OREGON STRAINING AT THE LEASH FOR BATTLE WITH O. A. C.

Aggie Line Has Benefit of Extra Weight; Backs About Equal.

TEAM IN GOOD SHAPE FOR FIGHT, SAYS SHY

No Predictions Made As To Outcome; Muddy Field Is Expected.

(By Floyd Maxwell.)

"The team is in good shape and we'll fight them to the last, win or lose," Coach "Shy" Huntington said last night. "But the students must not become too confident of winning this game. We have a fight on our hands, and we know it." Coach Huntington is not making any predictions as to the outcome of the battle with the Aggies slated to begin at Corvallis at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon.

"We know that O. A. C. are going to get us this year if they can," he continued, "and we have nothing to be confident about." According to all reports, the Aggies have saved themselves for the past three weeks to win from Oregon, and the condition of the Aggie gridiron is going to make the outcome of the battle hard to predict.

Oregon will be outweighed by the Aggies about 8 pounds on the line, which will be a decided advantage on the Corvallis field. The backfields will average about the same weight, with Oregon having a slight advantage, if Coach Rutherford starts "Hughie" McKenna, the 130-pound quarterback in the pilot position for the Beavers.

Nearly Every Aggie Heavier.

In practically every position on the Oregon line, the players will be opposed by men who outweigh them. At ends for Oregon will be Howard and Morfitt. "Mart" Howard will handle his old position on the left wing and will be opposed by "Chuck" Rose of the Aggies. Rose tips the scales at 185 pounds and is a two year letter man. He is playing his last season with the Aggies. Howard is playing his second year on the Oregon eleven, and weight 168 pounds. At right end for Oregon will probably be Neil Morfitt, playing his first season on the regulars. He weighs 169 pounds and will be opposed by McFadden of the Aggies at left end, who weighs 170 pounds.

"Spike" Leslie will hold out as usual in the left tackle position for the varsity; "Spike" will be outweighed by his opponent Swan, of the Aggies, by 10 pounds. Swan weighs in the vicinity of 195 pounds while "Spike" has to go some to make 185. Swan is playing his last year for the Aggies, this being his third season on the first string. "Spike" Leslie has another year to go.

Crowell to Play.

At right tackle, "Tiny" Shields will do the heavy work for Oregon. "Tiny" is the heaviest man on the Oregon eleven tipping the scales at 192 pounds. Opposing Shields, will be "Andy" Crowell. Crowell weighs about the same, possibly

MU PHI DELIGHTS ASSEMBLY THROUGH

Musical Program Given To Record Audience.

A crowded and enthusiastic house heard the musical program given by Mu Phi Epsilon sorority at yesterday's assembly. From the point of view of attendance this was a record assembly.

The entire program was made up of music. With the exception of the opening song by the Mu Phi Sextette, in which several Eugene women take parts, the music was all given by the students themselves.

The trio composed of Aurora Potter, piano, Alberta Potter, violin and Beulah Clark, flute, supplied the accompaniments, and each member of the trio also took a solo part. Margaret Phelps played the violin obligate accompaniment to the solo by Genevieve Clancy.

The program of yesterday's musical assembly follows:

OREGON AND O. A. C. WILL PLAY SOCCER SATURDAY MORNING

Lemon-Yellow Record Is Only One Defeat During Eight Years.

FOURTEEN MEN WILL MAKE CORVALLIS TRIP

Condition of Team Poor, But Spirit All There, Says Coach Dymont.

With a record of only one defeat in eight years, and that by a lucky goal from the center of the field in a game played against Multnomah in 1916, the Oregon soccer team will play the O. A. C. representatives of the English game in Corvallis tomorrow morning. Fourteen men, inclusive of a faculty member, probably Coach Dymont, will make the trip to the Aggie turf, leaving the S. P. depot at 7:30 Saturday morning. Coach Dymont has announced that the names of the men who are to make the trip will be posted on the bulletin board in the gymnasium sometime today.

Although Coach Dymont is not pleased with the team work and efficiency of the soccer squad, he expressed his satisfaction with the spirit demonstrated by the men, saying that it was the best shown since 1914. Twenty men have been turning out through rain or shine, averaging 18 in the daily evening practices. It is Coach Dymont's opinion that the team this year is better than last year's squad, but not as good as the teams of 1914-15-16.

Team's Work Not Perfect.

Coach Dymont has been unable to devote much time to the training of the soccer men. He says that there are many rough edges which should be smoothed over to make the squad an effective scoring machine, but during the short time the men have been practicing it would have been folly to have instructed them in intricacies of the game as new methods in handling the ball in passing would result in the loss of confidence, and would likely result in many blunders in a closely contested game.

