THE WELCOME OREGON EXTENDS

Oregon is prepared this afternoon to give the former students of the University who are returning from France today with the old second company of Eugene artillery a welcome which cannot fail to please. The old traditions have been maintained through the war period. Oregon's standing in Northwest Coast football has been maintained despite Oregon's large service flag.

This afternoon the men are welcomed back to Oregon as the varsity basketball team, which tied Washington State for the northwest conference championship by defeating O. A. C. last night by a decisive score, is playing the final game of the season with the Aggies for an opportunity to send an Oregon team to represent the Northwest in basketball. It has been a long time since Oregon basketball has triumphed in the Northwest but Oregon has maintained her former high place among the Universities of the Pacific coast and is prepared to extend her influence. The Oregon spirit welcomes back to the campus the old Oregon men.

1874 AND 1919 AT OREGON.

A student bent on doing some research work has found that in advancing argument to Eugene people to support the movement to build the first University building in 1874, it was said that the students would spend from $300 to $600 a year. It is interesting that the students of the University of Oregon are in these days of the high costs still within these limits.

However, if S. A. T. C. discharges count under the provisions of the bill recently passed by Congress to give $00 to all privates discharged since April 6, 1917, it will be a relief just now when arguments are being advanced for the building of the latest campus hall.

Final Basketball today. Baseball, or rain, tomorrow.

Professor Reddie reports another atrocity committed while he was in Australia. He sent a coat shirt to the laundry and got it back sewed up.

A humorous magazine is being planned for Oregon. It will be most needed along about March 21.

DEWITT GILBERT IS EAGER FOR OREGON

Many Old Classmates Seen in Paris; Intends to Enter Journalism.

John DeWitt Gilbert, a major student in the journalism department, who is now with the American army in France, at the office of the Base Censor A. P. O. 702, in a letter to Eric W. Allen, dean of the School of Journalism, has outlined in brief some of his experiences in France and his plans for the future. He writes:

"We are waiting wholly unawares of what the future holds for us in the line of repatriation. Perhaps we go next week, perhaps it will be June. One would have to go beyond Paris and even into the inner sanctum of Chaumont to learn.

"Peace, as you say, seems tame, but for us here there is one more great adventure at any rate, home coming. For those as young as myself, peace, too, brings a challenge for me to do my part in another work, if less fiery than war, at least an even more personal victory for oneself in the 'front' of the world.

Many Oregon Men Seen "I have been with my father but 10 days since and four months have passed since our Mediterranean trip. We are turning our thought now to one that will lead us to the good father 'Tiber."

"I have in the space of perhaps a month seen Ans Cornell, Sam Cook, Lamar Tooze, Joe Bell, Percy Boatman, John Wilhelm, Bob Atkinson, Fred Kiddle, Henry Trowbridge, Eric Lane, Colin Dymont, Herbert S. Johnson, son of President Johnson, and others whose names slip me now.

"Dean Fox, I believe, is in Paris now. I hope to see her tomorrow.

"I saw Mr. Dymont some weeks ago. He has been in Paris since, I believe, but I have missed him. He has had some wonderful experiences and done, what he usually does, wonderful work. The 91st, a gallant division by the way, swears by him.

"You asked my plans. I have wanted to tell you of them. Here goes.

Taking Literature Course "Wishing to get as closely as possible familiar with French history, art, literature and, in short, French culture, I am now supplementing considerable reading with a course in French literature of the nineteenth century by tutoring from a professor of the Guide Internationale, a connection of the great Sorbonne.

"I have also applied for educational furlough to be spent at Oxford. If granted, this will give me three months in that University.

"My more definite plans are to finish my undergraduate work at Oregon and to take a master's degree in the east. Then to enter newspaper work. Later, and here I may surprise you, I want to go into the instruction of journalism.

New Men Behind Old Faces

"The war is over and the A. E. F. is coming home, but it is leaving behind many men that America will miss. Men like Leslie Tooze cannot be replaced, but verily I believe that you will find new men behind old faces when the boys come home. We called the camps at home melting pots and the necessities of war polishers of the new manhood, but we will find that active service has set that manhood with undiscovered gems of character.

"The Louvre is open and I have seen part of its priceless store. Sunday I paid court to Venus De Milo. Next Sunday it will be Mona Lisa. Yes, I have been fortunate a thousand times. If worst comes to worst I believe I will be back for summer school.

SUMMER COURSES LISTED

Teaching Methods Subjects are Announced by Dr. Sheldon.

A series of courses outlining methods of teaching are to be offered at the University—summer session, according to Dr. H. D. Sheldon, dean of the summer school. This series includes several different subjects. Following is the list made up to date:

Teaching of English Literature is to be taught by Miss Mary Watson, assistant professor of English Literature, now on leave of absence from the University. Dr. W. P. Boynton, professor of the Methods of Teaching Physics; Professor E. E. DeCon, of the mathematic department, Methods of Teaching Mathematics; Dr. F. G. G. Schmidt, professor of the German language, Methods of Teaching German, and Professor A. N. French, assistant professor of education, Methods of Teaching History and Civics.

