

RAIN? FROSH SHOULD WORRY; PEERADE IS REEKING WITH PEP

Men of '24 Kiss Oregon Seal With Reverence and Little Persuasion

BANDON LAD GOES FOR REAL SALT WATER DIP

Yearlings Taught University Traditions; Infants Drink Much Milk.

What's a little rain, that it should interfere with a Frosh Peerade?

The usual downpour yesterday, expected and traditional, discouraged the Frosh as it might have done so many ducks. The leaky clouds were the only dark feature of the occasion.

The parade started off in the usual manner with bare knees and coats turned inside out, and the Frosh lockstepped over to the seal where they were given the privilege of kissing the spot "that is as dear to the University as the flag is to the United States." Here to the surprise of many the promise of last year's Frosh class was lived up to and very little padding was noticed by the crowd that had gathered along the cement walk. On the way to town a number of the freshmen were paddled, but on the whole the clubs were conspicuous by their absence.

Downtown the committee proved that things could be done differently from formerly. Although there were water bags a plenty and a great abundance of soaking Frosh, the real feature was a fancy dive by a young man from Bandon. He had appeared in a brilliant bathing suit for the occasion but had not expected to take a swim in a big ice cream tub.

Two freshmen from La Grande and Klamath Falls delighted the crowd with a milk-drinking contest from baby bottles, but a well directed water bag forced the contest to a close and it was not decided which town was victorious. Yells and songs were also rendered from quivering lips but those Sophomore water bags were always more than welcome to the performing Frosh for they allowed him to make his escape.

Of course last night at the dinner tables the Sophomore men and upper-class men told all about how it had been different when they were Freshmen, but then that was expected, and now Dean Straub's "best Freshman Class in History" is well on its way at the University.

MILLER WINS HONOR

Rhodes Scholarship Granted To Oregon Graduate

Philosophy Is Major Subject; Course Will Mean Three Years Study Abroad.

Kerby Miller, Medford, graduate of University of Oregon with the class of 1920, has been awarded the Rhodes scholarship to Oxford University, England. Mr. Miller won his scholarship in philosophy, his major subject. The scholarship provides for three years of study abroad.

Mr. Miller appeared before the board of examiners in Portland about three weeks ago just before he left for the east to start work on a scholarship in philosophy at Columbia. He is a son of Mrs. J. K. Miller, of Eugene, and a brother of Miss Dorothy Miller, a junior at the University.

Among Oregon men who have won Rhodes scholarships in the past few years are Linton Ackerson and Rosecoe Lyans. Mr. Ackerson's studies were cut short by the entrance of America into the war. However, the scholarship was held open and it will be possible for him to complete his work there later if he wishes to. Lyans is now an instructor at the University of Pittsburgh.

DEAN FOX TO RECEIVE.

Miss Elizabeth Freeman Fox, dean of women, will receive Saturday afternoon, from 3 until 5 o'clock at Hendricks hall. All University women are asked to come.

Senior Shatters Portland-Eugene Mileage Record

Just as the memories of the records of the Olympic games are fading from our minds, along comes a man who claims the amateur world's record for mileage between Eugene and Portland. A total of 16,862 miles is claimed for this event by Carlton K. Logan, a senior in the University.

During the past summer Logan assisted the Oregon Electric to smash baggage on the Portland-Eugene run. With each successive trip the miles mounted up until at the end of the season the total looks like a statement of the distance from here to the moon.

Logan's travels have not been confined to local expeditions. During the last year and a half he has crossed the Atlantic, gone across the United States, and made numerous side trips. The total distance traveled in this period is estimated by him at about 30,000 miles and before the present year expires he hopes to raise it to 35,000. It is rumored that the bulk of this additional mileage will be made on a Fairmount streetcar.

KARLE, GREAT TENOR, WILL APPEAR HERE

Singer Was Army Friend of John Stark Evans

Theo Karle, noted tenor and rugged ex-service man, will appear in concert at the University on Friday night, October 29.

Many music critics declare Karle the greatest of American concert tenors, excepting John McCormack. By some the exception is omitted. The Seattle tenor will be at the time of the concert, on his way to New York and other eastern points, where he will sing extensively.

His Eugene concert has been made by a very special arrangement through his personal friendship with Professor John Stark Evans of the School of Music.

