TEAM STILL RAGGED FOR STRUGGLE WITH CLUBMEN SATURDAY

Coaches Dissatisfied With Recent Showing of Entire Squad.

"EDDIE" DURNO MAY PILOT LEMON-YELLOW

Kincaid Field Again To Be Scene of Annual Battle With Winged M.

"Spike" Leslie, "Jake" Jacobberger and "Bill" Reinhart, will in all probability be called upon to do the kicking for Coach Huntington's eleven in the game against Multnomah club, Saturday. The loss of both "Bill" Steers and Manerud means that the lemon-yellow team will be without the support of a dropkicker, but Coach Huntington has been drilling both Reinhart and Jacobberger in place kicking for the last week and appears fairly well pleased with the results. "Spike" or "Jake" will do the punting. They have been averaging about 50 yards in practice, for the past several days and upon one or both of them will probably fall the task of booting the ball in the Saturday game.

Coaches Huntington and Spellman still retain a sphinx-like silence in regard to the line-up for the Saturday's game although "Shy" stated this afternoon that he had no fewer than a half dozen combinations which he will use against the "winged M" team. Just who will start the game will not be announced until Saturday morning.

Coaching Staff Displeased.

An hour of scrimmage formed the program for the varsity workout Tuesday and the coaching staff was far from pleased over the results obtained. "The team's work was marked by sluggishness," Huntington said, "and at the rate they were going last night, they would be unable to put up a decent game against a high school aggregation." Spellman also characterized the workout as "rotten." Last night and tonight will end the scrimmage work for the week, and signal practice will be the order until Saturday's game.

"The team should be going good against Multnomah," Coach Huntington said last night, "and although I do not know what the club men may have up their sleeve, we will give them a hard battle." Multnomah always produces a first class aggregation and a good game is expected on Kincaid field Saturday afternoon, although it may be a little slow as most early season games usually are.

"Chuck" Robinson Injured.

"Chuck" Robinson, who played a back position on the frosh team last season and who has been headed straight for a line berth on the varsity this year, received injuries in scrimmage last night which will probably put him out for the rest of the season. "Chuck" had the muscles in his leg badly wrenched and it will be some time before they will begin to mend, according to the reports from training quarters. Tom D'Armand, who was injured in frosh football practice a week ago, is still out of the frosh practice and had a slight surgical operation performed on his shoulder last night, which will probably put him out for the rest of the season. These are the only two serious injuries which have befallen the squads this year, although minor bruises and black eyes are common.

Competition for Line Strong.

Another aspirant for a line position turned out last night in the person of "Pat" O'Rourke. "Pat" played a good game on the squad in 1918 at tackle and has returned to school this year. This means another battle for the line positions, where no one is on the certain list as yet. "Hugh" Clerin, "Scotty" Strachan, "Spike" Leslie, Karl Vonder Ahe and "Si" Starr are all battling for a tackle berth, and the addition of O'Rourke to this combination makes a still harder problem, providing O'Rourke plays up to the old time form he displayed in 1918.

The selections for the line positions are getting a little harder each day for the coaching staff. For guard, "Ed" Ward, "Fat" Mautz, "Ducky" Holmes, and Strachan, Starr and Vonder Ahe are all taking a whirl at it. The center position

Vocal Cords Strain in Praise of Oregon at Big Yell Fest

First Rooters' Practice of Year Held on Old Kincaid Field; Assistants Try Out For Berths, As Leaders.

(By O. REGAN.)

Memories of battle cries that spurred Oregon's warriors on to victories in the past, visions of conflicts that shook the very sod revived yesterday at the old-timers as the historic grandstand of Kincaid field swayed in cadence to the rhythmic shouts of hundreds of students, inoculated with the Oregon Spirit. It was the first yell practice of the year.

