

SUMMER SCHOOL TO INCLUDE FEATURES OF INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Assembly Speakers Are Well-known Figures; 39 Are Listed On Faculty

Summer school this year will have many features of particular interest to students, says Dr. H. D. Sheldon, dean of the session. Charles ("Shy") Huntington will give a course in the coaching of high school athletics, and will have charge of the recreational activities for men. Miss Anna Fox will instruct in aesthetic dancing, giving pageants, and together with Dean Elizabeth Fox, will take charge of the social activities for the women, for which a varied program is being planned which will include something of interest to everyone, says Dr. Sheldon.

The speakers for assembly will include Dr. Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, who Dr. Sheldon declares, is one of the great orators of that city; Dr. Edgar Dawson, of Hunter College, New York, and Dr. Harry E. Barnes, of the New School for Social Research, New York, will each give a three-weeks' course of lectures on the subject of Americanization. Dr. Barnes will deal more particularly with the results of the war and the social questions arising therefrom, and Dr. Dawson will give attention to the teachers' problems in connection with this subject.

There will be 39 instructors in summer school, and every department will offer work. In the school of music John Stark Evans, the new associate dean, will be the head. Mr. Evans is just returning from New York where he has been studying under Goldmark and Ganz.

The physical education department for women has secured Miss Elizabeth Halsey, head of the public school gymnasium work in Wellesley, to take the place of Miss Mabel Cummings, who does not expect to be on the campus. Other instructors other than those of the regular faculty will be, Professor Lincoln R. Gibbs, University of Pittsburgh; P. W. Horn, superintendent of schools, Houston, Texas; Laura Ripley Mack, instructor in methods of art in the Oregon City high school; Chalmer N. Patterson, Albany College; Elizabeth T. Stout, librarian in the Lewis and Clark high school, Spokane, Washington; Naomi Williamson, of the department of public speaking, La Grande high school.

While regular organized classes will be offered only for the six weeks of summer school, many departments are expecting to make it possible for advanced or graduate students to work out special problems for which credit will be given. The library will be open for research work, and some of the laboratories can be used by making arrangements with the instructors.

Nine term hours credit can be earned during the six weeks. Each subject is arranged in a unit of three hours, making it possible to take three subjects, and an extra hour may be earned by attending assembly lectures.

The schedule for class hours will be out next week and can be obtained from the mailing department. The catalogues are now at the mailing department and can be secured by asking for one.

Summer school starts June 21 and ends July 30.

S. P. HAS SUMMER JOBS

A number of positions of various kinds will be open this summer for university and high school students who wish to work during vacation, with the Southern Pacific company, according to a letter received at the president's office from A. J. Gillett, local agent. The letter states that there is a prospect for a labor shortage this summer and the company is desirous of securing as many students as may be available. No information as to the particular kind of places that will be open was given, but it is stated that the positions would vary.

Detailed information can be obtained from A. F. Mercier, superintendent of the Southern Pacific company, Portland.

R.O.T.C. Work Finished For Year; 12 Cadets Will Attend Camp; New Equipment For Next Year

This year's activities of the military department ended today when the last group of cadets completed their rifle practice on the R.O.T.C. range. The work done by the cadets in musketry training has been very satisfactory, according to Captain R. C. Baird, commandant. Over 100 cadets have fired over the course and the average made by the entire battalion is slightly over 40 out of 50 possible at each position.

The highest rifle average made during the year was that of Charles G. Robertson. Firing fifteen sets, he averaged 43.5. His high score was 48, which he made twice from 100 yards, one of these scores being made at rapid fire.

Orvin T. Gant, Company D, followed a close second with an average of 42.4. He shot eleven separate times. His highest score, made from 100 yards prone, slow fire, was 49.

The highest individual score of the year was made by Vernon Bullock, of Company A. Shooting from a prone position at 100 yards, Bullock sent ten consecutive shots into the bull's eye, tallying 50, which is the only perfect score made from any position on the range this year.

Twelve cadets will go to the summer training camp this year, according to Captain Baird. Captain Baird will leave for the camp at California June 14. The cadets will follow four days later accompanied by members of the Oregon training staff. The camp lasts until July 28. The cadets who are to make the trip are William P. Allyn, Ernest J. Evans, Byron O. Garrett, George H. Houck, Arnold H. Koepke, Newton Langerman, Marc Latham, George Pasto, Ernest A. Richter, Emerald Sloan, Adam M. Wilhelm and Don Zimmerman.

The military department expects to have a large number of upperclassmen enrolled next year. Special courses of training will be open to juniors, according to the announcement made by Captain Baird. Seventeen sophomores have already signed up for the advanced work, and Captain Baird hopes, with the number of seniors who will enroll, to more than double this number next year. The two credit courses offered during the last term to all cadets enrolled in the military department has been so successful that it will be offered again next year, the captain states. A 36 page booklet is being prepared, outlining the complete course of R.O.T.C. work through the four years. These booklets will be placed in the hands of the cadets next year in order to give them a more organized viewpoint of the work which they are taking up.

Considerable new equipment will be at hand for training next year. Notice has been received by the department that new uniforms have already been shipped. Five hundred Springfield rifles have been received which will be used next year in place of the Enfields issued to the cadets this year. Sergeant James Reid has been detailed to remain at the barracks during the summer to supervise a number of improvements to be made there before fall.

The staff at present, beside Captain Baird, consists of three non-commissioned officers, Sergeant Reid, Sergeant R. M. Martin and Sergeant Frank I. Agule. It is hoped that next year, says Captain Baird, the staff will be enlarged sufficiently to allow more individual instruction and greater latitude in the work of the department.

hand, said the registrar, and everything ready for the registration at the date set. The juniors and seniors will register on Monday, the sophomores and freshmen on Tuesday.