Theo Karle has a high, very clear tenor voice of unusual quality. Another quality which makes his singing of such high standing is that of his clear and distinct diction and enunciation. Theo Karle is a large man, tall in stature, and has the personality of a big, snappy and true American. During war times, he served as sergeant at Camp Lewis, in the same company with Mr. Evans and through Mr. Evans' testimony, Theo Karle could "lick the whole company."

Opportunity to hear the concert is to be offered everyone as arrangements are being made to hold it on the campus. It is hoped that it will be possible to secure the Women's Building auditorium for it, but definite arrangements will be announced later. In the hope of a very large patronage, prices have been kept down to one dollar plus war tax. This arrangement makes it a true campus activity demanding entire campus support.

Theo Karle's program has not yet been announced and will appear during the next two weeks. Ticket arrangements will also be made known through the Emerald columns in the near future.

SWEETSER TEACHES AT WASHINGTON SCHOOL

Botanist Spends Summer At Marine Biological Station in Friday Harbor.

Friday Harbor, 90 miles north of Seattle, was where Dr. A. R. Sweetser, professor of botany taught that subject in the Marine biological station of the University of Washington this summer. Immediately upon the close of the spring term at the University of Oregon and shortly before the commencement exercises, accompanied by his wife, he left by motor car for the north. Professor Sweetser had charge of the botany department for the six weeks summer session period, and upon the completion of his work returned to Eugene by easy stages.

Included among the attractions visited while on the way home were Rainier National Park and Lake Chelan, in eastern Washington. Upon the return to Eugene he spent another week in the field, browsing around among neighboring hills in search of botanical specimens, before the opening of college for the fall term.

THREE FULL TEAMS RUN SIGNALS; LIGHT SCRIMMAGE STARTS

Huntington Puts on Program of Hard Work for His Football Squad

MORE MEN TURN OUT TO FIGHT FOR PLACES

Season May be Opened With Game Here Oct. 16, Says Manager McClain

Three full teams ran signals on the field last night, and light scrimmage was the order of workout for the first time this season. Rain fell throughout the afternoon and made the field far from suitable for ideal practice conditions, but a stiff workout resulted nevertheless.

Coach Huntington and his staff are not losing any time on account of the rain, and with only a bare three weeks between now and the opening of the conference, every moment of practice counts.

"Tiny" Shields, the husky tackle on the frosh squad last year returned to the campus yesterday from the harvest fields of eastern Oregon and was out in a suit last night for the first time. "Tiny" will no doubt be a strong contender for a tackle position on the varsity this fall. "Flop" Johnson, another member of the frosh eleven last year, turned out in a suit last night for the first time. Johnson played a good game for the frosh at center and will be an aspirant for that position on the varsity eleven.

Little information is being given out at training quarters so far and hard work is the order of events on Huntington's program. Scrimmage will be carried on nightly from now on and a better line on the ability of this year's squad can be obtained within the next week or two.

According to Marion McClain, graduate manager, a game will be scheduled for October 16, as the opener of the season although the conference does not open here until October 23, when Idaho plays in Eugene. It is not definitely known who will play here on October 16, but an announcement will be made soon.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS SOON TO BE HOUSED

Physical Education Will Be in New Quarters

The women's physical education department will be installed in its new quarters in the Woman's building by the close of the sport season, according to Miss Mabel L. Cummings, head of that department. There, more than four times the present floor space now occupied will be available. The department of physical education for women has for the past several years been housed in quarters which were considered too small. This year, with prospects of a larger enrollment, the equipment is much more inadequate, said Miss Cummings. The old outdoor gymnasium is undergoing a course of reconstruction at present. When completed it will house several offices and class rooms. However, in spite of the limited space at first, the members of the staff are greatly encouraged by the sight of the new building nearing completion, said Miss Cummings, and are looking forward to a very profitable year.

The members of the staff this year include Miss Cummings, head of the department, Miss Harriet Thompson, Miss Catharine Winslow and Miss Emma Waterman. Miss Laura McAllester, formerly of the Emma Willard School, Troy, New York, is a new member of this year's staff.

Miss McAllester is a graduate of the department of hygiene and physical education at Wellesley and has had graduate work at Wellesley and in Boston clinics. She will have charge of corrective and remedial exercises, orthopedic work and individual hygiene. Her classes will include Senior Major work in corrective and remedial exercises.