Both the Art and the Music departments will offer courses in this series.

The course in Methods of Teaching Music will be under the direction of Mrs. Anna Landsbury Beck; Methods of Teaching Art, by Miss Helen Rhodes, instructor in art.

BOARD WILL VIEW BUDGET

Expenditure of $235,000 Appropriation Not Decided On.

No definite plans were made for the expenditure of the $235,000 granted the University by the state legislature, at the meeting of the faculty advisory board Thursday evening, according to Eric W. Allen, dean of the School of Journalism and member of the board. President Campbell promised to have the budget ready for the next meeting of the board, at which time plans will be made to see in what direction the University will be expanded, said Dean Allen.

Delay in formulating such plans is due to the busy week through which the president has just passed.

E. H. McAlister, professor of mechanics and astronomy, was elected secretary of the board.

A committee is to be appointed to make clear to faculty members what would be done about the instructor's summer salary if he should die some time during the year. The members of the faculty are paid for the full year of 12 months, and it will be decided whether the salary for the rest of the year would go to his surviving relatives or not, if an instructor should die in April.

Herman Lind, chairman of men's debate on the campus, said today that the men would have the same judges as those chosen by the women. He expects to hold a meeting of the house representatives from each fraternity group within the near future.

MILITARY MAN ARRIVES

Lieutenant E. L. Cook, Assistant to Col. Bowen, Regular Army Man.

Lieutenant Earl L. Cook, new assistant to Colonel W. H. C. Bowen, professor of military science and tactics, arrived on the campus Wednesday evening from the University of Idaho, where he has been instructing in the R. O. T. C. for three months.

Lieutenant Cook is a regular army man and has been in the service for six years. He was commissioned at the Presidio and was with the 21st Infantry at San Diego for 14 months. He says he likes Eugene already and declares it reminds him somewhat of California. His family will join him in about two weeks and they will live at 913 Nineteenth avenue east.

600 Hundred Books One Days Record

The high water mark of this year in the circulation of books was reached in the library Tuesday, February 25, when more than 600 books were circulated. The average is between 350 and 400 books a day. This is the first time since the month of October that such a record has been made.

DYMENT COLLECTS CASUALTY DETAILS

Families of 1,200 Men to Get Information Through Red Cross.

The families of more than 1,200 men who were killed or wounded with the 91st division in France will shortly receive very full information as to the circumstances under which the casualties occurred, through the office of the Northwestern Division of the American Red Cross.

Lieutenant Colin V. Dymont, Red Cross searcher with the 91st, former professor in the University School of Journalism, has this information which he collected himself with infinite pains and scrupulous accuracy. Mr. Dymont is sailing from France with the 91st division and will be added to the staff of the Northwestern Division of the Red Cross as soon as he arrives in Seattle, which will probably be late in March.

Lieutenant Dymont, who is on leave of absence from his regular work as dean of the school of Journalism of the University of Washington, sailed for France in June, 1918, and was assigned to the 91st division as Red Cross searcher. Steadfastly refusing requests from the Red Cross to undertake important administrative tasks, he chose rather to remain with the 91st division and secure information for the people of the Northwest concerning the men who are not returning. In many instances, Mr. Dymont will be able to give exact information as to where the casualty occurred, what the man and his unit were endeavoring to do at the time, details of the casualty, exactly where the man is buried if he was killed outright, and names and American addresses of one or more men who saw the man killed or wounded.

Mr. Dymont will serve the Northwestern Division of the Red Cross through the courtesy of the University of Washington, which gave him leave of absence for foreign service and which has extended this leave to permit him to carry on this important work.

He left the University of Oregon in January, 1917.

MRS. CASTNER LAUDS Y.W.

President of Oregon Women's Clubs Tells of Trip.

Mrs. Charles H. Castner, president of the Oregon State Federation of Women's Clubs, in an address to the girls at the Y. W. C. A. on Thursday afternoon, told of her trips among the lumbering towns of the coast and the great need which is felt there for suitable centers of amusement. Mrs. Castner said, "If the women all over could only know how much the women in such places appreciate what the Y. W. C. A. means it would be a great revelation. These women must send their daughters long distances from home and they have explicit confidence in the Y. W. C. A. as their protector. Not only does the Y. W. C. A. look after the girls in educational institutions, but it takes personal interest in the girls who have come from the country to take the places of men in industrial work and who are now released. These girls are carefully provided for until they can readjust themselves to the new conditions. The Y. W. C. A. is the only organization of its kind which is in a position to help girls of all types and classes. A new drive to raise money for this year's budget is to be held in a short time, but plans are not yet formulated. Joy Judkins was leader of the meeting. Miss Eleanor Lee sang.
