

EVERY MAN OUT FOR TRACK THIS SPRING, IS HAYWARD'S EDICT

Houses Preparing List; to Keep Score On Number Who Participate

STARS TO STAY ON CAMPUS

Workouts Will Be Held Daily—Frosh Turnout Unsatisfactory, Says Student President

Everybody must turn out for something, is the policy adopted by the organizations and athletic department in getting every man out for some form of activity. Bill Hayward is disappointed with the support the students are giving the track team, so he is going to personally pick out the men on the campus that should be out for track, and have not been showing up. If these men do not show up their names will be published, says Bill.

Each house is preparing a list of its men who are out for some activity. The athletic department will then publish the percentage of men out in each house, in proportion to the number of men in the house.

Response is Expected
It is expected by sport followers that the men will respond to the appeal for track men the first of next term. Oregon had three men at the last Olympic games, and none of them had any track experience before coming to college. Bill says that a man does not have to have experience, the main requirement being hard, consistent work, every day.

The track men who are to stay during spring vacation will be picked by Hayward during the next few days. These men will be the most promising of the cinder artists. The tryouts for the different events will be staged the last Saturday of vacation.

Next year in the spring semester there will not be any swimming classes, and all the gym classes will be in the morning. Most of the class work will be in track. The men that show ability in the gym classes will be drafted for the regular track squad, which will work out in the afternoons. It is expected that most of the men will report for regular track work in the afternoons rather than take a chance of being drafted from the gym classes in the morning.

Frosh Report Irregularly
"Poor spirit is being shown by the freshman class as there are only about 25 frosh reporting irregularly for track, when there should be 100 every day," is the opinion of Stan Anderson, student body president and track star. "More interest must be shown by the first year men if they are to win the Junior week-end meet with the O. A. C. Rooks," predicted Stan. There will be a large number of preppers here at that time, and if the frosh are to save both the school and their class from disgrace they must get out and work, and win.

Of late there have been numerous questions over the eligibility of several old track men. The following three-year participation rule is the same for all sports: "No student shall participate in any one inter-collegiate sport for more than three college years in the aggregate, the three years of competition to take place within five years after the first registration at an institution of collegiate standing."

Rule is Interpreted.
The interpretation of this rule is as follows: "In the interpretation of this rule it is understood that any man who participated in any inter-collegiate competition previous to December 1, 1915, shall be eligible to compete for four years in the aggregate in a sport, provided the four years come within five years after the first registration at any institution of collegiate standing."

Probably the most important conference ruling is the new rule concerning the eligibility of service men. "Resolved:—That any student entering any line of federal service or other service with armed forces (this excludes shipyards and spruce division work) during the war will be given the athletic standing at the close of the war that he held at the date of his withdrawal from college."

The most important scholastic eligibility rules are as follows: The participant must be carrying 12 hours to be eligible; he must have passed 11 hours in the term of residence previous to participation; he must be satisfactorily carrying 11 hours when the season opens.

Few Oregon sport followers know that the University of Nevada is the Pacific coast basketball champion. The title was won by playing Stanford a post-season game.

"Dink" Templeton, Stanford, made 20 feet 4 inches in the broad jump the other day. Templeton is going big league in track this year.

"Art" Tuck, the famous all around prep school track star, is working consistently on the cinders. Tuck should lay the foundations of a great career this season.

Some of the much touted prep school stars will have a chance to show their mettle if all frosh are required to report for baseball or track.

Fifty-eight applications for the position of football coach at Stanford have been received. The board of athletic control refused to reappoint Coach Evans. The list includes some of the most prominent athletic coaches from the leading universities and colleges in the United States.

California has a careful schedule of pre-season baseball games arranged so that Coach Zamloch may efficiently develop the material. The first game was played with Santa Clara.

Andy Smith will not hold spring football practice at California this year. A new system of class games supervised by the varsity men will be inaugurated next fall.

Bib Carl is working hard to get the track on Kincaid Field in good shape. The oval is rounding into condition in spite of the adverse weather.

Snook, of Portland interscholastic fame, an O. A. C. rook performer last year, will handle the sprints this season for the Corvallis varsity. Snook is a natural runner, and is one of the dangerous men in the conference.

Spring football practice has just closed at the University of Washington. Allison is reported to have drilled the men especially on punts and field goals with the intention of increasing Washington's scores along that line.

Just as soon as the season closes in one sport the coach generally predicts bright prospects for the coming year. "Stub" Allison, University of Washington basketball coach, in reviewing the season says that although the poor shooting was costly, the floorwork was good, and "next year's prospects are certainly bright".

Washington has seven varsity men out for baseball, and Coach Allison is very confident of a successful season. The schedule at present includes only ten games.

Baseball is on full swing at Stanford, and pre-season developments look rosy for the Palo Alto school. Evans has a large number of men out, and is now playing semi-pro teams.

"Jimmie" Richardson is starting the Aggie baseball season with a zip-bang. The team is now in California where they will mix with Stanford, California and Santa Clara.

It is taking Coach Hargiss, Trainer "Dad" Butler, and three assistants to handle the Corvallis track aspirants. Veterans are said to be numerous, and the distance men are especially strong.

Work among the high schools was pointed out as a particularly important part of the vacation program. It was suggested that speakers who appear before high school assemblies invite the members of the senior class to Junior week-end festivities at Oregon.

Student Enthusiasm Complimented
President Campbell expressed himself as deeply gratified at the spirit with which the student body of Oregon is entering into the campaign, and especially with the showing made at Thursday's assembly.

"The students, after all," said President Campbell, "can put the best argument in favor of the bill, for no one can accuse them of a selfish interest in the matter."

Don Newbury emphasized the importance of filling out the report blanks furnished each student. These will be especially valuable in planning the closing weeks of the campaign, he said. Pamphlets for distribution and for study may be obtained in the library from now until the close of the term.

Organizations Aid Plans
On Monday and Tuesday all organizations on the campus are to have a short after dinner speech on phases of the millage bill campaign. It was suggested that these cover the material in the pamphlet of information recently distributed among the students.

"Don't forget," said Newbury, "that the promise of a vote is what you want. People may forget to vote if they are only convinced that the millage bill is right. Get their pledge to come out and vote for it on election day."

GLEE CLUB AT ROSEBURG

Men Singers Join With O.A.C. Band in Successful Concert

O. A. C. and Oregon blended harmoniously Friday night when their respective musical circles coincided at Roseburg. The occasion was a joint concert by the Oregon Men's Glee club and the O. A. C. band. The presentation of the Glee club was arranged for under the auspices of the Lyceum circuit and the concert was scheduled for Friday evening at the Roseburg armory. The O. A. C. Band was also scheduled to appear at the Roseburg armory on the same evening—the first stopping place on their annual spring concert tour.

Tactful arbitrators overcame the difficulty of the conflicting dates by arranging the joint program, so the two musical organizations blended peacefully and harmoniously throughout the evening.
