"RESERVED" SEATS.

The faithful but snippy freshman girl waves her hand out over a considerable expanse of bench and says: "These seats are reserved."

This has been the occasional welcome Oregon students have received when they enter the University gymnasium to attend a basketball game.

To send some representative ahead of a considerable party to hold seats which those coming late are not entitled, is not democratic. While it may take away some of the present usefulness of freshmen in the University, the practice should be abolished at once in the best interests of a campus which heretofore in tradition and practice has had cause to be proud of its democracy.

Although the Oregon teams have finished the year as champions of the Pacific Coast Conference, there are yet to be played on the local floor the games in the state inter-scholastic basketball series which will be participated in next week-end by some seven or eight high schools from over the state.

This should be a good opportunity to correct the alien democracy of the reserved seat contingent. Where a student ticket admits, Oregon women are seated as long as the inadequate gymnasium facilities permit—sometimes the men get seats—but there are no privileged people, no "reserved seats."

SHOW 'EM A GOOD TIME.

Have you bought your fifty-cent season ticket to the state interscholastic basketball series to be played on the campus next week-end?

As a member of the student body of the University you are pledged to give support to this important event of the basketball season. The proceeds of the series go to the high school teams competing according to the distance they have traveled to participate as representatives of their section of the state.

If the proceeds of the contests do not give a reasonable amount of expense money to the high school boys who visit here, an unfavorable impression of the University will be the result.

It is early in the ticket sale campaign but the promise of expense money made to the high schools must not be forgotten. This is the first state championship series to be played at the University or elsewhere in the state and it is important that it is a success. Else it will lose the principal ultimate benefit—the acquainting of the high schools with the opportunities and conditions at Oregon to the end that a greater and greater percentage of high school students enter college for higher education. It is one of the duties of Oregon, to the state which supports the University.

A CREDIT TO OREGON

Faculty members and others qualified to judge declare the address to the jury by L. L. Ray, '10, the most impressive they have heard in a court room. Mr. Ray, as district attorney, was prosecutor in the case of the State of Oregon against James Fullerton, now convicted of libel against the University of Oregon.

While it is not the intention of The Emerald to give space to a dead and unjustified case, The Emerald does want to give tribute to Mr. Ray. His ability as an attorney and an orator makes his loyalty and interest in his alma mater conspicuous among the alumni of the University.

OUR PRESIDENT.

The keen appreciation of the students is expressed on every side at the most generous gift of President and Mrs. Campbell toward the women's building. The gift not only brings the much desired building nearer, but assures the students that their efforts along this line are backed by the head of the institution. The many benefit affairs begin to look worth while and with the campaign launched in Eugene the prospects for a women's building at Oregon in the near future are bright.

The need for, and advantages of this building have been elaborated often and the students who will reap the benefits appreciate the generous action of President and Mrs. Campbell.

7 TEAMS SURVIVE FOR NEXT ROUND OF DEBATE

osition stands, and with Herman Lind, head of men's debate, on the California basketball trip, it is probable that the 4 houses will meet on schedule for the elimination of three of the competitors. The shield will then be awarded to the highest point winner.

MISSIONARY TALKS OF CHINESE PEOPLE

Mrs. Mark Wheeler Says Life of Rich Woman is not All Joy.

Mrs. Mark H. Wheeler, a returned missionary from China, was the speaker at an interesting meeting at the Bungalow Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Wheeler, with her husband has been stationed, for several years, in Kia Feng, Wo, China, working among Chinese students, in connection with the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Wheeler is at present in France with the Chinese coolies, but after his return they will go again to their province.

In her talk Mrs. Wheeler told of the interesting ways of the Chinese people, especially of the women. She said, "It is not at all as nice to be a rich woman in China as one would imagine for they are kept in almost total ignorance and know less about what is going on around them than most of our small children."

"In many cases our missionaries have to take most ingenious ways to become acquainted with the natives, but after a way has once been opened it is not so difficult. The province in which we were stationed was among the very last to be opened to the foreigners and it was not until very recently that work among students could be started because of the superstition of the classes."

"The work has been progressing wonderfully however since the building of a large hospital and any one who would like practice in medicine or surgery would certainly be welcomed. Not only would he give service where needed but in return would gain experience of many cases which have never been known in the United States. It is the custom for the doctors to visit 275 cases in the morning and operate all afternoon."

Mrs. Wheeler emphasized that to be a missionary in such places was not a sacrifice, for one received much more than he gave through knowledge of the people among whom he worked; and that more and more people were beginning to realize this and answer the call to the foreign fields.

The Bungalow was gaily decorated with flags of various nations and girls dressed in native costumes of China, Japan, India, Philippine Islands and Korea, lent an interesting aspect to the talk. An illustrated lecture on Japan was given by Lois Laughlin and a tea was served.

CLASSES TO GIVE LUNCH

Domestic Science Students Will Prepare and Serve Meals.

Two practice luncheons will be given by classes in domestic science next week under the direction of Miss Lillian Tingle, head of the department of home economics. The first one will be given on Tuesday by the class in food and nutrition and the second on Friday by the class in food economics.

Both groups of girls will have guests which will probably be chosen from the families of the girls, at these affairs. The luncheons are given as practice work for the girls and they prepare and serve the meals, according to Miss Tingle.
