PLAN SUMMER CAMP

Col. Leader and Prof. Caswell Inspect Site for It.

Three Acres North of Skinner's Butte Thought Most Desirable.

Colonel Leader and Professor A. E. Caswell inspected a site for a summer camp of about 3 acres north of Skinner's Butte on this side of the river yesterday afternoon and found it very desirable.

The camp site they think will be most available is between the old lumber mill and the sand and gravel plant.

The camp has the added advantage of being close to the University, so that if present plans work out so that the camp will be established here during the time of summer school, men can attend the camp and take some classes in the University also.

No definite information has been obtained yet as to the number of men who will be admitted to the camp, the exact date, or the length of time it will last.

Colonel Leader will be commandant.

RETIRED OFFICER FOUND FOR HEAD OF R. O. T. C.

Will Serve as Nominal Commandant; Colonel Leader Will Be Retained.

Prospects for an R. O. T. C. in the very near future seem bright for Oregon. Word has been received from the Adjutant General in Washington D. C.

President Campbell has wired the war department for the qualifications of the man they suggested and has also wired the man himself to learn if he is free at present to come here.

If this arrangement works out satisfactory, Oregon may have an R. O. T. C. in May, for the matter will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Under this plan, Oregon will not wait for the passage of the Chamberlin bill, which provides that an officer with one year's experience may take charge of R. O. T. C. in a college, as opposed to the present requirement that the officer in charge must be a U. S. Army man with five years' experience.

WASHINGTON CO-EDS WIN BOTH DEBATES

2 to 1 Decision Given Girls from Northern College; Oregon Has Negative Side Here.

Heretofore Used by Amy Carson as Example of Consolidation.

Oregon was defeated at both Eugene and Seattle last night in the Washington-Oregon inter-collegiate women's debate.

Washington in presenting their affirmative argument at the debate in Villard hall declared that the "tendency of newspapers in the larger cities to combine was a salutary movement in American life"

Old-Time Papers Cited. The old-time newspapers were reviewed and the fact that it used to cost little to establish and equip a newspaper was brought out.

"But the very fact that newspapers were easily established," said Ruth Holland, of Washington, "accounts for the fact that every faction of politics and every clique, corrupt or legitimate, soon had its newspapers serving its particular faction."

The poor news service of the newspapers of the old days was also brought out. This, it was declared, was the natural result of the keen competition of the many newspapers leading to poor financial support and consequently to poorly paid and small staffs.

Yellow Journalist Scored. "Yellow journalism was finally the outgrowth of this keen competitive newspaper condition. The paper had to present only the more unusual and sensational news—if it could be called news after it had been 'touched up' to meet the requirements—in order to obtain readers," said Miss Holland.

Oregon upheld the negative declaring that the consolidation of newspapers in the larger cities was not a salutary movement in that it led to large news-

It was formally announced that the dance would be Thursday, April 25, but the hostess, Mrs. Rose Osburn, finds the date inconvenient and asks that the dance be postponed until a Saturday night date can be secured.

NEXT PLAY TRIUMPH OF RUSTIC SETTING

Dramatic Class Will Give Faithful Shepherdess on Thursday and Friday.

Background of Romantic Idyl to Be Realistically Presented.

Real trees, blossoming flowers, an actual waterfall, a well, lots of moss and greenery will transform the stage at Guild hall into a true outdoor bower for the presentation of John Fletcher's pastoral play, The Faithful Shepherdess, which the fourth year students in dramatic interpretation will produce under the direction of Fergus Reddie Thursday and Friday evenings of this week.

The stage is being made to represent a hillside and great care is being taken in the working out of each detail of the scenery. Water for the miniature waterfall will come racing down the hillside is being piped from Hendricks hall. The entire play of four acts is laid out of doors, the scenes taking place in a wood in Thessaly, in the early evening, night of the same day, before dawn the next day, and sunrise of that day.

Costumes to Follow Trends. The spirit of this Elizabethan play of 1608 is being faithfully carried out both as to setting and costuming, which will follow closely the custom of that day.

The faithful Shepherdess is a romantic idyl and is written in verse. Nearly all the characters are shepherds and shepherdesses and interesting complications result over their various love affairs.

Players Experienced. Professor Reddie will play a Satyr; Norville Thompson, a sullen shepherd;

U. NINE PRACTICING FOR THIRD VICTORY

Oregon Men Develop Efficiency Before O. A. C. Games Set for Friday and Saturday.

AGGIE CREW SLAUGHTERED 15 to 1 Score Due to Good Pitching of Berg, Says Captain Sheehy.

With two of the pansies plucked from the Oregon-O. A. C. series flower pot and now resting in the Oregon victory vase, the varsity nine is once again camping on Kincaid field every afternoon for long sessions with the horsehide to furnish their efficiency prior to meeting the Aggies for the third and fourth games of the series which will be played on the Cemetery ridge diamond next Friday and Saturday.

The game Saturday was a slaughter. Oregon opened up on Kruger in the first inning and continued the assault until he was driven to the showers in the fourth, following four successive hits by Dunton, Morrison, Runquist and "Ice" Berg. Nesbit, who followed Kruger on the mound, fared little better.

O. A. C. Loses Heart. O. A. C. lost heart when they saw how the battle was going and failed to fight as well as they had the day before.

The fact that Oregon was able to trounce the orange and black men for a 3 to 2 and a 15 to 1 victory is, by no means a signification that the varsity has the series won, according to Captain Sheehy.

The sum of $2500, which the women voted to raise at a recent meeting for war work purposes, will be used in supporting the canteen.

Twelve women from the senior class will go to France to run the canteen if they are needed. If it is impossible for the women to give their personal service

FIJIS BEAT KAPPA SIGS

First Doughnut Series Game Won 12 to 4.

Heywood Holds Opposing Hitters in Check, While Hunt and Maritz Are Maulled.

The Fiji willow wielders took the first game of the doughnut series from the Kappa Sigs last night by a one-sided score of 12 to 4.

The Kappa Sig tribe opened the game like a group of big leaguers getting one run on a combination of hits and misplays.

From this point on they were never headed. With Heywood working like a million dollars there was nothing to the rest of the encounter.

Bill Haseltine missed a couple of grounders in center field that went for
