

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB PERSONNEL FILLED

Ten Places Awarded at Final Tryout; Fine Season Is Predicted.

The ten vacancies in the women's glee club were filled at the final tryouts Tuesday night, when the selection of girls for first soprano was made. The girls chosen are: First soprano, Beulah Keagy, Jane Murphy and Margaret Fell; second soprano, Jessie McCord, Margaret Phelps and Lillian Brock; first alto, Laura Rand and Clara Calkins; second alto, Marvel Skeels and Dorothy Sanford.

The material from which the club chose its new members was exceptionally good, say members of the club.

New Term Will Bring Normal Courses

S. A. T. C. Organization Means Return to Former University Schedules and Aims.

Owing to the cessation of the war and the disorganization of the S. A. T. C. most of the departments are returning to their normal course schedules and aims. Announcements, by the professors of the different schools, in regard to new courses and the return to normal courses, which will be offered during the winter term, are being prepared, and are to be published in bulletin form.

In the geology department a beginning section is to be arranged for the general geology course which otherwise will continue from the fall term. A course in economic geography will be offered, taking the place of the European geography course. The topography and physiology of the United States and Oregon is the name of a course which will be given in the winter term.

Advanced topography which was not given last term and which will deal principally with making a relief map of Lane county will be given. The course in mineralogy will be continued and a course in elemental paleontology dealing with ancient life on earth will be offered.

Dr. Timothy Cloran will have a new division in elementary French for those entering in January.

The German department will offer a course in Heine's prose which will be given two hours a week, Tuesday and Thursday at 11 by Dr. Schmidt. A three-hour course in the teaching of the modern languages will also be offered.

No beginning Greek will be offered during the winter term.

Robert W. Prescott, professor in public speaking, will offer a new course in extemporaneous speaking which will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11. The work in household art will be extended according to Miss Lillian Tingle, head of that department, due to the completion of a new sewing room and laboratory for food preparation and dietetics. These rooms will give the necessary foundation for more advanced courses in preparation for the different forms of reconstruction and social service, nursing, teaching, housekeeping, household arts, household journalism and other vocations.

The physical education department gives a statement of courses saying that as before the army and Red Cross hospitals had drained the supply of nurses from the civilian service the supply did not meet the demand. The war has only emphasized the demand and its cessation is not likely to decrease it. Therefore the training will be continued in human anatomy, physiology, bacteriology, sanitation, nutrition, food preparation, massage, chemistry, bandaging, drugs and principles and practice of nursing.

Physical chemistry will be offered during the winter term by the department of chemistry with four-hour credits, three lectures and a laboratory period.

Norma Dobie, instructor in the English Literature department, will offer a course in Ruskin, Mondays and Fridays at 8 and Thursdays at 9, and a course in Carlyle the hours for which are to be arranged. Miss Mary Perkins, instructor in rhetoric will offer a course in Chaucer.

The school of education will give a course in the history of education, the study of childhood, and methods of teaching history and social sciences. Advanced courses will be offered in the history of American Education by Dr. Sheldon, dean of the school of education and exceptional children by Professor DeBusk, professor in the education department.

Dr. W. P. Boynton, dean of the physics department, will offer a course in the history and teaching of physics to be held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday at 11 and a course in electrical measurements Wednesday and Friday at 11.

There will be a beginning section for the course in general psychology and a new course to be given by the department in co-operation with the schools of journalism and commerce in the psychology of advertising and also a course in abnormal psychology.

In the department of economics and sociology there will be a course in the reconstruction of war industries open to freshmen given Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 8. A class in the principles of economics will be organized, also courses in public finance, transportation economics and rational world order, will be offered.

DEAN LAWRENCE RETURNS

Architect Attends Directors Meeting in Philadelphia.

E. F. Lawrence, dean of the School of Architecture, has returned from Philadelphia, where he attended a meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Institute of Architecture, of which board he is a member. Plans were outlined at this meeting for reconstruction work, especially along lines of education.

"The board of directors voted to request the department of labor to call a national convention of state delegates on industrial housing, attempting to save as much as possible of the construction legislation in industrial housing during the war," said Dean Lawrence.

While in the East Dean Lawrence visited art museums in Chicago, Philadelphia and New York with a view to obtaining special exhibitions for the department.

At Camp Edgewood Dean Lawrence

met Glenn Stanton, ex-'18, who was last year's president of the Architectural society. "He hopes to get back and finish his course to get his professional degree," said Dean Lawrence. He left at the beginning of the third term last year.

Upon his return Dean Lawrence was appointed chairman of a committee of the Municipal Housing company, by George Baker, mayor of Portland. This committee is to conduct a six months' campaign on home building. The purpose of the company is to aid men in owning their own homes.

Dean Lawrence upon request is to give a lecture on 'Industrial Housing,' at the Unitarian church forum in Portland on December 15.

FRATS ELECT BOARD TO HANDLE ISSUES

Council to Meet Wednesday to Decide Question of Eating at Friendly Hall.

At the Inter-Fraternity Council meeting held in Deady Hall at 7 p. m. Wednesday evening several questions of vital interest to the fraternities on the campus were considered. A tribunal was elected to handle such cases as may come up between the fraternities, composed of the following members: Dean D. W. Morton, Prof. J. A. Barnett and Prof. Bovard, President of the Council. Due to Harold Grey's absence from college, "Jerry" Backstrand was elected to succeed him as secretary of the organization.

The general difficulties and problems of the different fraternities were presented in a general discussion and it was decided to hold another meeting next Wednesday evening, when each fraternity will present its own individual problems. President Bovard presented the question of the fraternities eating at Friendly Hall. The proposition has been in effect at Harvard University, where, although they have no fraternities, the various clubs have tables for their own organizations and the men of each club mess together although all the clubs eat in the same mess-hall. President Bovard is very much in favor of such a movement going into effect here, as he believes that such a plan would be more economical for students who are members of a fraternity.

ANNAPOLIS EXAM. JAN. 17

Successful Candidate to Have Full Course at Academy.

The University will conduct an examination on January 17, 1919, to recommend qualified young men, residents of the first congressional district, to the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, following a request received yesterday from Congressman W. C. Hawley. Anyone who is a resident of the first district and fulfills the necessary qualifications is eligible; the applicant need not be a student of the University of Oregon.

The appointment is for the full course of four years at the U. S. Naval Academy. Applicants must be not less than 16 or more than 20 on April 1, 1919. A rigid physical examination will be given. The mental examination includes punctuation, spelling, grammar, United States history, geography, arithmetic, algebra, through quadratic equations, and plane geometry. Professor E. E. DeCou will be chairman of the examining board.

Further information regarding the examination and the regulations governing it may be obtained from the president's office.
