ARCHITECTURE DEAN

Construction Foremen of Campus Buildings Entertained at Dinner By E. F. Lawrence.

E. F. Lawrence, dean of architecture, entertained all the construction foremen employed on campus buildings with an informal dinner at the Rainbow Wednesday evening. The affair was purely social, "shop" being left entirely out of the conversation. A whole hearted "get acquainted" was enjoyed by the following: Dean Lawrence, W. K. Newell, superintendent of properties; F. H. Miles, chief of construction; J. Spores, superintendent of construction; W. A. Weaver, superintendent of the school of education; J. E. Milligan, superintendent of the school of commerce; Judson Switzer, superintendent of the new woman's dormitory; Charles Turner, superintendent of the new open air gym; T. Richardson, superintendent of alterations on the old gym.

University of Washington. The responding yells seemed to answer the question to his satisfaction.

New Song Is Sung.

"Boys, Hold That Line," a new football song composed by George Pasto, was sung at the assembly for the first time, the men's and women's glee clubs leading. Efforts will be made to have the individual students practice it so that it can be used during the Homecoming game.

Frank Jue, tenor, sang "Thora" and "Mother Machree," two selections that seemingly, from the applause, made a big "hit" with the assemblage.

Yelling, led by Dean Ireland, concluded the program.

Jake Jacobberger will pilot the team is yet in doubt.

King is so far the best-looking bet for the fullback position and from Blake, Chapman, Mead, Holmes, Jacobberger and Hill, the other back will be selected.

Fumbles should not mar the Washington game. To a few costly fumbles which the Lemon-Yellow made in the game against Stanford can be laid the blame for losing the game. Oregon fumbled seven times during the contest, and this fault must be eliminated if the Sun-doggers are to be beaten. Coach Huntington hopes to have a perfect smooth running machine to put into the game against the Northerners and he is working hard this week with this idea in mind.
