MAKING THE STATUS OFFICIAL.

The plans of the government to keep college men at their studies are at last assuming definite form and with the opening of the University in the Fall men on the campus will stand as a recognized military body, assured of being able to complete their courses without interruption so long as they do satisfactory work.

Since the rush of college men to the colors first indicated that something must be done to insure a generation of trained men in the years that are to follow the conclusion of the war, the plea has gone out to college men to stay with their studies until called. Many of them have taken the advice, but it is not surprising that many have not. Even with President Wilson and other high officials urging them to remain in college, it has taken a lot of courage for able-bodied young men to keep from enlisting. The tendency of the unthinking has been to condemn them as slackers to a more or less extent, and away from the campus they had nothing to distinguish them as carrying out the wishes of their government.

Enlistment in the new cadet organization will be purely voluntary, but will place all of the men who do enlist on an equal standing with men enlisted in any other branch of the service. They will wear some insignia to distinguish them as enlisted men and they will be subject to call at any time by the president.

Secretary Baker's statement, printed on another page, gives a general idea of the new organization and makes entirely clear the fact that men enlisted in the organization will be allowed to continue their studies until they reach the age of twenty-one.

One further point which will be asked by the University students is what assurance they will have that they will be allowed to finish their courses after reaching draft age. This is covered in a telegram received this morning by Karl Onthank from President Campbell, in Washington. As fast as the men reach draft age they will, upon recommendation of their commanding officer, be detailed back into college to complete their courses. These provisions, however, will apply only to those men who enlist in the new corps, a unit of which will be established on the campus just as soon as authority to do so is granted by the War Department.

WOMEN'S WAR WORK BOOKLET AT LIBRARY

Pamphlet Outlines Courses Offered in Colleges; Reed's Reconstruction Aides Ranks First.

Vassar to Have Nurses' Training, Camp; Social Workers Wanted Abroad.

War work, which may be done by trained women, is outlined and discussed in a bulletin called "War Work of Women in Colleges," issued by the committee on public information and is dated April 28. This pamphlet, which has been received at the library, summarizes the war courses offered women in the colleges throughout the nation, gives an alphabetical list which has the lines of war work which women are permitted to enter.

Reed college, of Portland, the pamphlet describes as having one of the best war courses to offer of any college. When the women who take the course finish, they will be employed by the war department to give remedial exercises to wounded soldiers in the hospitals.

Remunerative Work Listed. Under remunerative work the article lists for the college student, play ground supervision, industrial warfare work, and inspectors of factories, particularly war products factories. For teachers and married women there is the work of the "scout" or "police woman," canteen and hostess but work, and reconstruction work in the reclaimed areas.

Vassar is to have a nurses' training camp this summer for the college woman who wants to train for the hospital work, and this may take her abroad. There is also a demand for social workers abroad, and for the college girls who cannot go across the seas there is the opportunity to contribute to the support of Belgian and French orphans.

No Passports for Relatives. The list of the opportunities in war work for women is headed by the warning that there is a ruling of the war department that relatives of men in the United States service cannot obtain passports excepting as their employment demands it.

Some of the positions listed are canteen workers, chauffeurs, dietitians, entertainers, factory workers, farmers, librarians, nurses, publicity experts, reconstruction aides, scientists, social welfare work, speakers, stenographers, teachers, telegraph operators, translators and yeomen.

The pamphlet gives the address of all of the headquarters in the United States, Bureau of Occupation, and state chairmen of the Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense, who in this state happens to be Mrs. P. L. Campbell, wife of the president of the University.

CAMPAIGN FOR ARMENIAN FUND TO START MAY 25

Y. M. C. A. Committee Would Send $100 to James Lyman for Asiatic Refugees.

To raise $100 for the Armenian refugees is the aim of the committee in charge of the James Lyman Relief Fund Y. M. C. A. campaign which will begin next Thursday, May 25. The purpose of the drive is to raise by personal subscription of every man on the campus at least $100 to send to James Lyman, who served as general Y. M. C. A. secretary for five years at the University and who is now a missionary instructor in the college at Marash in Asiatic Turkey.

Mr. Lyman sent word to the Y. M. C. A. telling of the great number of Assyrian and Armenian refugees who flocked to seek relief in the city of Marash. "It is impossible," he says, "to realize the intense misery and suffering of these homeless people." Mr. Lyman is earnest in his desire to help these refugees and is asking the young men of the University of Oregon to help by sending him money.

"If every man on the campus gives at least 50 cents," says Ed. Padden, chairman of the Lyman Armenian Relief Fund committee, "we will raise the fund."

While Mr. Lyman was Y. M. C. A. secretary here he was also the varsity wrestling coach. He now has entire charge of athletics in the college of Marash besides his missionary work.

psychology faculty to leave within the last twelve months. Dr. R. H. Wheeler, his predecessor, is now engaged in similar work in eastern cantonments. The laboratory sections heretofore in charge of Dr. Teachout have been turned over to Miss Celia Hager, assistant in the department.