PRESIDENT CAMPBELL WELCOMES CLASS OF 1924 TO UNIVERSITY

All Are Urged to Realize New Obligations For Service to State.

OREGON DEMOCRACY LAUDED BY SAVAGE

Villard Hall Is Filled to Limit in Initial Assembly of This Year.

With Villard hall jammed to the doors at yesterday morning's assembly, President Campbell urged the new students to realize and appreciate fully the obligations to themselves and to the state which their new position thrust upon them.

With over twenty-five new members on the faculty and an extensive building program in progress, President Campbell stated, the University is spending a great deal more money on education than ever before. This has been possible largely because of the student work on the Millage Bill last spring, when by their actions the students promised a larger return to the state and assumed a greater responsibility. This obligation the new students must realize in the fullest, in order that Oregon should amply realize on her investment.

Knowledge for Use.
"What is education?" asked President Campbell. "It is self-realization. Our purpose in attending college should not be merely to gain knowledge; the doctrine of knowledge for knowledge sake has long been a dead letter. It is far more important that we should learn to use it wisely."

One of the most valuable things to be had in college is the social contact on the campus, said the president. It leads to mutual understanding and co-operation which has been the basis of all civilized progress. The athletic field is the best moral laboratory in the world, it develops character, manliness, and loyalty. President Campbell urged that every student should make the most of this opportunity to mix and make friends.

Exactness Is Urged.
"Knowledge acquired at college was made to work, the President concluded. The motive for attending school on anyone's part is partly personal and selfish, partly social and altruistic. We should enter upon our student life with earnestness and sincerity, in order that we should finally acquire the most in self-realization, he emphasized.

Carlton Savage, president of the student body, in his address of welcome said every freshman should know that Oregon was small but mighty, mighty in athletics, in forensics, in scholarship. They should not forget that Oregon was forever democratic and that with her the campus "hello" was a tradition. "Lastly, they must acquire the Oregon Spirit. Four years at college are all too short," he concluded, saying that we should make the most of them by "starting early."

Madame Rose McGrew, of the school of music, rendered two solos during the morning. A quartette composed of Mme. McGrew, Laura Rand, George Hopkins, and Glen Morrow led the singing.

Invocation was pronounced by the Rev. J. Bruce Giffin.

DR. REBEC ON CAMPUS

New Dean of Graduate School Here for Committee Meeting.

Dr. George Rebec, director of the Portland center of the University of Oregon, and newly elected dean of the Graduate School, attended a committee meeting of the graduate council on the campus Wednesday evening.

Dr. Rebec in re-organizing the Oregon Graduate school states that every precaution is being taken to preserve the highest possible standard of scholarship. The doctor's degree will only be granted to students showing exceptional creative genius.

Every department in the University, said Dr. Rebec, is being shaped to form a more solid foundation for those who will continue through the graduate school.

FROSH TO BE GUESTS AT STAG MIX TONIGHT

Villard Hall To Be Scene of Revel; Stunts and Eats On Program.

Freshmen will get their first real taste of University fellowship at the giant annual stag mix at Villard hall Friday. Every man is expected to be there at 7 o'clock, and things will start at that time with a bang.

"Johnnie" Houston is in charge of the affair and promises some interesting things in the way of a program and eats. Cider and "do-nuts" will be served the latter part of the evening.

Older men are urged to come a little early in order to welcome the new men and help instill all the old Oregon spirit possible. College yells, songs and a general pep meeting will follow a short speaking program.

OPEN HOUSE PLANS ARE DECIDED UPON

Organizations to be Divided Into Two Sections

Because of the increase in the number of women's organizations on the campus since last year the student council has suggested a change in open house plans. Under this plan representatives from every men's group will be able to visit every women's group at open house which begins Saturday evening at 7:00 o'clock. The plan was endorsed by the local Panhellenic.

It has been suggested by the council that the head of every men's organization divide the residents of his house into two groups composed of representatives from each class, each group following one of the two planned routes. The route mapped out includes Delta Zeta, Chi Omega, Kappa Alpha Theta, Chambers Annex, Alpha Phi, Sigma Delta Phi, Alpha Delta Pi, Thatcher Cottage, Y. W. C. A.

