

MEN CHOSEN FOR TENNIS

First Doughnut Games Set for Wednesday; Racket Stars are Lining Up

The first games of the doughnut tennis schedule will be played tomorrow afternoon, and most of the organization are selecting their teams for the opening of the tennis season. Considerable interest in tennis is being displayed on the campus this year and the league promises to be much more successful than in former years. The officials of the league have ruled that no members of the varsity or freshman teams can play in the doughnut league, but it was also decided that until the varsity and freshman teams were selected these men could play on the house teams. In tennis circles it is somewhat doubtful whether there will be a frosh team or not.

All of the houses except the Kappa Sigs, Sigma Nus and U. club have their men for the teams lined up. The Betas will probably play Carter Brandon and George Beggs on their house team but both of these men have a chance to make the varsity so the Betas may have to line up a new team later on in the season. The Betas won the cup last year by defeating the Delt team with these same men. Brandon and Beggs are both good and they undoubtedly will be runners-up for the cup.

Delts' Trio Strong

The Delts have three good tennis players in the persons of "Mort" Brown, Kenneth Smith and "Jack" Askey and they intend to provide stiff competition for the cup aspirants. The place of "Mort" Brown, who is captain of this year's varsity team, will probably be taken by "Jack" Askey. "Jack" is a six-footer who hauls himself around the court with considerable ability, which he acquired at the Puget Sound college in Tacoma. Kenneth Smith is a player of real ability and no little experience. Last year in the interscholastic league in Portland Harry Waterman and Kenneth Smith won the championship in the doubles for Jefferson. "Ken" is a whiz at tennis and plays the old game all the time.

The Oregon club is also going to make a big scramble for first place, with Harry Westernman and Martin Siehel playing for them. Harry sure is good and the boy has all kinds of class. "Mart" Siehel and Westernman form a pair that is going to cause a mighty lot of trouble in the league this year.

Some Other Entrants

The A. T. O.'s have Chester Adams, Sanford Gehr, James Whittaker and Don Oxman to pick their team from. Several of these boys have used the racket quite a bit and may bring the A. T. O.'s well toward the top. The Phi Gammas will pick their team from Leith Abbott, Dow Wilson, Sam Lehman and "Bill" Holmes. Leith Abbott played on the Fiji team last year so the other players will probably be picked from the other three men.

"Bill" Paterson and Graham Smith will play for the Sigma Chis. Not much is known yet about this team. The Phi Delts will feature Russel Meyers and George Black on the court. No one has any dope on these boys but it is being whispered about that the Phi Delts are going to spring something. Lee Somerville, Randolph Howard and Bingham are possible representatives of Friendly hall. Howard has been playing lots of tennis lately and he may show something that will surprise the campus. In tennis talk, they say Somerville is quite a player so Friendly may be able to put up a first-class brand of tennis. Anyway there are going to be some mighty good games in the next few days and a grand old scramble for the crown?

MISS TINGLE AT SPOKANE

Reports Interesting Sessions at Teachers' Conference

Miss Lillian Tingle, head of the department of household arts, who was among the University representatives at the meeting of The Inland Empire Teachers' association held in Spokane, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week, says the session was very interesting, both from a general and particular point of view.

Miss Tingle, who is chairman of the home economics section, had charge of the program. Among the speakers she secured were Dr. Louise Stanley, Mrs. Anna Burdick and Mr. Hawkins, all of Washington, D. C., members of the federal agents of vocational and home economics training. Other speakers were Helen Lee Davis, of the home economics department at O. A. C., Miss Grace Gillette, supervisor of domestic art in Portland, Miss Bales, of the agricultural college of Montana, Miss Wilson, president of the Spokane home economics association and Miss Grace Craig, head of the home economics department at Washington state college.

Miss Tingle presided at a luncheon given by the Spokane Home Economics association to the visiting delegates. Miss Bales, newly elected chairman to the section to succeed Miss Tingle, also spoke at this meeting. The commercial club of Spokane gave a reception and dance at the Hotel Davenport for the visitors, who were also favored with a breakfast and several banquets during their stay in the city.

Tentative plans for the forming of a western home economics association to take in all the states west of the Mississippi were discussed at the association.

A most interesting speaker, according to Miss Tingle, was Mrs. Lucinda Prince, who gave a talk before the meeting of the deans of women. She outlined the work of her school, which is the graduate school in connection with Simmons college at Boston, for the training of college women for the teaching of salesmanship in the department stores. Mrs. Prince has been asked to stop over at the University on her way to California next week and speak to the young women on the campus, and it is probable that she will do so, according to Miss Tingle.

INFIRMARY HAS EUGENE DOCTOR

C. W. Southworth in Charge; Rules Permit Free Treatment During Daily Clinic Hours

Dr. C. W. Southworth, a Eugene physician, has been secured by the University to have charge of the University infirmary, which opened at the beginning of the spring term under the new health insurance plan. Registration fees for the spring term included a $2.50 infirmary fee, and this entitles the student to three weeks' care in the infirmary and dispensary care free of charge.

