By Floyd Maxwell.

In the best physical trim they have been this year, and with fighting spirit dominating, the Oregon football eleven is primed for the annual battle, with the University of Washington gridsters, which will open at 2:30 this afternoon on Hayward field. Eleven men are determined that the Sun Dodgers will have the battle of their lives if they win the game, and win or lose, Oregon fight will characterize the work of every man in Coach Huntington's line-up.

A light signal practice for an hour and a half in which the final touches were put on the squad, was the program which Coach Huntington sent his squad through last night. The coaches appeared well satisfied with the final workout, and are making no alibis if the team does not.

WASHINGTON'S STICK STOLEN BY OREGON

Famous Trophy of Northerners Held in Portland.

Raffles, the famous crook, had nothing on the Oregon students who stole the University of Washington stick. The famous stick failed to reach Eugene because it was held up in Portland by a federal temporary restraining order against the express company by whom it was sent.

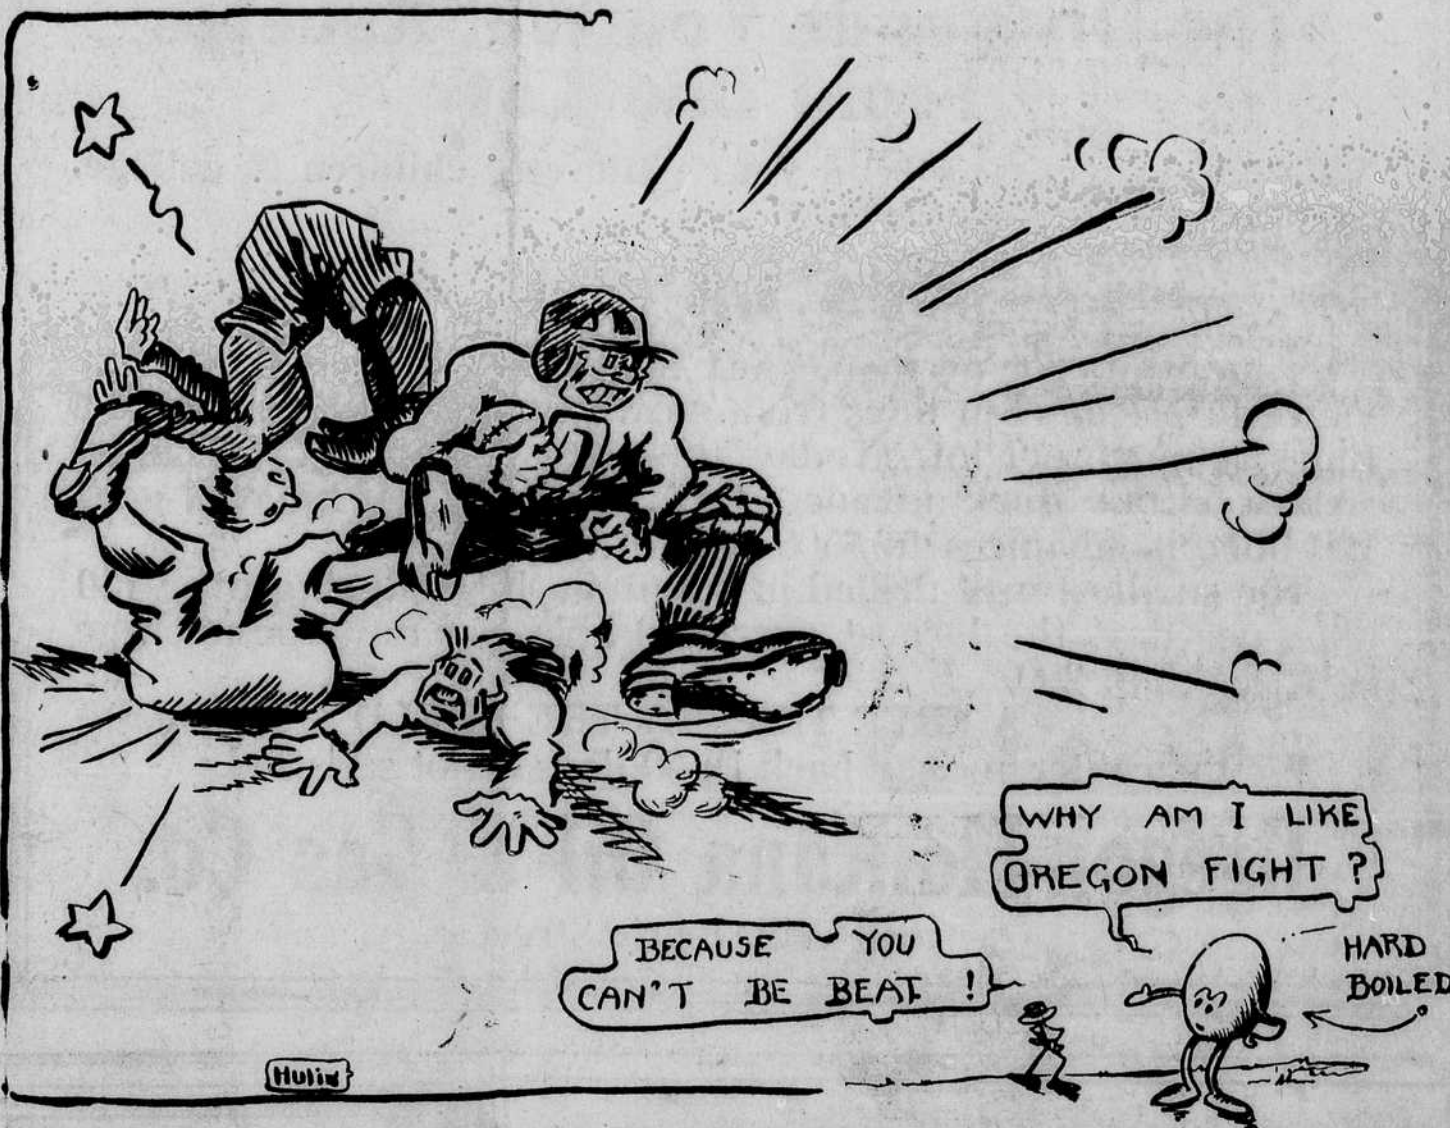

The stick is an old trophy formerly awarded by Washington each year to the house that has the biggest representation on the Washington team. For the past few years it has been in the possession of the Fijis.

The plans for securing the stick were effected last Tuesday night at a rally committee meeting, and two men were detailed to go to Seattle to procure the trophy. They were armed with plans and keys to every fraternity house on the Washington campus, and upon searching the houses during the night found the prize in the Fiji trophy room. They slept that night in a cheap Jap hotel, and next morning took the stick to the express office by concealing it in a truck load of trunks.

On discovering the loss, Washington men got a search warrant, but it was too late, the stick was in Portland. The restraining order of the Portland federal judge spoiled all the plans to display the coveted stick at the rally last night. It is believed that the loss of the stick was not through any lack of cleverness of the Oregon sleuths.

Rumor has it that Washington is to bring the famous iron hook to Eugene. The plan, it is said, was to consign it to 200 Washington students in Eugene, who had to sign up at the express office before it could be delivered. The hook was then to be chained, locked, and ironed to eight loyal Washingtonians, and then be displayed. But where is the hook? The question now is whether or not it will appear at the game this afternoon. Oregon leaders maintain that the hook will never be seen by Oregon supporters.

"You Can't Beat Oregon Fight"

INTERCOLLEGIATE PRESS ASSOCIATION IS ORGANIZED HERE

Robert Bender of University of Washington Elected President.