"Spell it!" commanded Claire Keeney, yell king. As a man, the crowd arose and in vocal pyrotechnics emblazoned the letters of their alma mater. Undisturbed by the promise of rain in the lowering clouds, freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors alike turned out to unlimber their larynxes in preparation for the Multnomah club game next Saturday. Green caps formed a verdant oasis near the center of the stand, which swelled periodically as some straggler fell victim to the cry of "Go get 'em, Frosh."

Fine Try-out.

Five candidates for positions as assistant yell leaders combined their pep-generating efforts to the delight of the assembled multitude. Roy Veatch, Dean Ireland, Leslie Nunn, George Pasto and Kenneth Watters, the last a freshman, told the crowd that they were peppy and petrified, and proceeded to show them how it's done.

A new yell, a product of the summer, made its debut. A combination of a standard yell and the Oregon "Oskee," it promises to be an effective medium for the display of full-throated energy.

"The Team! Ray, Ray, Ray! The Team!"

"Osk—owi-ii-e!"
"Wisk—ewi-ii-e."
"Oh-o-o-o Oregon!"

Thus it goes, with a promise that Oregon gridsters will uphold their fame.

Practice Every Wednesday.

Yell practice, according to Keeney, will be held every Wednesday afternoon. Arrangements have been made for an open football workout at that time.

New yells, new songs and new mediums for the use of an abundance of Oregon pep, are needed Keeney declares. He asks campus versifiers to get busy and produce.

The selection of the two assistant yell leaders is to be made by the student council in time for them to get their first official action at the contest with Multnomah on Saturday.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE TO BEGIN WEDNESDAY

Local Y. W. Will Conduct Campaign on National Basis

The Y. W. C. A. is to conduct a membership campaign beginning Wednesday of next week. According to Miss Tirza Dinsdale, secretary of the Campus Y. W., the campaign will follow new plans, on a nationally-adopted basis.

At the first National Conference of the Y. W. C. A. in five years, held at Cleveland last May, Miss Dinsdale explains, it was decided to conduct the campaign on a personal basis. Formerly there has been a registration table where each girl paid her dues and registered as a member, but this year she will be met more personally and be shown the expense budget for the campus work. She will be told about the association and pay what she feels that she can.

Friday afternoon at the bungalow, Vivian Chandler will meet her committee representing each house to discuss plans for the campaign and the purposes of the association.

The campaign this year will take a longer time than usual, but it is hoped it will be in closer touch with all the girls.

W. K. Newell of the construction department will take possession of the room in Johnson hall now occupied by the post office. Miss Charlie Fenton, the alumni secretary will occupy the multigraph room and Prof. Colin Dymont will occupy Miss Fenton's office.

DANCE IS FRIDAY NIGHT.

Due to an error on the Emerald copy-desk, the date for the first student body dance was given as Saturday, October 9, in a story which appeared on the first page of yesterday morning's Emerald. The dance will be held at the Armory, at the corner of Seventh and Oak streets, Friday, October 8, and will begin promptly at eight.

SHOT GROUSE FROM DORMITORY WINDOW

H. G. Moulton Oregon Graduate Tells of Other Days.

Grouse hunting from the front windows of the men's dorm was not an uncommon sport in the under-graduate days of H. G. Moulton, of the class of 1905, now of New York City, who, with Mrs. Moulton, visited the campus for a few hours Tuesday afternoon. It was the first time he had visited the campus in fifteen years.

Mr. Moulton and his wife, who was Alice Merriman and attended the University in 1906, are touring the country in their new car. After leaving New York they crossed the continent and have recently been traveling in southern Oregon and California. They have already covered 6,700 miles.

In New York Twelve Years.

Since graduation Mr. Moulton has been a consulting mining engineer and has been located in New York for twelve years. He was one of the only two men who completed the University course in mining engineering. A large part of his work in New York City has been connected with subway and construction excavations.

He entered the University in 1900, registered from Baker, and during his time at college lived at the men's dormitory.

Describing one of the first football games on Kincaid field he said that it was so muddy that when one of the Oregon players braced himself to catch a punt his feet became firmly fixed to the ground and he was unable to move until tackled by opponents. Straw was later scattered on the field, he said.

