Undergraduates and Faculty . Cooperate For Reception of Visitors

ASSEMBLY PROGRAM SHORT

Importance of Full Attendance Next Wednesday Emphasized by Workers

Appointment of student committees to aid in the reception of the University of Oregon's visitors on "open house" day, Wednesday, February 17, is the first step taken by Lindsay McArthur, chairman of the committee appointed by student council to co-operate with the faculty in arranging the program for the day.

Visitors are expected to arrive about 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and will be met by campus guides and faculty representatives who will conduct them on a tour of the various buildings and classrooms. GEOLOGICAL SOCIETY A special assembly will be held in Villard hall at 11 o'clock, but the program will be short enough to permit an inspection of Friendly Hall Condon Club Holds Business and Soand Hendricks Hall before the luncheon hour. The faculty has arranged for an open house day inorder to give

Are you mentally equipped to become a successful scoop hound or should you be taking domes-tic science or library training? Journalists will soon know whether or not they are qualified to enter the profession, whether their judgment, ability to pick out the interesting facts, and general mental state is up to top notch or not, since Dean Eric Allen has just completed arrangements for the inflicting of an especially prepared mental test on all students in his department.

All of . the would-be scribes will assemble in Villard hall next Tuesday afternoon at 2:15 to be rated, either with the numskulls or the efficient. Dr. E. S. Conklin or Dr. R. H. Wheeler of the psychology department will have charge of the test which was sent on request from the University of Washington where mental tests are given not only to journalism students, but to everyone enrolled in the institution.

Promise Sufficient From Students Temporarily Out of Funds, Says Ireland

The drive for subscription's to the Oregana, the official student's year book of the University of Oregon, was officially ended Friday night with a few more than 900 subscriptions secured. The committee in charge of the drive announced that the campaign will be conducted for the next few days until the required number of 1200 books are sold.

"In order to assure the publication of the Oregana, we must have at least 1200 copies issued," said Elston Ireland, chairman of the drive committee. The matter has now been placed before the students, and ARCHITECTS JUDGE although solicitations have ceased, subscriptions will be accepted for several days.

Needless to say, our friends the Smiths are well represented. There are three H. Smiths, to say nothing of the other repre-sentatives of that noted family. Eight in all. Count 'em-eight.

It is not an uncommon thing for FROSH LOSE TWO CAMES the correspondence study department to enroll men in lumbering camps, busy mothers of small children, and invalids who cannot attend school, each one of whom is determined that Both Varsity Quints Play, Airtheir particular handicap shall not prevent them from securing an education and keeping pace with the world. The latest manifestation of this spirit is indicated in a letter from a man who has evidently furnished his own handicap, but who expresses the determination to overcome it.

The letter is written from the Salem state prison and was addressed to President Campbell, who referred it to the correspondence study department. The man asks concerning courses in mechanical engineering, mechanical drawing and machine design, stating that he has had considerable shop experience. He says "I hope for my release in the near team cut down the O. A.
