighting against us as she ever had fighting for us.

MISS CROCKER VISITS HENDRICKS

Curator of Portland Art Museum Guest at Hall While Here to Lecture.

Miss Anna Belle Crocker, curator of the Portland Art Museum, and well known on the Pacific coast for her art work, has been a guest of Hendricks Hall during the last three days. Miss Crocker's trip to Eugene was made for the purpose of lecturing on the art exhibit of the work of the students of the Portland Art Museum, which is on display in the exhibition room in the Architectural building this week. Miss Crocker was honor guest of Hendricks Hall Tuesday evening at dinner. Guests invited in her honor were Professor and Mrs. A. H. Schreff, Professor and Mrs. A. F. Reddie, Professor Roswell Doach, and David Campbell.

NOMINATIONS MADE FOR Y. W. ANNUAL ELECTION

Dorothy Flegal and Essie Maguire Nominated for President; Three Other Offices to Be Filled.

Nominations for the four executive offices of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet for next year were announced today, as follows: President, Dorothy Flegal and Essie Maguire; vice president, Mildred Steinmetz and Jessie Garner; secretary, Frances Elizabeth Baker and Marian Andrews; treasurer, Helen McDonald and Florence Hemenway. If anyone desires to make further nominations, the names may be handed in to the committee for this purpose, composed of Dorothy Collier, Lillian Hausler, and Mary Hislop.

The election will take place next Wednesday at the Bungalow, the polls being open for voting from 11 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Following the constitution, nominations are posted one week in advance. Only members in good standing will be allowed to vote.

The annual meeting of the association is to be held next Wednesday evening, and will take the form of a banquet at the Osburn hotel, in honor of Miss Ethel Cutler, national secretary of the association, who will be the speaker of the occasion. The time of her arrival is not definitely known, but March 6 is the tentative date, and plans have been made accordingly.

Reports of the present cabinet will be given as toasts at the banquet. Miss Cutler is the author of "Student Standards of Action," and "A Life at Its Best." Both of these books were written to form a year course in association Bible study, and comprise the freshman and sophomore divisions of the schedule.

J. H. JACKSON PLEASSED WITH WORK AT HARVARD

Refuses Offer to Teach at California Summer School; Expects to Do Accounting in the East.

J. Hugh Jackson, professor in the school of commerce last year, is well pleased with his progress in commercial work at Harvard, according to a letter received from him by friends in the school of commerce Monday. Mr. Jackson was given a two years' leave of absence from Oregon last year, to work for his master's degree at Harvard.

He is at present acting as assistant to Professor Cole, of the Harvard school of commerce, and doing all of his assistant work in accounting. He is also teaching one graduate course in the graduate school of business administration of the University, and is carrying full work besides. Among his other duties he has been appointed, through a recommendation from Professor Cole, to get out a system of accounts for the National Association of Printers, and is installing two or three systems of accounts for business houses in Cambridge and the vicinity of Boston.

He says in his letter that he recently received a telegram from W. M. Hart, dean of the summer session of the University of California, inviting him to the University of California, with an honorarium of $300, to give two courses of five hours each throughout the session, lasting from the latter part of June to the first of August, but he has declined the offer because he expects to work with one of the large accounting firms of Cambridge during the summer.

Lucien Arant, former student at the University, and major in the school of journalism, who is at present telegraph editor of the Salem Statesman, visited the campus for a few hours Monday. His brother, P. B. Arant, is a senior here.

Miss Eva Dye, of Corvallis, is a week-end guest of Alpha Phi.

WHEATLESS RECIPES GIVEN BY MISS TINGLE

Oat, Barley, Rice and Potato Flour Named as Substitutes; Crackers Advocated.

Says Rye Must Be Saved After March 1; Urges New Pie Dough.

Uses for oat flour, barley flour, rice flour, and potato flour, as substitutes for wheat, were given by Miss Lillian Tingle, head of the household arts department at the University, when she spoke in Villard Hall yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

"At last one can buy oat flour or meal in Eugene," said Miss Tingle. "It is a particularly concentrated food, and contains rather more fat than wheat flour. It costs 8 cents a pound, but contains more calories than wheat."

The use of the oat flour in making home-made crackers was given as one of the most important. These crackers can be used on wheatless days, and are preferable to muffins, cornbread, and such substitutes, in that they do not grow tiresome, according to Miss Tingle. Also they may be made in large batches, as they will keep a couple of weeks.

Crackers Easily Made. The crackers are easily made and are not much trouble, the food expert says. The recipe is: For every cup of flour, use one teaspoonful of salt and two of baking powder, and one cup of equally mixed oat and barley flour. Mix these ingredients together and add one tablespoon of oil. Enough milk or water should be added to make a firm rolling paste. Everything should be in readiness before the mixture is wet, and it should be rolled, cut in squares, and put into the oven, either on an inverted baking dish or cookie sheet, as quickly as possible. The oven should be slightly hotter than for wheat breads.