Due to Coach Dymont's inability to superintend the nightly practices, the team has had to work out its own problems. Five positions are yet to be won on the squad, said Coach Dymont, and it is up to the players in the final practices to determine who will fill these positions.

Development of team work has been impossible during the past week due to the aquatic condition of Kincaid field. The ball skids erratically across the many miniature lakes scattered over the field, or stops abruptly in a mud hole. The heavy water-soaked ball has reduced passing practice to a minimum.

Byers Handles Right End.

"Monte" Byers, a member of the Peninsula soccer team which won the championship of Portland last March, is handling the outside right berth adeptly, and his long shots from the wing should enable the center forwards to score. Don McPherson, a member of the Washington high school team of 1916, is playing a persistent game at inside right, and his accurate goal shooting and clever foot work should loom up to advantage against even the most experienced team.

Johnny Turk as center forward is a skilled player with lightning-like footwork and the ability to dodge past his opponents when the ball is in his possession. Turk was a member of the team which defeated O. A. C. twice last year. Stayton, Farrell and King are other aspirants for forward line berths.

With the exception of "Heinie" Koerber and Patterson in the backfield, and "Hay" Schmeer guarding the vital territory under the goal posts, the names of the men who will appear in the backfield against O. A. C. next Saturday is as yet uncertain. Madden, Ingles, Wallace, Capps, Mack, Hull, Dierdorff and Brogan are contenders for these positions.

WOMEN HAVE RIFLE CORPS.

According to the officers in charge of the men's and women's rifle corps at the University of Kansas, the women are showing more improvement than the men.

Bill Hayward Expects Oregon To Fight Aggie Team to Finish

Players Work in Rain and Mud for Biggest Battle of Year; O. A. C. Bear Stories Are Scouted by Fans

"They're not going to outfight us. They never did, and they never will," said Bill Hayward, Oregon's veteran trainer, last night and he voiced the sentiment of the 25 mud-besplattered, drenched-to-the-skin members of the Oregon football squad who have been working every night this week under just such conditions as those last night. The ball was covered with mud, the players looked like they had just come from a mud bath, but was there anyone downhearted? No, not a player. And behind this spirit is that of 1800 University students, who are living, thinking and talking in the one atmosphere this week, that is to beat the Aggies.

No Cinch to Win.

"We have no cinch, and we know it," continued Hayward, "and we'll fight all the harder for that reason. The team is going into the game tomorrow in better physical condition than they were at the time of the annual battle with the Aggies a year ago. We are not scattering any bear stories and we have no alibis to offer from that angle." Bill says that no effort is being spared to keep the fighting ebb of the team up to the standard of that shown against the Sun Dodgers last Saturday. The team was worked up to a high pitch against the northerners and they are going to keep up to that pitch against the Aggies.

Trainer Hayward and Head Coach Huntington made a trip to Corvallis yesterday where they took a little inspection tour of the gridiron which is to be the scene of the battle Saturday. The O. A. C. gridiron is going to be just as predicted, a literal sea of mud. Sawdust will not help that field, because the mud is there always and the deeper down, the more mud. And here again is the handicap, any team that can beat the Aggies on their mud flat must be about three touchdowns better than the Aggies on a dry or turf field.

No Aggies Injured.

Bear stories from the Corvallis training quarters are taken with a grain of salt this week for instance that the Aggies exerted themselves against Washington State at Pullman last week, the score of 28 to 0 that the Cougars ran up on them can belie that statement. There were no injuries suffered by the Aggies in the game, they are as fit physically as Oregon. "Gap" Powell was kept out of the Washington State game for the express purpose to use him in their supreme effort to beat Oregon this year.

"Pep" and rallies are ruling on the Aggie campus. But, although outnumbered about two to one, the Oregon rooting section made more noise than the entire Aggie delegation at the Oregon-O. A. C. game last year and the Oregon rooters are going to Corvallis to do the same thing this year.

Big Bonfire Tonight.

The Aggies have a monster bonfire which they are going to touch off tonight in a rally; the Aggies are wearing buttons with the words "Smear Oregon" on them. Coach "Red" Rutherford is going to tell the Aggie rooters at the bonfire what he thinks of the Aggie chances in Saturday's game.