Old Experiences Told.

Mr. Moulton spent some time Tuesday looking around Friendly hall and describing to the younger generation some of the old experiences. Every room had a story of broken doors of midnight raids, and of icy tubbings.

At that time it was the pride of each class to see their own flag flaunting defiance to all others from the roof of the dorm. Mr. Moulton related the tale of a siege in which he and Henry McKinney, now a regent of the University, carried provisions to the roof and remained there for two days in the defence of their flag.

Mr. and Mrs. Moulton left for Cottage Grove Tuesday evening.

CHICAGO CO-EDS BUCK H. C. L.

Either for better or for worse the co-eds at Chicago are refusing to follow the lead in women's footwear by using high heeled shoes. This revolt against expensive, uncomfortable shoes is a great blow to the leading shoe merchants of the city who have laid in a large supply of fancy shoes.

ART TUCK IN PARTY TO RESCUE COUPLE CAUGHT IN CASCADES

Brother Jesse and Wife Held Behind Snow Barrier During Storm.

COUPLE IN MOUNTAINS FOR TWENTY-TWO DAYS

Huckleberries Save Lives; Indians Tell of Location; No Harm Suffered.

With his brother and sister-in-law caught in the Cascade mountains behind an impassable barrier of snow for twenty-two days, Art Tuck, former Oregon student and Antwerp javelin hurler, was forced to turn back after he and other searchers had penetrated to the Mt. Jefferson huckleberry patches in an attempt to rescue the imprisoned couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Tuck, Art's brother and his wife, were snowbound in a deserted ranger station near the summit of the Cascades where they had gone on September 10 to pick huckleberries. When the unexpected storms hit the mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Tuck were cut off from civilization. They took refuge in a deserted and dilapidated forest ranger station on Minto mountain, and when their food supply had been used up they lived for two days entirely on huckleberries. Fearing starvation, Tuck chanced a dash over the snow-bound trail. He reached the camp of two Russian sheepherders who gave him a small supply of food, enough to last him until he was able to break a trail through the deep snow when the storm abated.

Telegrams from Detroit, located on the west slope of the Cascades, informed John Tuck, father of the imprisoned man, that the couple could not be reached from that side of the mountain. Hearing this, the searchers from Redmond renewed their attempts to reach Tuck. On the Minto mountain trail they met Indians making their way out who informed them that Tuck and his wife were following. Tuck had been forced to go down the Willamette slope to Independence and then back into eastern Oregon by a trail which crossed the snow-covered divide at a lower altitude. They reached civilization fatigued, but none the worse for their experience.

The search for Tuck and his wife attracted attention in central Oregon because two rescue parties organized at Redmond and along the Metolius were unable to reach them on account of the fierce autumnal blizzard and deep snow. Art Tuck was in the first rescue party to leave Redmond.

U. HIGH SCHOOL OPENS WITH 161 REGISTERED

New Principal and 7 Teachers Compose Faculty.

With an enrollment of 161 students, the University high school, the existence of which is known to but few college students, has opened for the regular fall term of scholastic work. Rollien P. Dickerson, former principal of the Roseburg high school, has been secured to act in the same capacity at the campus institution, taking the place of Giles M. Ruch, who has a scholarship this year at Leland Stanford University.

Other new instructors include Thora Smith, A. B., history; Ethel Wakefield, A. B., English and commerce; Leo Cossman, A. B., science, all of the University of Oregon; and Anna Vogel, of Washington Normal, who comes from the McMinnville schools to instruct in mathematics.

Among the other faculty members are Margaret B. Goodall, A. B., University of Oregon, English; and Peter L. Spence, mathematics, and Edith Baker Patter, who teaches French and Latin.

The school, which offers grade work from the seventh to the twelfth, inclusive, is under the general direction of Professor H. R. Douglass, of the school of education. Classes are limited to 30 students each.

