IN DEBT TO HUMANITY.

Giving, for some cause or another, is getting to be so ordinary a part of the everyday life of the American that it is doubtful if a large part of his giving has not become mechanical. The causes for which we are asked to contribute are many and worthy, but in their very worthiness there appears to be a danger.

We are giving more generously from our pocketbooks than from our hearts.

The checks we write for the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and the many other civil agencies for carrying on military and popular relief during these times are as fuel for a locomotive. It is money they ask and money they want, but with it they want the active co-operation in spirit of those who are making their work possible. Without a full realization of the need of such organizations and the good they accomplish we cannot hope to be fully efficient in our co-operation.

Let us get out of the habit of giving because we are asked without fully realizing to what end we are giving. Let's give and then give some more, but always with the picture before us of the suffering and hardship we are asked to assist in relieving.

Most any person will give a dollar to an organization and feel satisfied that he has done his part, but there are few who can picture starving children, wounded and dying soldiers and wrecked homes without realizing that he is ever in debt to humanity.

"DANCING FOR DEAR LIFE."

How worthy is the work of relief among Belgian children, victims of the war, that has been adopted and is being pushed over the entire country by the various chapters of the Delta Gamma sorority can be well understood by those who were fortunate enough to hear the address by Professor Victor Horta, Tuesday evening. No amount of reading could ever bring home the full horrors of the German atrocities that have been visited upon Belgium as did Professor Horta's words.

Tomorrow night the Oregon Delta Gammas are giving a jitney dance for the benefit of the relief fund. If dancing is worth a "jitney" a whirl as a pastime, dancing for the cause described by Professor Horta is worth the full fifty cents worth. If ever the phrase, "dancing for dear life" was applicable it will be tomorrow night.

MORE TENNIS COURTS.

How great is the University's need for more tennis courts has been brought home this year more than ever before by the greatly overcrowded condition of the courts. Just why tennis has gained so much in popularity this year is not easily understood, but even a passing glance at the lines of players around the courts during the late afternoon and early evening hours, waiting for an opportunity to play, is convincing evidence that the racquet game has come to the front rapidly and is becoming more firmly established each day.

Steps should be taken at once to provide at least half a dozen more courts before the re-opening of school in the Fall. And while they are being constructed it will be economy to make them permanent, first class courts.

CAMP LEWIS TO STUDY MATH.

Fifty Trigonometry Texts Asked for Use of Classes in Barracks.

Fifty trigonometry texts are wanted by the University library to send to Vancouver for use in the army barracks there. Books by standard authors are desired. Miss Mary Frances Isom, librarian in Portland, who is collecting the books, sent the call to Mr. M. H. Douglass yesterday. The troops stationed in the barracks are going to start classes in trigonometry and are without any text books, so the Portland library is undertaking to supply the need.

PRESIDENT TO HELP IN OBTAINING WORK

P. L. Campbell Writes from Capital of Chances for Positions in Civil Service.

Educational Board Seeks to Keep Younger Men in Colleges for Training.

President Campbell, who is now in Washington, D. C., has written to Karl Onthank, saying that there is a wealth of places for graduates on this year's classes in the civil service branches in the capitol, and that he will be glad to assist anyone in locating positions. He also writes of the work of the emergency council of education, of which he is acting as secretary. The special aim of the council at present is to make successful this great campaign for inducing students to stay in school, now, that they may be fitted to take up the burden of reconstruction and business after the war. A part of his letter follows:

"The committee on education and special training of the war department is beginning a very active campaign to induce students to remain in high school and college, so that they may be available as a war asset in the years of the war which remain. It looks as though we were going to be in it for a couple of years at least, and the war department is extremely anxious to make sure of the future source of supply.

To Paint Posters.

"The committee will print posters after the method of the food administration and will use the papers to the full extent. The emergency council is planning to co-operate with the committee of the war department, at its request, in organizing this whole movement as a nation-wide campaign, both to secure a future supply of trained men and women, and also to help keep the educational institutions up to their full measure of efficiency. A still larger purpose is that of raising in the consciousness of the American people the supreme fact that education is the first weapon of democracy and that the educational organization of the country must not only be maintained at its present level, but vastly increased and strengthened. This means the continuance of large gifts and also generous appropriations by cities and states.

Government to Assist.

"The Federal Government will also come into it with large appropriations. The whole machinery of the emergency council will be turned into this campaign. We hope to use a large number of people and to send out a great deal of literature. The other big organizations are co-operating very heartily with us. We shall have the support of practically all the government agencies."

ARMENIAN RELIEF MONEY TO BE RAISED BY FRIDAY

Fund of $100 Will Be Sent to James Lyman, Former Y. M. Secretary, Now in Turkey.

The fund of $100 to be raised by the University men for Armenian relief is expected by those in charge to be pledged in full by Friday. No returns have yet been received from the solicitors, who started work on the campus today. The money is to be sent to James K. Lyman, former secretary of the campus Y. M. C. A., who is doing mission work in Turkey.

A letter was received by the Y. M. C. A. yesterday from the American Board of Commissioners for foreign missions which is directing the work of Marash college in Asiatic Turkey, praising highly the work that Mr. Lyman is doing there. The letter also stated that regular school duties at the college have been curtailed owing to the conditions brought about by the war, and that the deportation of the Armenians had taken away the older members of the student body at Marash college leaving only the younger children and refugees.

The letter also told of the salaries that the workers are receiving. Mr. Lyman receives but $600 a year for his services while the women workers receive but $486.

BRITISH TO FIGHT ON UNTIL FINAL VICTORY

not always grateful. I recently congratulated an English officer who wore the military cross. His left hand was blown off and his right shoulder paralyzed by five shots from a German prisoner who asked to be allowed to remedy a blister on his heel. When the favor was granted, he seized the opportunity to disable the Britisher."

Work of Corps Described.

The work of the corps was described by Dr. Bean, who said that his unit was composed of 200 men, including nine officers and a quartermaster. The officers accompany the stretcher bearers to the fighting line, and assist in bringing the wounded to the dressing stations. Here the men are given hot tea, the inevitable cigarettes, and the wounds are dressed. No operations are permitted in the dressing stations because of the danger of shell fire and the waste of time.

"After the bleeding ceases," said Lieutenant Bean, "the wounded are given cards which tell the nature of the hurt, and sent to the clearing station and from there to the base hospitals."

In speaking of the list of casualties, he said five-sixths of the number are wounded, and one-sixth killed. "According to this estimate," said Dr. Bean, "the list does not seem so formidable as shell and gas shock cases are always included."

Grandson of Dr. Condon.

Dr. Bean is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Bean, both graduates of the University, and he is the grandson of Dr. Thomas Condon.

Rev. A. M. Spangler, pastor of the First Congregational church, led the devotions and made a plea that the men of the University send $100 to James K. Lyman, former campus Y. M. C. A. secretary now a missionary in Turkey.

The alumni cup for the best individual debater was presented by Professor Peter Crockett to Hugh Brunk, member of the Varsity debate team.

LIBRARY ADDS TO CARD CATALOG

Rate of Growth Demands New Section of 90 Trays.

The library has installed a new section consisting of about 90 trays to the card catalog. The rate of growth of the library demands a new section about every year. M. H. Douglass, librarian, said. The library now has more than 80,000 volumes on the shelves.

For the relief of suffering among Belgian children a Benefit dance will be given Friday evening at 8:30, at the Woman's Outdoor Gymnasium. Dances five cents each, or fifty cents for the evening.
