THE IRON WOMAN

Oregon students regret keenly the stealing of the "Iron Woman" from the campus of Oregon Agriculture college and the suspicion that it has thrown on us as breakers of a pact made between the two institutions two years ago.

The statue was taken from the campus without the knowledge of the University of Oregon students. The action was in no way sanctioned by the students at large and in fact but a very few knew of the matter until today. But one University man—an underclass man—was implicated in the affair and he will be called upon to appear before the student council to make amends for his act. The outrage was committed by high school students who probably did not realize how much harm they were doing by the rash deed.

With the annual football game between our eleven and O. A. C. rapidly drawing near rivalry will naturally grow more intense. We must manifest our spirit in a square, open, man-to-man manner and not resort to sneaking, underhand methods of blowing off excess pep. Such things as besmirching the buildings and the Aggie campus with paint or other stunts of rowdiness cannot and will not be condoned by the associated students. On the other hand, the Aggie students will play fair and our campus and "O" will not be molested.

We want and must have all the spirit in the world but let us manifest it by attending rooting and yell practices, practicing rooting stunts, organizing a band and preparing to outroot the Aggie men when they come over November 15.

THE RED CROSS

The American Red Cross will hold its Third Red Cross Roll Call for the enrollment of annual members at the nominal membership fee of one dollar, during the period beginning tomorrow, November 2, and ending

Tuesday, November 11, Armistice Day.

The war fund drives of the Red Cross for large sums of money for foreign relief are entirely a thing of the past, and the coming Roll Call is simply the annual opportunity afforded to every citizen of the United States to express his belief in the ideals of the Red Cross and his support of its work by enrolling as an annual member.

To all patriotic and public spirited citizens the necessity for maintaining a nationwide community organization of the American Red Cross is self-evident.

Among the reasons why this must be done, the following stand out with special force:

The war time work of the American Red Cross is not yet fully completed.

The American Red Cross is the disaster relief agent of the American people.

In case of epidemic complete organization of the Red Cross is indispensable.

The peace time program of the Red Cross is the preservation and improvement of the public health.

The new worldwide Red Cross movement has its inspiration from America.

VERSE AND WORSE

By Bill Bolger

Corvallis is so confident of the Oregon game that even the prize roosters are getting cocky.

O. A. C. may be good at judging cowhide, but when it comes to pigskin we will show them November 15.

The football men get dirty In their tussles with the subs, And now you know the reason They always have the scrubs.

Some said he did the shimmie But I will now declare, The thing that made him dance that way Was fleecy-lined underwear.

Housework is an awful bore, Said the frosh who held the broom. He cast a saddened eye about, And in one glance swept the room.

I am a well known athlete, I run a pretty race. I run a mile in record time Around the fireplace.

Remember, noble seniors, (With this we'll call a halt) A kiss without a moustache Is like soup without the salt.

JUNIORS AND SENIORS ATTENTION!

A photographer will be in front of the Administration building to take the "catch as catch can" picture of the juniors and seniors for the Oregon commencing Monday, Nov. 3, until Thursday, Nov. 6, between the hours of 12:30 and 1:30 p. m. He will not be there on Friday and Saturday, but will continue his work on Monday and Tuesday. The cost for taking each picture will be 25c during the days mentioned. After that they will cost 35c and more if the delay is too long.

NOTICE

Beginning Monday, all men in the freshman class should read the library bulletin board daily to see if they are posted for work on the bonfire. Any man unable to work must give his name to some member of the committee. Howard Belknap, chairman.

Senior Moustaches Not Only Ones That Are Causing Worry

Not the seniors alone are worried about the question of moustaches these days. The spirit has invaded the faculty and two of the most prominent professors are involved. The conspicuous ones are Dean Allen, of the school of journalism, and Doctor Bovard, professor of zoology. Their woes are many, but their cases are different.

During the summer months Dean Allen nourished, cared for and finally unveiled a small moustache. Someone told him he looked younger with it. But when the students came back and the change was apparent, lamentations were heard, especially among the co-eds. For they said that they wanted the dean to be smooth-shaven.

