NO EMERALD THURSDAY The regular Thursday issue of the Emerald has been postponed until Friday, at which time an 8-page Homecoming issue will be printed.

HOMECOMING The stage is set for Homecoming week-end. Indications point to the fact that it will be the largest event of its kind ever held on the campus.

The responsibility of making Homecoming week-end a success rests upon the shoulders of every man and woman of the University. The committee of students in charge of the festivities has worked long and hard arranging the details.

Our alumni who are returning to the campus have heard glowing reports about our progress this year. They have heard about our enrollment going far over that of former years.

Dr. John F. Bovard announces that the skull of a black bear has been presented to the museum of the zoology department by Mr. Charles Hanks, a citizen of Eugene, who killed the bear at Wog Creek, Douglas county, Oregon.

Seven Sophomores at the University of Texas were expelled by order of the Students' Honor council for hazing a freshman. The freshman testified that he was taken from his dormitory and left tied to a tree during a storm.

The Y. W. C. A. has been raising money at the University of Washington by means of a pie sale, which was held Friday, November 7, on the campus.

The charter was obtained at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon convention held last June in Buffalo, N. Y. The fraternity's petition was presented by Guy Armantrout. Sigma Alpha Epsilon is the ninth national fraternity to be installed at the University and the first since 1913.

A three-toed "ancestral" horse, an "aberrant" camel, a "fossil" egg, and evidence of some good-sized birds are the discoveries of two Amherst college professors, who conducted a paleolithic expedition. The three-toed horse stands about 3 1/2 feet high at the shoulder.

H. J. Mileham, a first year vocational training student at the University of Idaho, attempted to take his life Thursday, October 30, by shooting himself below the heart with a 44-calibre Colts revolver.

The enrollment at Columbia university last year was 17,000. This year it is 20,000, making the largest enrollment of any university in the world. Non-resident students number 3,700.

We must regard the visitors as our guests and make every sacrifice to show them that we are glad they are back with us. We should extend every courtesy to them. Greet them with the firm handclasp of Oregon students. Make them feel at home. Make them feel indeed that the University is progressing and that the splendid spirit they started in their undergraduate days still remains on our campus.

At the football game, the homecoming luncheon, the dance, students must be on the lookout to serve the old grads. Enter into the spirit of the occasion, sacrifice your time and energy for their comfort. Constantly remember that they are our guests and be on the lookout to do anything you can towards making the festivities a success. Make it possible for the old grads to return to their homes with a feeling that their alma mater is in good hands.

Louise Davis, president of the Woman's League, has called a meeting of the league members to be held in Villard hall at 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, November 13. This meeting is extremely important to every University woman as definite plans will be given out concerning the Homecoming luncheon.

A three-toed "ancestral" horse, an "aberrant" camel, a "fossil" egg, and evidence of some good-sized birds are the discoveries of two Amherst college professors, who conducted a paleolithic expedition. The three-toed horse stands about 3 1/2 feet high at the shoulder. As far as can be ascertained, the "fossil" egg is the prize cold storage egg of history, as it has been warehoused in the primal mud for the past million years.

H. J. Mileham, a first year vocational training student at the University of Idaho, attempted to take his life Thursday, October 30, by shooting himself below the heart with a 44-calibre Colts revolver. The cause is laid to the fact that he had been brooding for some time over the refusal of his bride of a few weeks, who was attending the University of California, to live with him in Moscow.

FACULTY AND STUDENTS TAKE PART IN BIG ARMISTICE DAY PARADE

Dance at Armory Prize Feature of Day's Program; Football Game Follows

With the band ahead and the faculty next, the University paraded en masse this morning for the Armistice day serpentine down 11th avenue to Willamette, where the high school delegation waited, down Willamette to the fountain at the depot, around the bend and back to the old armory on Seventh avenue. All marched lively, even the faculty, for all knew that Wayne Akers and his music makers were tuning up and that the floor of the old armory had recently had a new coat of wax.

"Hail, Hail, the Gang's all here"—bad words taboo—was adopted as the marching song, and never did song tell more truth, for there were ean Elizabeth Fox, Slim Crandall, Stan Anderson, Rev. A. M. Spangler, Anna Landsbury Back, Era Godfrey and even the young freshmen who insisted that the last should be first. Besides these there were all the rest of the big school, each one attempting to estimate how many dances could be sandwiched in before time for lunch.

It is needless, then, to say that everyone danced, all, of course, over a space alarmingly small, since the entire floor seemed taken up by other couples doing the same thing. A small floor, said a few, but a jolly big dance, said all the rest. When lunch time came, some flew east and some flew west, and they might have been dancing yet if 1:30 hadn't come, reminding them of the patriotic parade starting from the armory.

Following the parade, in which the American Legion featured, the crowds dispersed to the armory where there was a patriotic assemblage, and to Kincaid field for the football game between Eugene High school and Franklin high school of Portland.
