WELCOME THE EDITORS

Editors of the state of Oregon will be guests at the Second Annual Editors' convention on the University campus Friday and Saturday. Editors are potent beings. If every student of the University can be made to realize this, the millage tax bill will be sent a good way along its road to success. The editors of Oregon have in most instances withheld any statement of their stand concerning the millage tax. Their attitude in the matter can not help but be conditioned by the impression they get of the University during the convention and the treatment they receive from the students.

The campus was "at home" Wednesday to the people of Eugene to impress them with the crowded facilities of the University and the need for more money. The citizens who attended will mold the attitude of Eugene toward the bill. The editors who meet here Friday and Saturday, although there may be only a few of them, are the men who mold opinion in the entire state of Oregon.

These editors are alert; they know already of the disadvantage under which the University works. What they need to be impressed with is the fact that the students on this campus are deserving of the sacrifice a larger tax levy would place on the taxpayers of Oregon. They need to be impressed with the whole-hearted good will of the students. They must be made to feel that they are among friends, not strangers.

There is a way in which every student can help. You can be present on the campus Friday afternoon and Saturday morning. But there is a still more definite way: It is highly desirable that there should be enough students present before and after the Friday afternoon session at 2 o'clock and the Saturday morning session at 9 o'clock to hold an informal reception in the name of the University and to furnish information about the University and its needs. These sessions will be held in the chemistry lecture room in McClure hall.

Be present and meet these representatives of the Oregon press.

If some fellows cut many more classes or gather many more "P's" they will be owing the University hours.

The women of the University are planning to give the men a leap year dance February 28 at the armory. Many of the men are beginning to wonder whether they have made a passing grade in "social" science lately.

Both the Republican and Democratic parties have asked for aid in the coming campaign from students of the University. We have yet to hear from the Socialists.

Popular Men Jilt Late Co-Ed Daters For Leap Year Hop

Queer things are happening in this age of women's choice.

After seeing a number of her fellow workers get turned down for the Leap Year dance because they had delayed too long in asking a man, one co-ed used her head wisely to avoid embarrassment. Calling the man on the telephone she gave a fictitious name and invited him to the affair with all the courage of a veteran pigger.

"All right then, if you can go with Mary Smith you can go with me," she said, and the deal was closed, as she gave her right name.

That's one way of getting him at this late date without asking a dozen, as some are having to do. There are many more. "What if some one has already asked him?" is heard on every side. "Get it off your mind," says Nancy Fields, "some of the fellows are beginning to look pretty anxious."

You can get your programs this evening from your house representative, or from campus representatives in charge of selling them. There will be thirteen dances and two extras, danced to the tune of the best music available.

Oregon colors will be featured in the decorations. Fir boughs will be draped over the balcony and stage, according to Elva Bagley, chairman of the decorations, who is asking the help of every woman's organization in getting greens to decorate.

COMPANIES B AND D WIN

HOOP SCORES 17 TO 5 AND 8 TO 4 RESPECTIVELY

A and C, Losing Teams, to Play Each in Final Battle for Honors

Companies B and D were returned victors in the opening games of the intercompany basketball league played in the men's gymnasium Wednesday afternoon. Company A lost to Company B by a score of 17-to-5 while Company D defeated Company C by a score of 8 to 4.

The games were fairly fast, the teams playing good ball for the comparatively short time that they have been practicing. Companies A and B took the floor first, Company B taking the lead from the whistle and maintaining it throughout the contest. The first half ended with B leading on the long end of a 12 to 2 tally. In the last half of the game both teams tightened up considerably and Company B scored 5 points while A chalked up 3. The final score ended 17 to 5.

C and D companies staged the fastest game of the afternoon, the end of the first period showing D company leading by a 6 to 2 tally.

The scoring in the first half by the two teams was the same, each making a field basket. Callison and Mooers did the scoring for D company, while Gavin and O'Kane chalked up the four points made by C company.

A great deal of interest is being displayed in these games by the various companies, owing to the silver trophy cup which will be presented by Bill Hayward to the company finishing at the top of the league. Each team has two more games to play. This afternoon A and C companies oppose each other and B and D companies battle for the honors. Tomorrow afternoon Company A will play Company D while Company B will play Company C.

The score and lineups of the teams Wednesday afternoon follows:

Company A (5)	(17)	Company B
Palmer (4)	F	(11) Veatch
Doddridge	F	Shattuck
Keech	C	(2) Youel

NUMBER OF STUDENTS MAY BE RESTRICTED

President Campbell placed the sum needed at once for immediate construction of buildings at $1,200,000. A heating plant would require $50,000. A science building and a commerce and economics building each require $200,000. An auditorium and library are estimated at $250,000 each. Dormitories for men and women would cost $100,000 a piece. Reconstruction of old buildings would require an expenditure of about $50,000. Future plans involve $1,875,000 for buildings.

Business Men Lend Support
 Frank L. Chambers, president of the Eugene chamber of commerce, spoke briefly in offering the wholehearted support of the organization for the campaign. He introduced L. L. Goodrich, of the First National Bank, who told of the value of the University to Eugene and Lane county. He asserted the support of the citizens of the city in the fight for the millage tax. The University, he said, brought in to Eugene $900,000 annually, which represents the second largest payroll in the county.

The campus presented a congested atmosphere to the several hundred visitors from Eugene, who took advantage of the opportunity to visit the school, according to the persons in charge of the program. The student guides saw to it that every congested spot was visited. Placards posted on the various buildings told of the crowded conditions and of the needs of the University. The library was a scene of industry all morning and was the chief place of exhibit to the townspeople.

A mass picture of the student body was taken in front of Villard hall preceding the assembly. A picture was also taken of the several hundred students and visitors, who were unable to gain admission to the assembly.