Tall Texan Sets New Records In Silk Sock Set

The individual silk sock record of the North American continent is now being claimed by a freshman who hails from the longhorn state of Texas. He bases his claim on the fact that he is the possessor of 78 feet of the silky luxuries.

This method of measuring socks is declared by the frosh in question to be mathematical, even if it is not customary. He has 39 pairs in his wardrobe and figuring two feet to the pair the total mounts up imposingly. Logical as this may sound, campus statisticians declare the method is really an underestimation for they say that the average length of the masculine sock varies from 14 1/4 inches to 17 1/2 inches.

The explanation given by "Texas" for the super-abundance of hosiery is that when he graduated from high school last spring each and every friend and relative decided upon socks as a present. The assortment includes many whites, blacks, browns, blues, purple and greens, and plaids.

"Texas" brought a handsome sweater from his home state with him but as he had wisdom enough not to wear it after school started and it is too big for his senior roommate it now rests among moth balls.

PROFESSOR SCHROFF BUILDS NEW STUDIO

Artist Wants More Time To Devote To Own Work.

A. H. Schroff, professor of fine arts in the school of architecture, is fitting up a private studio on Eleventh avenue across from Villard hall. There will be no classes held in the new studio but it is to be for the professor's exclusive use.

The studio, according to Professor Schroff is to cost about $2000 and it is his desire to make it as artistic as possible. At present the work is only well begun and Professor Schroff can give no statement as to when it will be completed.

According to Mr. Schroff he has given all of his time for four years to the University and unless he has some time apart from his school work which he can devote to himself his life as an artist will be short.

When the new studio is finished Professor Schroff will entertain guests of the art department and hold receptions for his students there. The old studio in the Architecture building has been dismantled and will be used for a classroom for Professor Schroff's classes. The furniture for the studio which was ordered from the east has already arrived.

Professor Stetson states that the Oregon Alumni at The Dalles are keenly interested in the development of the University, and many are planning to be present at the next homecoming exercises.

UNDERCLASS MIX TO BE HELD SATURDAY JUNIOR'S DECLARE

Parade of Upperclassmen Is First On Program; Usual Stunts Scheduled.

JUNIORS PROMISE TILT FAIRER, AND SQUARER

Huggins, Collins, Merton, Liebe, Michels and Cameron Make Up Committee.

That annual bloodless battle, the historic underclass mix, will be staged on Kincaid field at 12:30 Saturday noon, shortly before the University of Oregon-Multnomah club football game, according to "Chuck" Huggins, chairman of the junior committee which will oversee the affair.

Stunts & plenty will be given by each class, say members of the committee, and the rest of the program, which will include a parade of upper-classmen, yelling and singing contests, and various other competitive affrays between the sophomores and freshmen, should make the day one that will live forever in the memories of those who wear this year the green and verdant headgear.

Events Not Yet Arranged.

After the upper-classmen parade before the gaily decorated grandstand, which is the initial event on the program, will come the singing contest for freshmen and sophomore women, the yelling contest for men, the flag rush, the tug-of-war, the sang-bag scrap, the cane rush, and the tie-up battle, although none of the latter have been set for any particular place on the day's log-book as yet. The detailed order of affairs will be fixed within the next day or so, according to Elston Ireland and Howard Staub, who comprise the program committee.

That the mix will be absolutely square is the promise made by the junior committee. No favorites will be played, they say, and the tide of incoming frosh who will take part have been assured of as fair and impartial decisions in the contests as have been rendered by any other board of judges in previous contests. Bill Hayward, "Shy" Huntington, Bart Spelman and Physical Director G. M. Bohler are to officiate as judges.

Seniors to Preserve Order.

The junior committee is composed of the following: Charles Huggins, chairman; Wesley Shattuck, Melvin Merton, Carl Liebe, William Collins, Nicholas Michels and Virgil Cameron.

No announcement has been made by the seniors as to who is to captain the senior police force, which will preserve order during the afternoon, but it is said that a capable man and a capable force of assistant cops will be stationed at strategic points about Kincaid field to quell any disturbances that may arise during the heat of battle.
