

'A' STUDENTS CHOOSE OWN OUTDOOR SPORT

Good Postures At Premium In Gym Department.

CAMPUS VISIT IS SHORT

Degree Taken at University in Mining Engineering.

All freshman women whose posture was rated as correct by the staff of the physical education department are to have their choice of sports until the completion of the new Women's building. Those who do not rate an "A", will enter regular gymnasium work. This puts a premium on the ability to walk and stand correctly, according to Miss Winslow, instructor in swimming and dancing.

Classes will begin this week in swimming, folk dancing, elementary aesthetic dancing, hockey, tennis, and canoeing, under Miss Thomson, Miss Winslow, and Miss Waterman. Student assistants, majors in the department, for this term will be: Ruth Wolff, assistant in swimming, Ollie Stoltenberg in gymnastics, and Naomi Robbins in tennis. These girls are seniors in the University and expect upon their graduation to take up work in physical training.

Thus far no figures have been compiled comparing the registration with last year. More than two hundred freshmen women have completed their physical and medical examination, which is a preliminary requisite to any gymnasium work. The physical examinations are being conducted by Miss Thomson and Miss McAllester, newly elected member of the physical education staff.

The gymnasium work, until the completion of the Women's building, will consist of sports and dancing mainly, owing to lack of floor space. At present, only the indoor gymnasium is available and as many classes as possible are being organized which can meet outdoors as long as the weather permits.

OREGON GRADUATE FINDS $100,000 MINE

Mexican Property Discovered By Smythe for Company.

Donald Smythe, a graduate from the University of Oregon in 1919 in the department of geology, and at present an instructor at Cornell in engineering-geology, found a very valuable copper mine in old Mexico this summer.

Mr. Smythe was employed this summer by the Phelps-Dodge corporation in their mining department at Bisbee, Arizona. His business was to look for mines in Arizona and New Mexico.

In a letter written by Mr. Smythe on August 20 to his wife, who was Ema Zimmerman, an Oregon graduate, he tells of finding this mine. He had been sent by the Phelps-Dodge company to look for outcrops of ore, and upon coming to this old mine thought it look interesting so investigated it. He says, "I went down the shaft and into drifts where the water was above my waist." Later he was told that there was a coral snake in the mine but he did not see it. He spent several days looking over the country, sleeping on the ground at night. The jungle was so thick here that it was very hard to discover outcroppings. The mine was in the center of the Yaqui country, which region at times during the summer was very dangerous.

The mine was recommended to the Phelps-Dodge company who bought it for $100,000.

Mr. Smythe, who is a very brilliant man was well known while he was at the University. He is a nephew of Professor E. E. DeCou. During the war he was overseas with the engineers.

DEBATERS TOLD TO TRIP

Michael Says Ability to Dance and Sing Prevents Stage Fright.

Professor Michael of the public speaking department has warned some members of his class in extempore speaking that he will require every candidate in the debating team to be able to dance and sing. He believes that these things are essential to effective speaking and an antidote for stage fright.

The warning came in the course of a discussion when a student ardently advocated that the football men should be given as many credits for graduation as the debaters.
