

OREGON WINS GAME FROM WHITMAN FIVE BY 23 TO 12 SCORE

Varsity Quintet With Changed Lineup Plays Much Faster In Second Tilt

DURNO IS STAR OF CONTEST

Visitors Prove Poor Basket Shots—Dement Fails to Shine—Latham Gets First Experience

Eddie Durno spelt defeat for the Whitman college five when he annexed 17 of Oregon's 23 points in the second game of the basketball series with the Whitman college five, played on the men's gymnasium floor Tuesday evening. The final score: Oregon 23, Whitman 12.

The game was a much better exhibition of basketball than was the first game of the series. Whitman did not show as good team work as when first seen in action, while the new combination which Coach Huntington used materially strengthened the lemon-yellow aggregation. Latham, center on last year's frosh five, was given his baptism in varsity basketball, taking Captain Lind's place, who was shifted to forward. Francis Jacobberger was moved from forward to his old position at guard.

Whitman Men Miss Basket

From the first toss of the ball, when Dement got the jump on Latham, the game was a real battle. Whitman had hard luck shooting and could not find the basket on several occasions when it seemed impossible that the basket could be missed. Durno scored the first point of the game with a field goal. The diminutive forward was the only man on the Oregon team that could hit the hoop during the first period. He made all of the 12 points the varsity made during the initial period.

More speed and aggressiveness was a marked characteristic of Oregon's playing in the first half. Whitman sent in two substitutions but they failed to revive the Missionaries' morale.

Durno won the applause of the crowd, when he took the ball from center, dribbled down the floor, and was knocked down by two husky Whitman men. He gamely jumped up again and in a second had the ball again. Oregon 12, Whitman 6, was the score at the end of the first half.

Teams Battle Hard

Both teams came back in the second half fighting hard. But Durno, with his wizard shots, proved too much for the visitors. The second half was easily Oregon's game but in spite of their handicap the Whitman aggregation battled well.

The playing of the midget, Eddie Durno, is the talk of all those who saw the game. He fought like a marine and pulled some shots that were deemed well nigh impossible. Latham, center, and one of last year's frosh stars, did very well in his first varsity game. He showed a lot of endurance and fight. "Skeet" Manerude, who was substituted for Lind in the last ten seconds did not have a chance to show his wares.

Dement again was the Whitman light, although he did not play up to his usual form. Both Dement and Rich threw two out of three fouls. Durno converted five out of nine tries.

LOAN FUND PROVIDED FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

extend the field of its work into the schools.

"We are ready to help the ex-service men, no matter what condition they might be in," said Mr. Convill. "Often we find that the process of getting back into civilian life makes study hard for the men, and at times some of the most worthy are only receiving low grades. Whenever a man, who by his service in the army or navy, has been unable to accumulate the money to pay for his education, wants to go to school and is willing to make an honest effort, we will do all we can to help him along."

Application for loans, and the handling of them is to be done through the University. The approval of the president is required. Special application blanks for loans are provided.

Mr. Convill, who is also the chairman of the American Legion Employment committee for the state of Oregon, is fully in touch with the need of the ex-service men. "We realize," he said, "that a man who saw service at the Mexican border, and then went to France, had little opportunity during three years in the army to save money to put himself through school. Throughout the entire nation provision is being made for men who are in this fix. Often through other conditions, men in the service for only a comparatively short length of time are in need of aid. We want to give every man in such a position the opportunity to take advantage of all that any state educational institution has to offer."

Mr. Convill left this afternoon for Salem, where he will have a conference with President Campbell on this subject. Arrangements will be made to provide for all men who need funds, through the University. It only remains for the men who need help, explained Mr. Convill, to make their wants known in order to get consideration.

PHYSICAL EXAMS EARLIER

WOMEN MAY BE ASKED TO COME BEFORE TERM

New System Would Allow Gym Work To Start With Other Classes—Delay Unnecessary

A new movement is afoot in the gymnasium department, according to Miss Mabel Cummings, head of the women's department, which will be announced in the next yearly catalogue. It is to the effect that hereafter all physical examinations, like entrance English examinations, will be conducted before college opens. In the fall term the students will be obliged to return to the campus some time the week previous to the opening of school and sign up for the physical examination which will be given before entering regular work. In the mid-winter and spring terms the examination will be conducted during the two days previous to registration day. This plan is carried out in most of the other large institutions, she declares, and Oregon has come to it now.

On account of so many freshmen registering in gymnasium this semester it has been found necessary, according to Miss Harriett Thomson, of the gymnasium department, to schedule a new class which meets on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at 11 o'clock, to relieve the crowded situation. The class is under the direction of Miss Catherine Winslow, and is expressly for the new girls who have just entered the department.

Physical examinations are now being conducted for the girls in the women's gymnasium and it is the desire of the department that the girls sign up for their examinations at once. Few girls have made dates for their examinations and this holds back the departmental work until the examinations have been completed.