These crackers may be eaten with mush on wheatless days, as a substitute for toast, may be used in creamed dishes, with jam or in any way that bread might be used. A variation can be had by grating cheese into the mixture, and thus having a cheese cracker, or by putting cheese on top and heating them in the oven, and thus having "Scotch rabbit." According to Miss Tingle, these oat crackers are generally very popular with children, and can be used for lunches in the place of sandwiches. By adding a little sugar to the mixture, they may be made into a sweet cracker. Like other crackers, they should be crisped before using.

Same Dough for Pies. The same dough as used for the crackers, can be used as pastry for pies, by adding another tablespoon of oil. A combination of rice and barley flour was also suggested for making pie shells, which might be filled with lemon or cream filling.

In making substitutes for wheat bread, Miss Tingle emphasized the fact that substitutes require more kneading, and that they should be put into a hotter oven so that the gases will not escape.

"The very best wheat substitute is 'eat another potato,'" said Miss Tingle, "and nice fluffy mashed potatoes can be used as foundations in a great many ways." Among those suggested were use of them in pancakes and in vegetable sausages.

Rye must be saved the same as wheat after March 1, according to Miss Tingle, and must not be used on wheatless days.

The next lecture will be delivered a week from Wednesday, and will be on the problem of increasing the number of vegetable dishes.

VIVIAN KELLEMS HONOR GUEST

Zeta Kappa Psi Entertains for Member Who Has Returned.

Zeta Kappa Psi, women's debating fraternity, entertained at Helen McDonald's apartments Saturday afternoon, in honor of Vivian Kellems, '18, who has been traveling for the Ellison-White chautauqua since her graduation in January.

Miss Kellems told of her experiences as a chautauqua representative; Roberta Schuebel gave a short history of the organization of Zeta Kappa Psi; and Helen McDonald narrated the beginning of the chapter here. Marie Badura read several poems.

After this program, an hour of nonsense followed, during which Ruth Graham gave an oration on war brides, and Eileen Tompkins and Harriett Garrett debated on the proposition, "Resolved, That the married state is more blessed than the single."

GAMMA PHI HOUSE HAS PARTY

Sorority Entertains with Informal Dance at Chapter House.

Gamma Phi Beta entertained with an informal dancing party at their house on Saturday evening. Mrs. W. G. West and Mrs. A. C. Dixon were patronesses of the event. The guests included Era Godfrey, Reba Macklin, Grace Rugg, Ella Dews, Evelyn Grebe, Adah McMurry, Elsie McMurry, Naomi Robbins, George Van Waters, Walter Church, Dow Wilson, Phil Janney, John Masterson, John Hunt, Carl Nelson, Lawrence Woodworth, Chester Adams, Bob McNary, Ned Fowler, Bert Woods, Nish Chapman, Ed Durno, Curtiss Peterson, and Clarence Moffatt.

Chi Omega entertained at dinner Sunday Mrs. S. R. Johnston, Mrs. Osburn, Mrs. McMorrin, and Miss Geiser.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE PLANS SPORT SCHEDULES

Eight Games of Baseball, Two Track Meets Arranged for; Girls Glee Trip Discussed.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the student council Monday afternoon, a baseball schedule for this season was discussed. A series of eight baseball games with the O. A. C. was approved by the committee, although nothing definite about the games was decided before submitting the plans to A. R. Tiffany, graduate manager. There will be no other intercollegiate games this spring.

A schedule for track was discussed, and two meets are planned, one with O. A. C., at Corvallis, some time in the spring, and another with the University of Washington, during junior week-end.

Plans for the freshman baseball games and track contests were made, and meets are to be arranged with the O. A. C. rooks, but it will not be possible to arrange any other outside contests for them.

The receipts from the two recent basketball games with O. A. C. was $75, which is considerably more than has been taken in at any basketball games this year.

A trip for the girls' glee club to the different towns in the valley some time soon, was also discussed by the executive committee, but no definite plans have yet been made.

MEETING HOUR FOR WOMEN

One Assembly a Term Is Allowed for League to Discuss Business.

One assembly hour a term has been allowed the women's league, composed of all the women of the University, for holding their meetings. Formerly the meetings were held in the afternoon, but many of the girls were unable to attend, due to conflict of classes. Under the new regime, much better attendance is expected.

Women's league fills a more important place this year than ever, according to Helene De Lano, president of the league, as it brings the girls together and enables them to work together for the best interests of the nation and of their alma mater.

The first meeting at assembly hour will be held in April, and it is planned to have a consumer's league speaker address the girls at that time.

Ruth Miller, '21, spent the week-end in Corvallis, where she was the guest of Pi Beta Phi.

Mrs. Jeannette McLaren Nelson spent the week-end in Hillsboro.