So far there have been two students in the infirmary and an average of 10 or 12 people in the dispensary each day. One day 24 persons were treated in the dispensary. Rules and regulations of the infirmary for the spring term of 1914 are as follows:

Free dispensary and clinic, open to all registered students of the University, faculty, and employees between the hours of 1:30 and 2:30 each afternoon.

There will be no charge for professional services given during the clinic hour, and there will be no charge to registered students for professional services in the infirmary when cared for by the University physician. The students will be free to have any physician they wish, but in cases they choose other than the University physician they will be responsible for the payment for the professional services.

Faculty and employees of the University may have the use of the infirmary at the rate of $3.00 a day.

The infirmary will be free to registered students of the University, where they will be cared for for the period of three weeks. At the end of that time they will be required to pay $2.00 a day. While at the infirmary the student will be entitled to meals, beds, ordinary medicines, physician fees, and nurses' care.

Free infirmary service does not include major operations or care of chronic diseases.

Calling the University physician to the house of residence during the day will be charged at the rate of $1.00 a visit for the first visit. The University will not assume responsibility after that. Night calls will be charged $5.00 a visit.

Each student, on entering the University is entitled to a physical examination in order that he may be advised correctly concerning his physical condition and what sports are best adapted for him.

TOOZE WRITES ARMY HISTORY

Story of 364 Infantry Will be Printed; Oregon Man is Taking Course at Sorbonne

Lamar Tooze, graduate of the University with the class of 1916, and now assigned by the Army to study at the famous Sorbonne, writes President Campbell from Paris that he has just finished a history of the 364th infantry regiment, written in collaboration with the regimental chaplain. Twenty-five hundred copies of the work, which will be printed in New York, have already been sold, he writes, to members of the regiment. Lieutenant Tooze has found that the law courses in which he enrolled stresses political economy and is not, therefore, of particular value or immediate use to a practicing lawyer. He is specializing, therefore, in the study of the French language.

Lieutenant Tooze's letter follows: "You will note that I have made a change of stations since last I wrote you. I was extremely fortunate in being selected, the latter part of February, to attend a French university and was very lucky in being detailed to the Sorbonne, here in Paris. I am taking a four months' course in law and a course in French also. I did not study French while at Oregon, and of course now I regret that I did not, but I have managed to gather a smattering knowledge of the language during my eight months over here and I feel that by intensive application I will be able to master it. The courses in law are really courses in political economy, and while they will be of value they are not the kind of courses that a practicing lawyer would be able to use to advantage. So, consequently, I am going to devote most of my time to learning French.

Paris Remarkable City.

"Just as large a part of the educational advantages, as I see them, is the knowledge to be gained of Paris and of the French. This is a remarkable city; it seems to represent everything of present-day and past interest. History is being made here, and I hope to get a glimpse of it, at least. I have been down at the Hotel Cullon, headquarters of the American Commission to Negotiate Peace, and have had several talks with newspaper men, advisers and others. One of the most interesting conversations was with William Allen White, editor of the Emporia, Kansas, Gazette, who at the time was deploring the cloak of secrecy which shrouded the work of the conference. Happily, more publicity is now being given to the proceedings.

"Before leaving the regiment I associated myself with the regimental chaplain, (Lieutenant Wilson, a Yale man) in the writing of the regimental story. By working steadily we managed to finish it before I left. It is to be a book of some 300 pages, containing about 24 pictures, three maps, and bound in cloth. We are much encouraged by the fact that some 2500 books have already been ordered within the regiment. It was a most intensely interesting work. We expect to have it published in New York within the next few months, and I plan to send a copy to the University library.

Oregon Publications Welcome

"Yesterday I was at the University Union, and while there saw Dean Priest. He certainly is a most enjoyable gentleman, and we had a fine chat. I was also much pleased to find, in the library, a 1918 Oregonian, which I had not seen; a copy of the Commonwealth Review, and some University bulletins. They seemed like a breath from the old campus."

Lieutenant Tooze's address is "364th Infantry, care Army Educational Com., Sorbonne Detachment, 76 Rue de Faubourg, St. Honore, Paris, France. A. P. O. 702, A. E. F."

"INTERNATIONALISM," FILM

Show at Hut to Tell of Foreign Openings for America

"Internationalism," a film showing the openings for America in foreign countries, will be shown at the Y. M. C. A. hut tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Edgar B. Van Osdel, secretary, announced today.

No entertainments will be given in the Y. M. C. A. hut this coming weekend or Friday night of next week, because of campus activities which will occupy these evenings.

The film which was to have been shown this Friday night will probably be shown a week from Saturday night, April 19. The picture is "He Comes Up Smiling," with Douglas Fairbanks in the lead. There will also be a one-reel comedy, "Bungalow."

In addition to the movies, the young people of the methodist church will assist in providing other entertainment for the evening.