In the second group are Gamma Phi Beta, Delta Gamma, Delta Delta Delta, Zeta Rho Epsilon, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Hendricks Hall, Haley Cottage, Pi Beta Phi. When the members of the men's groups have finished their route, it is suggested, they visit any other sorority which was not on their list providing they have the time.

STUDENTS EXPECTED TO OBSERVE RULINGS

Ignorance of Regulations Is No Longer Excuse.

The responsibility for observing all University regulations now rests entirely upon the students, says Colin V. Dymont, Dean of the College of Literature, Science and the Arts. The new booklet of University regulations which was placed in the hands of each student when he filed his registration card gives him full information as to all requirements toward graduation and rules to be observed during attendance at college.

Heretofore, says Dean Dymont, many students who had not complied with some of the regulations were able to plead ignorance of the rules. This book, however, gives in an organized definite form the information which is needed, and from now on, declares the Dean, it is strictly the duty of the student to know what is required of him and to plan his college work to meet the requirements.

The pamphlet contains information relating solely to the academic side of college life. A booklet of the constitution and by-laws of the student body was issued separately. The pamphlet begins with information concerning entrance requirements, English requirements, advanced and special standing, and amount of work to be carried. It explains the post system, probation, and grade reports. A table of contents in the front gives the subjects in the order they occur in the book, and there is an alphabetical index in the back of the book. Any point upon which a student is doubtful can be easily looked up and full and authentic information obtained.

MYSTERY VEIL LIFTED FROM DISAPPEARANCE OF ERNEST RICHTER

Missing U. O. Student Found In Ranks of Coast Artillery Corps

'23 STUDENT BELIEVED DEAD BY RELATIVES

Announces Purpose to Return to Oregon and Finish College Work

Deciding that practical lessons in the great school of experience were of more value than a college education, Ernest A. Richter, a freshman enrolled last year in the school of journalism, mysteriously disappeared from the University campus two weeks before the final examinations in June. The evening he disappeared he told friends he was going canoeing on the river.

A note found by Richter's room mate several days after the disappearance said he was going to visit Portland during the week-end via the blind baggage route. Telegrams later received from his mother in Oak Grove and a sister living in Portland inquired as to his whereabouts. A few days before the spring term ended Richter's mother came to Eugene and packed her son's scattered belongings. Ernest A. Richter, as far as the Registrar's office, relatives and friends were concerned, existed only in name.

And then one day to the ex-student's room mate working in the eastern Oregon harvest fields came a bulky letter from Ernest Richter, Private, U. S. A., postmarked Camp Lewis, Washington.

Richter explained that he only intended to visit Portland when he left Eugene that evening last June, but the call of the rails enticed him to travel the iron trail to the sunny southland. Once in the wilds of northern California his blind baggage traveling check was declared n. g., but he reached San Francisco on the second section. In Frisco, he tried to ship out on a merchantman, but couldn't get a berth for two weeks. Financially depressed and disgusted with his first wordy lesson, he enlisted for one year in the Coast Artillery.

Richter declares that he will yet graduate with the class of '23. With this intention he is preparing himself through the army schools and extension work.

HONOR FRATERNITIES ESTABLISH HOUSES

Phi Delta Phi and Delta Theta Phi Open Houses.

For the first time in several years professional fraternities are maintaining a house at the University. Both Delta Theta Phi and Phi Delta Phi, men's law fraternities, have rented or purchased houses and are making preparations for early occupancy.

Phi Delta Phi has purchased a house at 1360 Emerald street, from Miss Alice Capps. Preparations are being made to house 12 men and are expected to be completed in about a week. The house, a seven room structure, will contain a living room as well as study rooms for the members. According to one of the men, the latter will be furnished in "Spartan simplicity."

The house was bought after the close of the spring term of school and help in furnishing it is being given by friends of the fraternity. Pledges will be announced in a short time.

Delta Theta Phi has rented the house at 751 Twelfth avenue. It will be fully furnished in about a week or ten days. The house contains ten rooms and two sleeping porches and will accommodate twenty men. In addition a dining room is being fitted up and meals will be served in the house.

In 1915 a chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon maintained a house in the place now owned by the S-Maralda Club.
