

JUICY STEAKS PIPING HOT FOR GRID SQUAD

Football Men Will No Longer Have to Eat Cold Food Left Over.

The football squad again has a training table. At the beginning of the year, it was thought that the new cafeteria of the S. A. T. C. would take the place of the old-time table. It was known that the food served there would not be harmful to the men and Coach "Shy" Huntington and Trainer "Bill" Hayward thought that they could easily keep a supervisory eye over what the men ate. It was also concluded that the army authorities were sufficient to see that the men would be in bed by ten o'clock.

But the meal-time plan did not work out well. When the squad came in, tired and hungry after a hard day's work, it was to find that the food served them was what was left by the S. A. T. C. and O. T. C. men, who had eaten previously. It was often cold and insufficient in quantity.

"Shy" and "Bill" registered the well-known complaint, with the result that the squad now feeds from the fat of the land. At 6:30 sharp, piping hot food is ready for them and it is the best of food. The men no longer have to wait in line for a long time only to find that the good things had been eaten. Now the visions of fat, juicy steaks and other fine things spur them on in practice.

FARM EDITOR MAKES VISIT

H. H. Bushnell Gathers Material for Descriptive Article.

H. H. Bushnell, editor of the Oregon Farmer, published at Portland, visited the University yesterday for the first time in many years. Mr. Bushnell was gathering material for a descriptive writeup of how the higher educational institutions of the state are affected by war conditions.

"The farmers are spending a good bit of the money that supports these institutions," Mr. Bushnell said, "and naturally take great interest in their progress."

He expressed himself as well pleased with what he saw at the University.

POWERS ENJOYS FRANCE

University Man Concedes Seekers for Romance Are Disappointed.

Alfred Powers, formerly secretary of social welfare in the extension division, who for several months acted as director of that division, has written to the extension division staff telling something of the life in France. Mr. Powers went to France during the month of August with the 158th infantry, A. E. F.

A few paragraphs of his letters which were received this week are as follows:

"The pleasant land of France has a fall climate, not unlike that of Oregon. For the last three days, including last night and this morning, a regular Oregon mist has enveloped the land, and slickers have been in order.

"Some day when the censor's pencil is not posed destructively, I will tell you of our trip across, and of a ride on a French train which the Wendling Bullet would far surpass in everything but speed, a quality not entirely lacking in the tiny engines, which are able to whoop it up on occasions.

"Last night when we went for milk, we and the French farmer drank a toast—not of milk—to France and America. There is always a toast in the heart of the French for Americans. They are strong for us.

"I might as well say in passing, however, that many of the boys who came over expecting romance have thus far been disappointed, for the French girls are not always possessed of divine charm, though there is a stimulating wit and sense of humor common to them all."

S. A. T. C. SCHOLASTIC REQUIREMENTS CUT

Men With Less Than Thirteen High School Credits May Be Admitted.

The University is authorized to induct into the S. A. T. C. men who do not have the prescribed minimum of 13 units of high school work, provided they are recommended by the president and the commanding officer as competent to pursue collegiate study as outlined by the War Department. This authorization came in a telegram yesterday from S. A. T. C. headquarters at Helena, Montana. The War Department is making this change so that the quota may be brought to its assigned strength and vacancies left by students going to central officers' training schools may be filled, says the telegram.

Personal Qualities Considered

The new ruling makes eligible for admission to the S. A. T. C. men of draft age, except those in class one who registered prior to September 12, 1918, if they can meet the mental and physical qualifications. "In making recommendations, special attention will be given to the applicants' educational qualifications, to any vocational or business experiences, and personal qualities essential for an officer of the army," reads the telegram.

Several hundred additional members of the S. A. T. C. in the University can be accommodated. Vacancies are made by students being called frequently to fill quotas for central officers' training schools. Others are transferred to the naval unit. As these men leave, opportunity is provided for additional young men to enroll in the Students' Army Training Corps.

Requirements May Be Waived

Men entering under the new ruling must have had academic training approximating the equivalent of graduation from high school, but in the case of men of experience and success the regulation requiring thirteen credits will be waived.

Limited service men of any registration may be inducted for the branch of service in which they can be used, provided they have the mental qualifications. A large number of men certified for limited service are doing work for the quartermaster, ordnance and adjutant general's departments of the army. Applications should be addressed at once to the Registrar of the University.

Dr. Cloran in Y. W.; Curiosity Over Blue Tags Costs Dollar

"Y. W. C. A., I'm a Member, R. U?" asks Dr. Timothy Cloran with the little blue triangle tag he wears on his coat.

It happened this way: The head of the Romance Language department saw the girls of his classes wearing their Y. W. membership tags and since he had just obtained the privilege of wearing an Emerald tag and didn't want to miss anything, he inquired into the significance of the little badge.

Now Mrs. Katharine Johnson is an ardent campaigner for Y. W., so seizing her opportunity, she outlined in glowing terms the benefits to be derived from joining the association.

"Give me a tag," said Dr. Cloran pulling forth the necessary dollar.

And Katharine said she credited both Dr. Cloran and his wife with membership for good measure.

PORCH FOR NEW BARRACKS

Shelter for Men on Rainy Days May Be Added.

The new barracks may have a porch, the entire length of the west side, it was announced yesterday by Lieutenant Edward E. Radcliff, commander of Company T, and Dean D. Walter Morton, member of the barracks corporation.

"The porch has been asked for, but has not been granted yet," said Lieutenant Radcliff. Its chief use will be to shelter the men when in formation on rainy days.

Company A will move into the new home on Friday or Saturday. Due to the fact that the barracks will accommodate only two hundred, the overflow will be quartered in the Delta Tau Delta house. The regimental band will be quartered in the Phi Delta Theta house.

PACKAGES MUST GO EARLY

Boxes for Men in France Not Accepted After November 28.

The Council of National Defense has prepared a set of rules for the sending of Christmas packages to soldiers and sailors in France and at home. A copy has been posted on the bulletin board of the library.

No packages will be accepted after November 28. Packages for sailors are to be sent early enough that they will reach New York by November 15. General Pershing has distributed coupons to those in his command, to give to the men under them. The men place their names and addresses on the coupons and then send them to the United States to their relatives or friends. Only one package is to be sent to each man. The Red Cross abroad plans to distribute packages containing fifty cigarettes to each man in the American Expeditionary forces.

Packages sent abroad are to be uniform in size, and the cartons for them are furnished by the local Red Cross chapter. They may be filled with any articles not barred by the postal officials.

TRACK MEN SHOW ZEST

Bill Lyle Helps Supervise Work Open Country Tried.

About ten men have been turning out every night for track and under the supervision of Bill Lyle have been doing good work. Bill is a veteran cross-country man with much experience and is getting in good form.

Men went out on open country yesterday for the first time. Not all the men went out, as those not in good condition went around the track and limbered up.

Bill Hayward exercises general supervision over the men, and some promising material is appearing. Arrangements are being made for intercompany meets. Most of the men out now are members of company A.
