THE INTERCOLLEGIATE INFLUENCE

This week-end the University will be hosts to representatives from practically every college publication on the coast, representing institutions from British Columbia to California, who will meet here in the first intercollegiate editorial gathering ever held in the west. The men who will come to the University for the conference to be held today and tomorrow are the leaders of their respective institutions, and it falls upon every loyal Oregonian to see that these men take home with them the best impression of every-day life of the University they can gather.

The University of Oregon was selected as the meeting place of the first conference of this nature ever held in the west, not entirely because of its central location, but because the name of Oregon, the high standard of its scholarship, the spirit and democracy of its students and the hospitable treatment which Oregon always accords its guests has been heralded everywhere. Oregon is exceedingly fortunate to secure this meeting, and there is no doubt but that its students realize the value of hospitable treatment to such guests.

Co operation and harmony between the institutions of the coast can be effected best through co-operation and harmony between the student publications of these institutions. Problems which confront student publications will be threshed out at the conference, a working association of newspapers formed, and possibly an intercollegiate news service inaugurated.

Oregon is glad to welcome such men to its campus, satisfied that in comparing the Oregon campus with that of their own schools, the good name of the University of Oregon will be upheld.

In referring to a victory of the University of Southern California over Pomona college, the "Trojan," student publication of the former institution, says: "The spirit that made Oregon hold on her one-yard line against Harvard on the first day of 1920, when those two mighty teams were battling for the championship of America, is the same kind of spirit that possessed the Trojans (U. S. C.) on Claremont field." Oregon's fighting spirit is a factor which every other football eleven realizes they have to contend with. Saturday, on Hayward field, as yet unblemished by defeat, Washington may find that Oregon's fighting spirit will prove a factor that will decide the contest.

Oregon boasts of its democracy, and yet there are students who wish to make class dances formal. In such instances as the Junior Prom, where it is not necessary that every student of the University be present, strict formality adds to the luster of the occasion, but in the case of other all-University dances held during the year when it is desired that everyone attend, it is unfair to the majority that such dances be formal. The expense of such affairs, along with its necessary exclusiveness, would tend to kill the Oregon democracy of which we are so proud.

night, Huntington sending his scrub backfield into them for over half an hour. At the end of this period they were put on the offensive in holding while "Spike" Leslie and "Bill" Steers booted some punts. With two regulars out of it the line will necessarily not be up to the standard, but what is lost will be made up in fight and Washington will have a hard time making yardage through Oregon's forward defense. Both "Spike" Leslie and "Tiny" Shields are bulwarks of strength on defense as the Sundoggers will find out after driving into them a few times.

Neither Reinhart nor Hill have been used a great deal in the backfield position this week and from all appearances the backs will line up with Captain "Bill" Steers at quarter, King at full, and "Nish" Chapman and "Pete" Mead at halves. "Nish" has not been seen in action with the lemon-yellow offense on the Oregon gridiron yet this year, but he has been fighting hard in practice and it looks as if he may start at half, Saturday.

"Pete" Mead played a bang-up game against the Idaho eleven during the last period of the game and he did not get into the Stanford contest, so that he is in perfect trim to work against the Washington eleven. Mead and King are both playing their first season with the varsity. Chapman made his letter last year. Captain "Bill" Steers handled the team from the quarterback position last year and no fear need be felt for this department of the line-up.

"Bill" Steers and "Spike" Leslie will do the punting against the Washington eleven, from all indications. They have both been worked consistently in this capacity during the past week and some good distance averages have resulted. Oregon will not be weak in this department of the game Saturday.

INFIRMARY CALLS ARE MANY.

Six hundred and sixty-six students received medical attention at the University infirmary during the month of October, according to the report of Dr. E. H. Sawyer, University physician. Of this number 28 were cared for at the infirmary, the remaining 638 being the daily calls made by students averaging 12 for the men and 8 for the women. Football was given by Dr. Sawyer as one cause for the large number of men requiring medical aid.

OHIO STATE GIRLS SELL DATES.

The girls at Ohio State College have gone into a strange business, that of selling dates. Reports have it that it is not as bad as it sounds for the receipts will go to the stadium fund.

"Just Around the Corner" At The Eugene Theater

After achieving a notable New York success G. M. Anderson's comedy of good cheer and optimism "Just Around the Corner," from the pens of George V. Hobart and Herbert Hall Winslow, is now making a tour of the Pacific coast with practically the same success it achieved in the eastern metropolis.

"Just Around the Corner" is booked to appear in the Eugene Theatre on Thursday for an engagement of one night.

George V. Hobart is noted for many of the biggest comedy hits in recent years. His latest effort is "Buddies," which has been acclaimed a genuine triumph.

G. M. Anderson has to his credit as a producer many of the big successes of the legitimate and musical comedy field during the past decade. His "Seven Little Widows," "Yes or No," "I Love You," and this last "Just Around the Corner" have earned him an enviable reputation as a producer. His present Pacific coast offering will set a new standard in western productions for it boasts a cast of exceptional calibre being headed by Edna Wallace Hopper and including Oral Humphreys, Frank Wallace, Frank Darien, Miss Leona Anderson and others of note.

ARCHITECTS TO JUDGE

Portland Men to Pass On Plans for Small College Campus.

Two noted architects of Portland arrived in Eugene yesterday to serve as a jury on the plans being made by students in architecture at the present time. The men, E. T. Mische, former president of the National Society of Landscape Architects, and W. G. Holford, former president of the Oregon chapter of the American Institute of Architects, have each had much experience and should prove adequate judges, according to authorities at the school of architecture.

The principal problem at this time will be the plans for a small college campus to accommodate about 500 students. These plans have been under way since the opening of the fall term and some very remarkable and varied work has been done, says Professor Schreff, who is actively interested in the visit of the Portland men.

Mr. Holford is associated with Dean Lawrence in business at Portland.

Y. W. C. A. HEAD INVITED.

The Student Executive of the Y. W. C. A., Miss Alice Bailey, whose headquarters are in Seattle, will visit the Oregon schools sometime in December. The local Y. W. cabinet voted at their meeting Tuesday evening to extend an invitation to visit the campus during the week of December 6.

When You Learn to DANCE

You should choose a school with an established reputation, thereby assuring yourself of results.

With professional dancing instructors capable of teaching everything from the first steps to advanced technique; with a system that makes you dance like everybody else—not teaching unnecessary steps and dances which you will never use; where your lessons are private, in which you receive the personal touch and enthusiasm of the teacher—one private lesson is worth more than six class lessons.

In short, a school whose system contains the combined features of the leading dancing academies of the Pacific Coast. A trial will convince you. Learn from teachers who love their work.
