War Service For Women Is Keynote of Summer School

The University of Oregon's fourteenth annual summer session will be opened this year Monday, June 24 and closed Friday, August 2 with lectures beginning at eight o'clock on the opening day, according to the official catalog which has just been printed by the University press.

War Time Session Planned.
This session will be a "war time summer school" with special emphasis being laid upon courses intended to meet the demands of the war situation. The courses are to include special courses in military science for men preparing directly for military service in the field under the direction of Lieutenant-Colonel John Leader, commander and professor of military science for the period of the war; war service work for women along the lines of food conservation and Red Cross, under the direction of Miss Lillian Tingle and the Eugene chapter of the Red Cross; special opportunity for the preparation of women teachers in subjects usually taught by men in order to fill the high school vacancies caused by the enlistment of men, and special emphasis upon physical education both for men preparing for soldiers and high and grade school teachers.

Usual Courses to Be Given.
The usual courses will be given as fully as in the past. The program for the educational conference has also been given in detail in the catalog. It will be given from June 26 to 28 and will include conferences on educational hygiene, exceptional children, secondary education, school administration, and schools and military efficiency. Full details regarding the courses may be found in the catalog.

The faculty for the summer session will include P. L. Campbell, president of the University; Joseph Schafer, professor of history; Richard W. Borst, professor of economics, Junior college, Sacramento, California; W. H. Boyer, schools; William Pingree Boynton, professor of physics, University of Oregon; Henry E. Bourne, professor of history, Western Reserve University; A. E. Caswell, professor of physics, University of Oregon; Robert Carlton Clark, professor of history, University of Oregon; Edmund S. Conklin, professor of psychology, University of Oregon; Miss Caroline Coppel, assistant in music; B. W. DeBusk, professor of mathematics, University of Oregon; Edgar E. DeCou, professor of mathematics, University of Oregon; James Henry Gilbert, professor of economics, University of Oregon.

Summer Session Faculty Given.

Those soldiers of ours "over there" are getting more and more into the thick of the fight. They are giving up everything for us—time, money and perhaps their lives. Anything that you can do therefore to make life a little happier for them should be done at once. How much your soldier boy would enjoy a Kodak! One that he could carry around in his pocket. And how greatly he would prize, in after years, those snap shots taken "over there."

which he has discussed with students in many parts of the world.

"There is no atehism as the man near the trenches," he declared.

Young Americans Prove Worth.

"The young men of America are proving their sterling qualities on every hand. Before the war, men feared that the youth of America was soft and had low ideals. Then President Wilson issued his call and the boys flocked to answer, everywhere students were in the lead.

"Not long ago I was scheduled to speak at Cambridge, but could get no student audience because they have enlisted almost to a man.

"There are many forms of service, but sometimes our service is misdirected. We can serve by making the best of our lives and the way to do that is to fit into God's will. God has a plan for your life and it is no more disastrous for your arm to be out of its socket or for a star to swing out of its orbit than for your life to be out of God's plan.

Why Aaron Burr Failed.
"The secret of Drummmond's life is that he kept his life in God's will. Aaron Burr and Robert E. Speer took all the honors at Princeton at one time but one let God rule his life and the other did not.

"And finally, remember that good resolutions touch tomorrow and not yesterday."
