After graduation from the University of South Carolina, Dr. Crosland entered the graduate school of Clark University, doing research work in experimental psychology. He took his Master's degree in 1914, and two years later received the degree of Ph. D.
The compiling, recording, classifying and summarizing of the results of these tests will require a great deal of time," said Dr. Crosland. "But with the fine spirit of co-operation between colleges, schools and departments found here at the University of Oregon, without which this work could not be undertaken, we hope to have the results of at least some of these tests ready for publication by the close of this year."

week, according to Coach George M. Bohler, who expects some very spirited competition for the cup. The championship will not be decided by elimination this year as formerly, but every team will play every other team and the winner will be the team at the top of the percentage column at the end of the season. Last year's cup winners, the Fijis, have a very strong team as have the Kappa Sig and Friendly hall. Mr. Bohler, who is in charge of Doughnut basketball, says the schedule will be put out the last of the week.

"SHY" GIVES TEAM
PLENTY OF WORK

Stanford will be defeated by at least three touchdowns when they meet the University of Washington at Seattle, Saturday. And in "Shy's" opinion this is about what Oregon should have beat Stanford. There is no doubt that a few of the Oregon players had rated the Stanford game as one of the easy bets of the season, a little over-confidence during the first half of the game resulted in a little slowness in settling down during the last half when the outcome began to look serious. From all reports Stanford was lucky to win and this will in all probability be the Cardinals' last win for the season.

The Oregon team is determined to lose no more games this season and fight is being instilled into those who have not already acquired it. The second string eleven is under close surveillance this week and it is probable that a few changes may take place in the line-up before the Washington game. Coach "Shy" Huntington wants to develop a little more drive in his backfield, and it will be this point which will be drilled into his backfield squad for the next week.

Bill Steers Shines
Witnesses of the Stanford game think that to have been one of the finest games Bill has ever played. Although handicapped by injuries received in the Idaho game, "Bill" worked like a demon against the Cardinals and instilled fight into the team through his efforts. He tore up the Stanford lines time and again for long runs, piercing the entire Cardinal defense to the safety. If Bill keeps up the work he showed in the Southern game he will be going better than ever when the Sundoggers furnish the opposition. Steers was not in shape in the Idaho game and has not been seen in action at his best yet this year. His performance at Palo Alto proves that he will come back stronger than ever before this season's schedule ends.

"Jake" Jacobberger played a good game against the Cardinals in spite of the fact that he was unable to get away for any long runs. "Jake" did the punting in the game during the second half on account of Steers' injuries interfering with his kicking. His punts were all gotten away for a good distance, and "Jake" is also a good passer. If "Jake" can develop the proper amount of drive, in which he is improving, he will make a strong bid for a regular backfield berth against the Northwesterners.

King Makes Big Gains.
The interference running of Steers was also a feature of the game Saturday, he ran interference for the backs in much the same manner as if he himself were carrying the ball. George King was good for several substantial gains during the game. King is not as shifty as Steers, but he is always good for a few yards through the line and he has the drive and the fight. These are the two main elements which Huntington will have present in his backfield when they meet Washington.

The injury received by Reinhart was ascertained to be only minor yesterday when an X-ray was taken of his ankle. Bill will in all probability be in the best of shape by the latter part of this week.

and will be working every night next week. He is another man in whom Coach Huntington appears to be placing his confidence as a hard fighter. His work in the south was all that could be expected during his stay in the game, although he was removed on account of his injuries in the second period.

Howard and Chapman Strong.
"Nish" Chapman and "Mart" Howard formed a combination in the game which tore up the Stanford defense in opening holes for the backs. Howard also played a good game on defense and was working all the time.

The work of the Oregon line showed them to be far superior to the Stanford forward defense. In the third period when Stanford scored their touchdown, they had four downs in which to pierce the Oregon line for two yards to put the ball over their goal line. They attempted to smash through the Oregon line for three successive times making but one yard in the three tries. On the fourth play the ball was in such a position over the line that the head linesman claimed the ball to have been over the line but was pulled back by the Oregon players after the whistle blows. The point was not argued and Stanford was given the score from the head linesman's verdict.

Shields Works Hard.
"Tiny" Shields worked like a slave in the game and played a fine game from all reports. "Tiny" is inexperienced, but his size and his ability to use his weight to the best advantage shows him to be a lineman upon whom the Oregon defense can rely.

Since the trip south a number of men who were on the squad the last few weeks have not showed up for practice. This is not the proper spirit to be shown, and if the team is to beat Washington and carry off the bacon in the O. A. C. game, the assistance of the second string and the third string and all the scrubs is a vital factor. The coaching staff is making an effort to get all the men back into suits and keep them on the job. It is easy to become discouraged at not making the first two games, but there are a number of other contests in which there will be a number of chances for the subs to get in. No effort can be spared if Oregon is to go through the rest of the season without a defeat. Every man must get behind the team.

LITERACY IN JAPAN.

To the Editor:
In the issue of last Thursday I noticed the following heading, "Few Japanese Educated," to a note stating that in Japan only one person in 6700 ever attends a school or college or university grade. The term education is hardly limited in current usage to the training of those who attend college, and as over ninety per cent of the Japanese have attended the common schools, and as the percentage of literacy is very high, I think your attention should be called to this misleading headline. The time has come when accuracy of thought and word with reference to the Orient is essential. This was probably a careless slip—let us hope it may not be repeated.

Yours very truly,
ELDON GRIFFIN.
