

EIGHT FROM OREGON TRAIN FOR OFFICERS

Ordnance Men from University Make Good Showing at Camp Meade in Class of 135.

Sergeant Tengwald, of First Class, Writes Onthank; Others in Line.

"Old Oregon has again 'made good.' Recently two candidates from each camp in the country were ordered selected to attend the Ordnance Officers Training Camp to be held here," writes C. Y. Tengwald, a member of the first ordnance class now at Camp Meade. "As you know, the boys from the Ordnance classes are scattered all over the country now, and some perhaps on their way to France, if not already over there.

"The following Oregon men were successful in being selected to attend the camp here out of 135 men selected: Sergeant Chas. O. Chatterton, Sergeant William C. Christensen, Sergeant Garnet L. Green, Sergeant Ellis R. Hawkins, Sergeant Joe Denn, Sergeant Ridgeway, Sergeant Carl Y. Tengwald, and Sergeant Wild, former assistant to Jeremiah.

"Christensen and I had been stationed at Camp Dodge, Iowa until sent here. The boys there are all expecting overseas service soon. All were well when I left, except Zumwalt, who was in the Base Hospital with mumps, but he is probably out by this time. Of the boys sent there only three besides us have left there, Sergeant Knickerbocker, now in Ordnance Department, Washington, D. C.; Sergeant C. W. Salisbury, Ordnance Department, Mosler Lock Co., Dayton, Ohio; Sergeant Joe C. Hedges, with First Battalion, A. O. B. D. E., en route "somewhere."

"Our training course here commences next Monday, and will cover a period of six weeks. It is a very intensive course and every hour of the day will be taken up, and even two hours every evening. "This is a very beautiful camp, located midway between Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, about twenty miles to either city. The camp is surrounded by pine trees, the first we have "encountered" since leaving Oregon, so we feel rather 'homelike' again."

It is a requirement that men must be in ordnance work three months before being admitted to the Officers Training Camp at Camp Meade. Several members of the later classes have already been recommended when they become eligible.

150 NEW SUBSCRIBERS NEEDED FOR OREGANA

splendidly, according to those in charge. Seniors have Subscribed.

If you are a junior support your class. If you are an underclass man, think of the days when you will need support and buy your Oregana now.

If you are a senior—but all seniors have subscribed already for they are old enough and wise enough to know the benefits derived from an Oregana. No matter who you are you will want a copy of the book of the hour when it comes fresh from the press Junior Week-end.

"Don't be one of the disappointed people who have the idea that they can get a book at the last minute. They are going to get the surprise of their lives," said the manager, "for there will be only as many books printed as there are subscriptions."

TRE NU GIRLS TO INITIATE TWELVE FRIDAY EVENING

Ceremonies to Be Held at Bungalow Will Be Followed by Banquet and Dance.

Initiation of twelve Tre Nu pledges will be held next Friday evening at 6:30 at the Bungalow, according to a decision reached Sunday afternoon at the regular monthly meeting of the society. Initiation will be followed by a banquet at the Bungalow and a dance at the home of Mable Weller, a club member who lives in Fairmount.

New pledges elected at the meeting yesterday are Jennie Maguire, Essie Maguire, Alice Thurston, and Dorothy Robertson. Other girls to be initiated on Friday are Eileen Tompkins, Waiva Dean, Erma Huff, Elizabeth Ginsey, Florida Hill and Ruth Danford. Beatrice Thurston's name is also given in the list, but she will not be initiated, because she is holding a position this term on the Klamath Falls Herald.

A shorthand class for the members of Tre Nu to be held under the direction of Erma Huff, a member of the club, on Monday and Friday at 5 o'clock was decided upon at the meeting yesterday. The class will start next Friday.

A committee from the club has written to different commercial clubs and large business firms of the state, asking about prospects for positions for University girls for the summer. The desire of the club girls is to get positions in units, each group of girls being accompanied by a chaperon. This plan has been successfully tried by girls in Canada.

GIRLS! GET A SWEETHEART!

"Girl Left Behind" May Wear Symbol of Fiance in Service.

Military officers in Detroit received word from Washington yesterday that the "girl left behind" will be permitted to display a special "sweetheart" flag, provided she is betrothed to the boy now doing his bit at the front for democracy.

The new symbol is a white flag, the center of which contains a red heart bearing a blue star. This symbol is certain to be popular with Michigan women. More than 100 girls have expressed their favor of the plan and there may be keen competition between the sororities on the campus for stars.

The official word also advised that "no two girls will be allowed to wear a sweetheart's service flag for the same soldier."

As is the custom in other service flags, the star will be changed to gold if the boy meets death.—University of Michigan Daily.

PICTURES OF WAR WORK OFFERED HIGH SCHOOLS

Various Army Activities Shown in Set of Slides Prepared by Extension Division.

The bureau of visual instruction of the Extension Division is now offering the high schools of the state a large number of slides which deal with the war.

The bureau has received a set from Underwood and Underwood, New York photographers, which show the various steps in the transition of army uniforms from the Revolution to the present time. Another purchase of 300 slides was made from the committee on public information at Washington, D. C. These slides deal with camouflage, the activities and requirements of the training camps throughout the country, the various schools of aviation, the preparation for and the combating of gas attacks and the several other phases of army preparation which are being carried on.

The most interesting of all, according to Alfred Powers, assistant director of the extension division, is a collection of 50 Bairnsfeathers cartoons selected by Colonel John Leader. Colonel Leader also selected 25 pictures for slides on the Battle of the Somme.