There were, however, one or two supporters who stood behind the dean and in front of his moustache. They were the few that held the balance of power, those who said that possession was nine-tenths of the law, and that Dean Allen possessed the moustache. But during the last week opposing sentiment has been gaining. The matter was broached at a meeting of Theta Sigma Phi, and it is rumored that a committee of ladies was appointed to work up a crusade against the moustache.

It is also claimed that the matter was slated for discussion at the last meeting of Sigma Delta Chi but had to be avoided because of the press of other business. The dean himself was at the meeting. If the various committees and press notices fail a petition may be circulated.

With Doctor Bovard exactly the opposite is true. The doctor has been wearing a moustache, off and on, for years. According to well-accepted reports, he would appear at class one morning with it and the next morning, without. How he accomplished it is a zoological secret. But for the last few weeks, with amazing regularity, he has been without the moustache, and his pupils are missing it. Now they want it back and back to stay. They, especially the co-eds, say that he looks younger with it. It is believed that as soon as Doctor Bovard finds out the general trend of public opinion he will act accordingly.

S. A. E. WILL INSTALL

U-AVAVA LOCAL CLUB TO JOIN NATIONAL NOVEMBER 7-8

150 Visiting Members of National Fraternity Coming to Campus for Ceremony

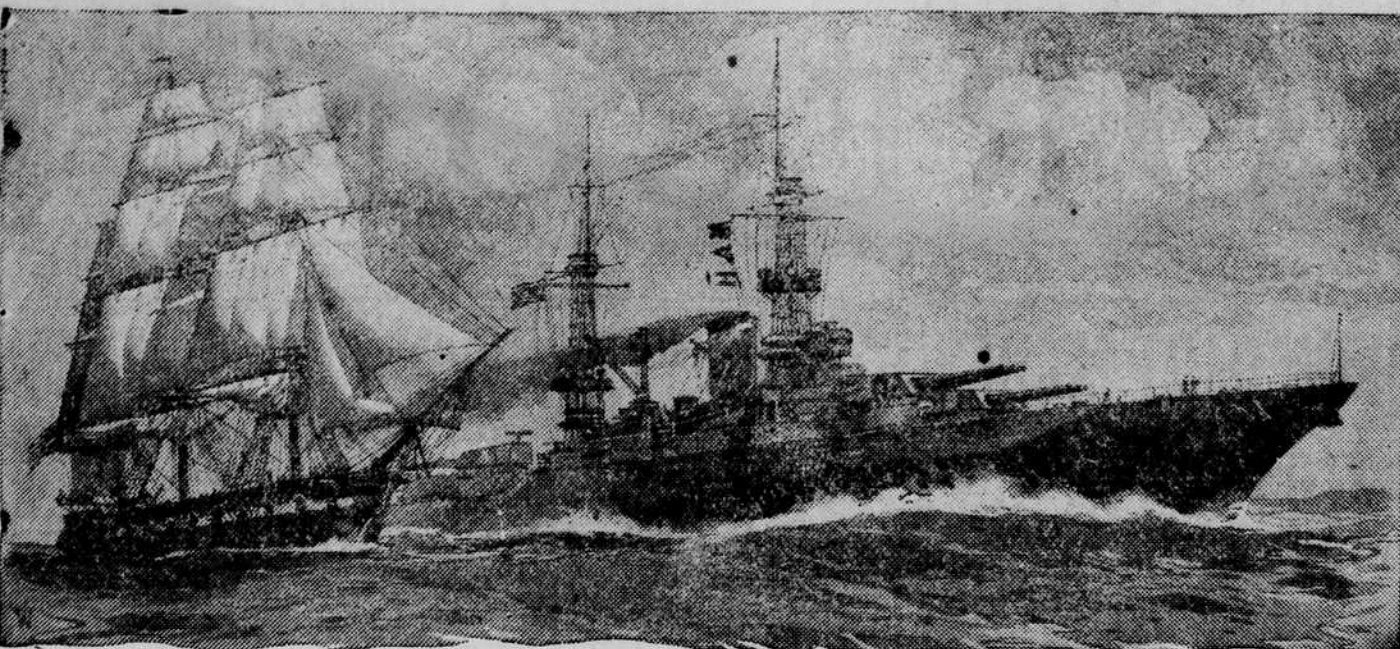

The installation of the U-Avava club, local fraternity, into Sigma Alpha Epsilon, from which the club received a charter at the convention held in Buffalo, N. Y., last June, will take place during the week-end of November 7-8.