PROFESSION FIRST, DECLARES WHITAKER

Loyalty to Clients and to Society Put Ahead Idea of Services for Profit Only

"The Professional Idea" was the topic upon which Charles H. Whitaker, editor of the Journal of American Institute of Architects, spoke at the Studio Tea last night in the Architecture building, before an audience of nearly one hundred students and members of the faculty of the University of Oregon.

Mr. Whitaker, of nationwide reputation, has been editor for the past seven years of the best and largest magazine along architectural lines, was expected last year, according to Horace Foulkes, who introduced the speaker, but he was unable to reach here at that time. Plans for an entertainment were arranged at that time for Mr. Whitaker, said Foulkes, but it was impossible to give the entertainment this year, he explained.

In his speech, Mr. Whitaker defined professionalism, and discussed the point as to whether architecture was a profession or not, and if so, if it were a profit-making system.

"What is a profession?" queried Mr. Whitaker. "Nothing more or less than an attitude of mind. Business ought to become a profession and a profession should not be made into a business. I am not indicting business men, for the profit-making laws make business seek profits. There is nothing more lacking in this country than money for educational purposes and there is a scientific law to find after going through business and profession."

In explaining the selfish interest in a profession, the speaker showed how in various organizations we become conscious of selfishness when we get more interested in the ideas of the different members than in the idea for which the organization was originally founded.

"The professionalist should not look to society to sell what it can to profit by it, but his work should be used to serve the profession first, the clients second, and society last. He should not be dominated by profit-making systems," he declared, "but should create relations between the professional ends."

PEACE FIRST, LEAGUE LATER, SAY STUDENTS; FEW VOTES ARE CAST

Undergraduates Show Little Interest; Faculty Favors No Amendment

"Make a peace treaty with Germany at once and settle the league of nations question later," says the plurality vote of the students of Oregon in their intercollegiate treaty referendum ballot.

Of the 64 faculty members voting, a decisive majority voted to ratify the league and treaty without reservations. Out of an enrollment of about 1600 students only 403 evinced enough interest in governmental affairs to cast a vote.

The intercollegiate treaty referendum consisted of six propositions. Each voter was allowed to vote on but one question.

List of Propositions

The propositions were as follows: Proposition 1. I favor the ratification of the league and treaty without amendments or reservations.

Proposition 2. I am opposed to the ratification of the treaty and the league in any form.

Proposition 3. I am in favor of the ratification of the treaty and the league, but only with the specific reservations as voted by a majority of the senate.

Proposition 4. I am in favor of any compromise which will mfwy any compromise on the reservations which will make possible the immediate ratification of the treaty and the league.

Proposition 5. I am in favor of the government's proceeding to make peace with Germany and leaving the league of nations to be settled afterwards.

Proposition 6. I favor a compromise on the reservations of such a character as will avoid the danger of defeating the ratification while still making clear that America can only be involved in war by a declaration of congress, that the domestic questions and the Monroe doctrine are entirely outside the jurisdiction of the league, that plural votes of any member are all disqualified from voting (and that on deciding to withdraw we are to be the judge of whether our obligations have been met.

How Vote Stood

The vote on the above propositions stood as follows at the final count:

Faculty—Proposition one, 24; proposition two, 1; proposition three, 1; proposition four, 16; proposition five, 6; proposition six, 16.

Students—Proposition one, 97; proposition two, 21; proposition three, 72; proposition four, 34; proposition five, 98; proposition six, 81.

The referendum was extended to all colleges and universities of the United States by the Intercollegiate Peace Referendum league in order to obtain the opinions of students and faculties on the question which has been a bone of contention for many months between the senate and President Wilson.

CAMPUS GETS TEAROOM

OPENING DATE NOW SET FOR FEBRUARY 1

Old Boathouse to be Transformed Into Attractive Lunchroom and Dance Hall

February 1 the Raceway Tearoom, especially designed to appease the appetites of the University students, will open under the direction of Mary S. Kieffer, of Corvallis, formerly a member of the O. A. C. faculty. Situated on the millrace, directly across from the steps of Villard hall, the Tearoom will not only share the environment of the campus but will overlook one of the most attractive spots along the raceway.

Work on the remodeling and decoration of the place is under way at present. The interior is finished in dull grey, the lunch room and dancing hall to the rear of the building, directly over the race, in rustic brown. A lunch room and balcony tea room is being arranged on the upper floor.

One of the Tearoom's specialties is to be the handling of private parties. For this purpose, several rooms are being remodeled upon the lower floor.

Breakfast is the only meal at which the Tearoom balks. Students who arise before noon will have to go elsewhere for their morning nourishment, but appetizing lunches and dinners will be served 365 days in the year. Light refreshments will be served at any time during the day or evening.

Miss Kieffer is to be assisted in the management of the place by Miss Carrie Robertson of Indianapolis, Indiana, who is at present on her way from the east.

The Tearoom building includes the millrace boathouse. Miss Kieffer plans to have several canoes and boats available for use by the students this summer.
