THE OREGANA

EVER in the history of the University of Oregon has there been a greater need for enlarged, bigger and better publications and on the other hand never before have these publications cost as much as they do this year.

The increased cost of paper, labor and in fact everything connected with the printing of our campus publications have increased almost 25 per cent over that of last year. As a result they must receive unlimited support from the student body, if they are to continue.

Wednesday a campaign for 1200 subscriptions to the Oregana will start. This campaign cannot fail. There must be at least 1200 subscriptions to the year book or its publication in present form will be jeopardized.

The Oregana, as the official year book of the University, is one of the most prized publications of the campus. Every student should want a copy of the book to keep as one of the treasures of college days. The staff this year is working steadily on it and present plans show that the publication will be the best ever presented. We must make its publication possible on an enlarged and better basis by answering the call for support and subscribing for a copy of the book.

SIX STUDENT LOANS COME

Checks Arrive From Soldiers and Sailors Commission

The checks for the first six men who applied for loans from the Soldiers' and Sailors' Commission of Oregon have been received here, together with a note for each man to sign, according to a report given out by the registrar's office this morning. Students desiring loans are required to make out applications on blanks given out by the registrar. These are sent to Portland, passed upon by the commission, and returned to the University with the desired check. No security is asked by the commission and no interest is charged, Carlton Spencer, explained.

TWO MOOT COURTS NOW

Enlarged Number of Law Students Makes Change Necessary

A small leaflet has just been issued by the law school giving the new rules of the Moot Court. The leaflet was printed by Dean E. W. Allen's class in publishing. It has been necessary to divide the Moot Court, which meets every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, into two sections because of the increased number of students. There are 31 majors in law this year compared to about ten last year.

The Power of Electricity in Transportation

ELECTRICITY has leveled out the Continental Divide. The steam locomotive, marvelous as it is after a century of development, cannot meet all of the present demands for transportation facilities. Its electric rival has proved to be far superior.

Electricity is the power which drives the trains of New York City's subway and elevated systems. It operates the locks and tows the ships through the Panama Canal. It propels the Navy's latest super-dreadnaught, the New Mexico. Electric mine locomotives have replaced the slow-moving mule and the electric automobile has also come to do an important service. Such achievements were made possible by the extensive research and manufacturing activities of the General Electric Company.

Electricity has become the universal motive power. It has contributed efficiency and comfort to every form of transportation service and in this evolution General Electric apparatus has played a large part - from mighty electric locomotives to the tiny lamp for the automobile.

Some Advantages of Railroad Electrification

- Saving the Nation's coal
Lower maintenance costs.
Greater reliability and fewer delays.
Ability to haul smoothly heavier trains at higher speed.
Operation of electric locomotives unaffected by extreme cold.
Ability to brake trains on descending grades by returning power to the trolley.