About 150 Sig Alphas from all parts of the country will visit Eugene to take part in the installation, among them "Billy" Levere, Eminent Supreme Record of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Arthur A. Cook, Province Archon, and E. C. Pape, president of the Portland Alumni association.

Those who are eligible for membership into Sigma Alpha Epsilon at installation are Guy E. Armantrout, Cape Girardeau, Mo.; William Sharkey, Herbert Decker, Stanley Elzman, Forrest Littlefield, Joseph Springer, Clarence Hickok and Owen Blazier, all of Portland; Clive Humphrey, Spencer Collins, Wilbur Hulin, George Harris, Henry English, Henry Howe, Harry Devereaux, Robert C. Brady and Frank Johnson, of Eugene; Earl Powers, Seattle, Wash.; Harry Lindley, Enterprise; Herman Timmer, Milwaukie; Chandler Harper, Milton; Carl Liebe, Baker; Arthur Hicks, Canyon City; Adrian Rouslow, Astoria; William Beck, Dallas; Lawton McDaniels, Wallowa; Thomas Tuve, Salem, and Jay Butler, Monmouth.

The U-Avava club is the first local to receive a national charter since 1913. Sigma Alpha Epsilon is the ninth national to be installed at Oregon.

The "Constitution" of Today—Electrically Propelled

THE U. S. S. "New Mexico," the first battleship of any nation to be electrically propelled, is one of the most important achievements of the scientific age. She not only develops the maximum power and, with electrical control, has greater flexibility of maneuver, which is a distinct naval advantage, but also gives greater economy. At 10 knots, her normal cruising speed, she will steam on less fuel than the best turbine-driven ship that preceded her.

The electric generating plant, totaling 28,000 horsepower, and the propulsion equipment of the great super-dreadnaught were built by the General Electric Company. Their operation has demonstrated the superiority of electric propulsion over old-time methods and a wider application of this principle in the merchant marine is fast making progress.

Six auxiliary General Electric Turbine-Generators of 400 horsepower each, supply power for nearly 500 motors, driving pumps, fans, shop machinery, and kitchen and laundry appliances, etc.

Utilizing electricity to propel ships at sea marks the advancement of another phase of the electrical industry in which the General Electric Company is the pioneer. Of equal importance has been its part in perfecting electric transportation on land, transforming the potential energy of waterfalls for use in electric motors, developing the possibilities of electric lighting and many other similar achievements.

As a result, so general are the applications of electricity to the needs of mankind that scarcely a home or individual today need be without the benefits of General Electric products and service.

Figures that tell the Story of Achievement Length—624 feet Width—97 feet Displacement—32,000 tons Fuel capacity—a million gallons (fuel oil) Power—28,000 electrical horsepower Speed—21 knots

An illustrated booklet describing the "New Mexico," entitled, "The Electric Ship," will be sent upon request. Address General Electric Company, Desk 44, Schenectady, New York.

Interesting Book Suggested A book that is highly recommended for all men working their way through college, according to the Maryland State Review, of Maryland State college, is "Through College on Nothing a Year," by Guass. This is the work of a Princeton student who presents his actual experiences in obtaining a college degree.

Freshmen Range From 71 to 13 The oldest freshman at Harvard this year is 71 and the youngest 13. From this it appears that one is never too old or young to learn.

GIRLS!!! Are you planning a new frock or anything new in the way of dressmaking or sewing? If so, call and see me. I am conveniently located and can give you prompt service at reasonable rates. MRS. MURRAY Dressmaking and Alterations. 1139 Onyx St.
