YOU CAN'T BEAT OREGON FIGHT.

This afternoon Oregon opens the conference season against the University of Idaho. Idaho comes to Eugene reputed to have one of the strongest teams in its history, trained by an eastern coach who has introduced a new style of play to western football. Idaho, in its first conference game, held Washington State College to a 14 to 7 score, which to close followers of the game means that the Gem State eleven is one to be reckoned with in the northwest conference.

A decisive victory for Oregon will mean that the lemon-yellow should figure high in the percentage column at the close of the season unless the unexpected happens. Oregon must win the opening conference game!

This afternoon's game will be a hard-fought battle all the way through, with the odds favoring neither team. A break may decide the game either way. Idaho may win!

Should the unexpected happen or not, Oregon men and women will have their first real opportunity of the year to show themselves and Oregon's guests what true Oregon Spirit is. Remember this: Whether we win or lose, you cannot beat Oregon fight!

Oregon will fight to the end of the game, till the final whistle, and will keep on fighting through the rest of the season. If Oregon should win this afternoon, it will be largely because of the unconquerable, fighting Oregon Spirit. Win or lose, you can't beat Oregon fight!

Attendance at last night's rally was all that could be expected, and Oregon Spirit was on hand in abundance. Matinee dances scheduled for the afternoon were over in time for the guests to participate in the rally, and the women's organizations, who held these affairs showed themselves loyal to Oregon. Now let's fill up the Oregon rooters' section with a "Thundering Thousand!"

MABYL WELLER BACK FROM BOISE, IDAHO

University Graduate Did Y. W. C. A. Work Among Employed Girls During Summer.

Mabyl Weller, president of the campus Y. W. C. A. last year, who graduated from the University in June, has returned from Boise, Idaho, where she spent the summer working in a Y. W. organization.

Miss Weller had charge of the recreational work there and worked altogether with employed girls. She planned hikes and picnics for these girls who worked in stores, laundries, and factories.

One important feature of the recreational work was the week-end parties, which were planned for the girls. Every week-end a group of girls went to the Y. W. C. A. camp, a four room log cabin in the mountains about 14 miles from Boise.

A tennis club was another feature of the work. Miss Weller got in touch with the girls through the employment bureau of the Y. W. C. A., of which she had charge. The industrial situation for women in Boise is quite bad says Miss Weller. This is largely due to the fact that since Boise is a mining town many of the people from the large cities finally come to live there.

Idaho Varsity Is Ready for Struggle

Captain Steers, "Bill" Rinehart, "Frankie" Hill, and George King is the backfield combination which Coach Huntington expects to send against the Gem State team this afternoon. This means that there is only one man in Huntington's backfield who has had previous experience on the varsity eleven. In Rinehart, who will pilot the team, Huntington has a field general who has already demonstrated his ability to handle the team in the Multnomah game. He is built from the ground up and although not heavy "Bill" hits in a punch and there will be many a sore shoulder on the Idaho eleven after they get through attempting to stop "Bill."

Captain Steers needs no introduction to the Idaho team as he has already completed two games against them in the former years, and his line plunging and open field running as well as his educated toe will be two of the strong factors in Oregon's favor on the gridiron today.

"Frankie" Hill is one of the men in whom Coach Huntington has a great deal of faith for pulling the ball through for yardage today. Hill is light but he twists and squirms like an eel and for running back punts there has been few to equal him on the Oregon eleven in past years.

George King, whose line plunging ability and fight has won him a place on the varsity this season will handle the fullback position. His work in the Multnomah game was all that could be expected and he may be depended upon for a consistent ground gainer in the contest.

Chapman, Mead and Jacobberger will in all probability get a chance at the game in the backfield today, and Coach Huntington will have Strachan, Morfitt, Vonder Ahe, McKinney, F. Shields, Starr and O'Rourke to use in the line positions as utility men.

Coach Kelley has Naggle, R. Brown, Fox, Coff, Parks and Patch for his sub linemen while Pearson will be called on in case of an accident to take a place in his backfield.