The organization of the Pacific Intercollegiate Press Association, as the body is to be known, was completed at the final session of the conference of collegiate publishers yesterday. The business included the adoption of a constitution and the election of officers for the year. It was also decided to accept the invitation of the University of Washington delegates and hold the next conference in Seattle sometime in the fall of 1921.

Robert W. Bender, business manager of the University of Washington Daily, was elected president of the association. Harry Smith, of Oregon, vice president, L. G. Blochman, manager of the Daily Californian, secretary, A. A. Webster, of the University of British Columbia, treasurer, and George R. Yancey, of the Whitman College Pioneer, member-at-large of the executive committee. Dean Eric W. Allen, of Oregon, and Dean M. Lyle Spencer, of the University of Washington school of journalism, were elected honorary presidents of the association.

A. Wendell Brackett, of the University of Washington Daily, was chosen general news editor of the organization and Raymond Vester, manager of the Emerald, was elected director of foreign advertising.

News Service Planned.

As a result of the conference each paper represented at it will in the future have a regular news service giving to the college paper a service which corresponds in its field to that of the Associated Press in the regular newspaper world. Nine college and university papers and two humorous publications are represented in the present membership of the association.

In addition to the regular business of the morning meeting a talk was given by L. G. Blochman on "The Independence of the College Paper." The editors of the Daily Californian are under practically no faculty regulation but are working under their own responsibility, he said. Student self government has been an institution at Berkeley for twenty years and has been remarkably successful. A student committee cares for all cases re-

What the Coaches Say

"Shy" Huntington, head coach University of Oregon: "The team is in the best shape they have been at any time this season. Win or lose you can depend upon it that the Oregon team will put up the fight of their lives."

"Bill" Hayward, trainer, University of Oregon: "The Oregon fighting spirit of do or die, will predominate this afternoon. The team is in perfect physical condition."

"Stub" Allison, head coach, University of Washington: "We are determined to fight to the last. Oregon will face an entirely different team from that which went against Stanford last week."

"Ted" Faulk, captain, University of Washington eleven: "We'll battle our best, win, lose or draw. I expect the score to be close."

INFORMAL SOPHOMORE DANCE ON DECEMBER 3

Distinctive Decorations, Foxy Feature, Melodious Music by Nine Pieces, Promised.

The sophomore dance is to be informal, and will be held Friday, December 3 in the Armory. Last year the sophomore class departed from the usual custom of having the annual dance formal, and the one which they gave was such a success that the committee voted to have this one also informal.

