

VETERANS MAY OBTAIN FIFTY - DOLLAR LOANS

Oregon and O.A.C. Ex-service Men Are Eligible.

JAN'Y 1 IS TIME LIMIT

Revolving Fund Created To Care for Requests.

Fifty-dollar loans are available to ex-service men attending the University and Oregon Agricultural College, according to a communication received by Carlton Spencer from J. W. Mulkey, chairman of the Soldiers' and Sailors' commission of the state of Oregon.

A revolving fund equal to the amount loaned to the ex-soldier students by the commission during the school year ending in 1920 has been created to take care of the loans to ex-service men during the remainder of this year.

The conditions under which the loans are made are:

"No loan to exceed $50.00.
"Maturity of loan to be beyond January 1, 1921.

"No second extension on any loan.

"Loans to be considered in the order of receipt of application, except that if there is not a sufficient amount of money in the revolving fund to cover all loans, that loans will be alternated between the Oregon Agricultural College and the University of Oregon."

It is the policy of the commission to call in all loans and close up its affairs on January 1, according to Mr. Mulkey's letter. The creation of this fund was an emergency measure to make it possible for men who were just out of the service to immediately take up their education. The commission believes that the emergency is now almost over since these men have had a chance to bring their financial status back to normal. For that reason no loans left over from last year have been extended beyond the first of next year.

Money paid in on loans goes back into the fund to be loaned again so the amount of money available depends on the number who meet their obligations on time. Mr. Mulkey's communication urges that the men meet these obligations as soon as possible so as to give others a chance to benefit by the money.

GRADUATES TEACH IN OREGON SCHOOLS

Forty-Five of Last Year's Class Receive Positions.

Forty-five of last year's University of Oregon graduates are now teaching in Oregon high schools, states Professor C. A. Gregory, who is in charge of the appointment bureau of the University. While there were many more calls for teachers in almost all subjects than there were available candidates to recommend for the positions, there is a particular shortage in physical education teachers, says Professor Gregory.

Requests for instructors to teach this subject either alone or combined with some other subject have been received not only from Oregon high schools, but also from Washington, California, Idaho and Montana, which Mr. Gregory thinks indicates that the same shortage exists in those states as here. Special permits may be secured for teaching physical education whereby those who do not have a University degree may teach in high schools.

The salaries received by last year's graduates who are most of them teaching for the first time, ranges from $275 for one man who is a principal of a high school, to a minimum of $110 a month. Professor Gregory states that the average salary was $125 and above.

Team Still Ragged Say Oregon Coaches

tion will in all probability be handled by "Brick" Leslie, who has been working there most of this season and who held down that position last year. "Bart" Loughlin is showing promise at the pivot position, however, and Coach Huntington has also been working Holmes at center part of the time.

Poor Defense Worries "Shy."
A pretty battle for the end position is developing between "Rud" Brown, tackle for the frosh last year, "Hugh" Clerin, last year's letter man at end and Neil Morfitt, who played on the varsity squad last season. "Hube" Jacobberger, is also showing up nicely at end.

Either "Bill" Reinhart, "Jake" Jacobberger, or "Eddie" Durno will pilot the team in Saturday's game according to the present situation. "Bill" and "Jake" have been alternating at running the varsity for the last week while Durno is handling the second team to the satisfaction of the coaches. King, Hill, Blake, Brandenburg, Dunsmore, Mead and Latham will probably all be given a chance to get into the Saturday's game in the backfield and there may be others in addition to those mentioned.

The lack of defense work will be evident in Saturday's game according to the coaching staff. It is this department of the game that the team has had the least chance to practice on during the past two weeks and it may prove the undoing of the team in Saturday's game.

The game will be played on Kincaid field according to the present plans and will begin at 2 or 2:30 in the afternoon. The exact time of beginning and the matter of referee and other officials has not been decided upon as yet.