The dance committee this year promises something new and different. A nine-piece orchestra has been obtained by the music committee and all the latest fox trots, one steps and waltzes will be played. The decorations are to be distinctive and novel, a different feature is promised, and the whole affair from beginning to end will be one glorious good time, say the dance committees.

Floyd Maxwell is the general chairman of the dance committee. Other chairmen are: Decoration committee, Jimmy King; Program, Art Base; Music, Ralph Couch; Refreshments, Naomi Wilson; Patrons, Lois Pixley, and Feature, Curtiss Phillips.

TO ATTEND INSTITUTE.

The University will be represented at the Yamhill county teachers' institute to be held in McMinnville, November 17-19, by John C. Almack, Alfred Powers, and Earl Kilpatrick, all of the extension division. Mr. Almack and Mr. Powers will be there on the 19th, and Mr. Kilpatrick will be there on the 17th.

PEPPY NOISE PARADE BIGGEST IN HISTORY OLD GRADS DECLARE

Fireworks at Last Night's Event Make Live Affair; Alumni Tell of Fight.

While the gigantic flames of the bonfire leapt skyward, the shrieks and moans of many noise making devices split the air, the roar from the throats of the students in Oregon yells broke forth, old timers declared that it was the best rally in the history of the school, and that all was ready for the big game with Washington this afternoon.

The rally was started with the parade which marched down to Willamette street, then back to the University where the frosh bonfire was set off, and speeches by alumni on a stage built within the circle of the firelight were made. The parade started in front of the library and was escorted by the devices for the production of noise. Sirens, whistles and bells helped to add pep to the noise. As it proceeded toward town, fireworks and red fire were set off.

After the yells which were given down town the students returned to the baseball field south of Kincaid, where the bonfire was already burning. The line of students extended around the fire in several columns. Automobiles completely surrounded the field and spectators filled the entire space.

It was the unanimous decision that the bonfire was the biggest in history, that the yelling was the peppiest, and that Oregon spirit had reached its

By Steele Lindsay.
(Editor of the University of Washington Sun Dodger and special writer for the University of Washington Daily.)

This is the story of a great football team,—"great" because we at Washington have more confidence in our fighters now, after three successive defeats, than we did at the beginning of the season.

Washington makes no predictions, has no excuses to offer. The Sun Dodgers have come to Eugene to do their best, and we'll be satisfied at Washington with that "best" win or lose.

We Washingtonians attended your rally last night and heard the emphasis which each one of you, alumnus and undergraduate, placed on that first Oregon-Washington game, and on the spirit of Washington teams, as you knew them, in ye goode olde days.

But Washington isn't the Washington that you used to know,—not even the Washington which invaded your campus in 1916. Washington has been defeated since then, though—as you put it—"not licked." And those losses have put a new fighting spirit in the Sun Dodger elevens and the student body, where once was the spirit of over-confidence for nine successive years.

Here it is in a few words: Washington is going in for a battle royal today, because the Sun Dodgers like a good scrap, not because they want to win a championship or a game for the game's sake.

If you want to know it, Oregon, that is the new Washington spirit. We like to fight at Washington now, for the game's sake. And we're proud of our team's showing this year, because it has given everything that it has had, because it is playing for love of the sport, rather than love of victory.

So that is the story of our great football team,—green, inexperienced, but fighters.

We have a new coach at Washington,—"Stub" Allison. He's the other reason that Washington fights.

His name has as much "he-man" in it, as he has himself. It is doubtful if there ever has been a coach at Washington who has been so well-liked as "Stub." They have obeyed others, and revered still others; but the Sun Dodger athletes

Griffin Likes to Scale Peaks; Rainier Has Chief Romantic Call

INTRODUCING ELDON GRIFFIN, instructor in history at the University.

"It is most important that I speak of my wife," said Mr. Griffin, for you see he was married just last summer, and therefore Mrs. Eldon Griffin enters quite prominently into all his conversation.

The Griffins both like mountain climbing. Mount Rainier has some particularly romantic associations for us," he declared laughingly, "in fact I could tell a lot about some of the interesting opportunities for getting acquainted which mountain climbing has afforded us, but I won't."

Mr. Griffin, who is a native of Kansas, graduated some years ago from Harvard. Following his graduation he spent three years in Japan at various imperial schools in the employment of the Japanese government. During this time he made several trips into China and the Philippines. In this way he was able to get first hand information about the win today. Few changes are in the line-up from that which was sent against the Cardinals at Palo Alto two weeks ago. "Bill" Steers will pilot the team, while in the halfback position will be Mead and Chapman; Reinhart and Hill will not eastern peoples, which forms a base for his present courses in instruction dealing with history of the far east. When he returned to the United States he spent some time studying at Stanford University.

It is Mr. Griffin's firm belief that there are governmental problems in regard to the foreign question right in this state that really demand a thorough knowledge of the occidental situation. He hopes to be able to present this knowledge to a great many young people through the medium of his history courses.

"I think I had too much vacation last Thursday," admitted Mr. Griffin, "you see, we were unpacking furniture. When we came to Eugene our furniture did not come with us, and so, for a while, we lived with a table, a stove, a bed and two chairs. The furniture arrived from New York this week, however, and that was how we celebrated Armistice Day."