Oregon's football team is fighting like mad every night in practice and they are going to fight like mad against the orange and black eleven, and the students will back them to a man. But the report comes from the Co-op store that so far the sale of Oregon seats at the game Saturday is very slow. These seats can be bought for 50 cents here, it will cost $1.00 for the same seat if the students wait to purchase them at the gate. If the seats are bought here it will save a lot of confusion in getting seated in the Oregon rooting section and a long wait in line after the trains reach Corvallis. There are no reserved seats left for the game. Two special trains will leave Eugene, one at 12 o'clock noon on Saturday, the other at 12:10, returning these trains will leave at 5:30 o'clock. There is no reduction in train fares, the round trip fare is $3.50. These are all the facts that are considered necessary. Oregon rooters will be behind their team at Corvallis, 1500 strong.

UNIVERSITY SEAL AND "O" PAINTED ORANGE

Depredations Believed Work of Persons Not Connected With Colleges.

No clue has as yet been found as to the identity of the vandals who painted the Oregon seal in front of Villard hall and the "O" on Skinner's Butte Wednesday night. The opinion is expressed by some that the work was done by persons in Eugene either on or off the campus who thought they could start a little excitement by the act.

Both the seal and the "O" were painted orange. They were cleaned as soon as freshmen could be got together to do the work.

Some sentiment was expressed that the freshman vigilance committee recently formed should have taken care that these sacred objects be not molested this week. In speaking of this Dean John Straub, freshman adviser, said that he had had a conference with Claire Wallace, freshman president, and the vigilance committee and they had decided that it was not worth while to guard it in the rain.

"This vandalism is usually done by misguided University students or town boys," the Dean said. "I am tired of seeing the freshman class forced to stand guard in the rain and run the risk of catching cold in order to protect the 'O' from our own students. The class is ready to give money for fireworks or anything else for the betterment of the school, but the buying of paint to undo the work of practical jokers is not necessary."

AGGIES DETERMINED TO WIN GRID BATTLE AGAINST UNIVERSITY

Fighting Spirit Put In Team By Coach Rutherford; Rallies Held.

LINE-UP POSSIBILITIES FOR SATURDAY GIVEN

"Dad" Butler Has Men In Good Shape, Says Barometer Sport Editor.

By Wm. L. Van Allen.

(Pacific Intercollegiate News Service) Oregon Agricultural College, November 18.—Special.—On the eve of the annual gridiron classic between the two major Oregon institutions of higher learning, the hopes of the O. A. C. student body are high. Despite the long string of Oregon victories, despite the prophecies of victory for their rivals, and despite the utmost efforts of Coach "Shy" Huntington and Trainer Bill Hayward, the Aggie squad will go on to the field Saturday with the determination to win.

Coach Dick Rutherford has instilled a spirit into the team that is unbeatable, a spirit that will be square to the final whistle. Trainer "Dad" Butler has the men in perfect condition and all of the regular line-up will be able to play.

Hubbard's Loss Felt.

The loss of "Cac" Hubbard, veteran end, who of all the squad had the spirit that always matched the Oregon fight, put a great crimp in the Aggie team, but McFadden is filling his shoes admirably. Captain "Chuck" Rose handles the other wing position. "Chuck" is a 185 pound man who has won two letters in track and can be depended upon to get down on punts with the best of them.

The tackles for Saturday's game are Andy Crowell and Twister Swan. Swan is a letterman in football and the biggest man on the team. Crowell played on last year's rook team. He was responsible for the drop kick that beat Washington Sun Dodgers at Seattle three weeks ago.

Christy Christensen, an experienced varsity player, and Ed Clarke of the 1919 rook squad play the guards. Christy hits the opposition like a monster ball and rolls everything ahead of him. Clarke is one of the fastest men on the team as well as the biggest and has a habit of getting through the line and grabbing the runner. Johnny Johnston started the W. S. C. game at guard and will probably be used in that position sometime during the Oregon game.

Scotty to Play End.

"Scotty" Scott is a reserve end and proved himself in the Cougar contest when he speared a forward pass for 40 yards.

Bob Stewart and Ted Heyden play center for Rutherford. Stewart is one of the top notch centers on the coast and has been mentioned as an all Pacific coast possibility. Bob is an accurate passer, and can get through the line and tackle well. Heyden played part of the game last Saturday at Pullman.

Warren ("Nite") Daigh and Babe McCarty are the general utility men of the team. Daigh plays either end or guard. Babe plays tackle, fullback or guard.

Big Harold McKenna or Hi Wood will work at fullback during the big game. McKenna was the back that went through the Cougar line for gains Saturday and was responsible for the Aggie touchdown against California. Wood is a wonderful defensive player.

Hodler Expected to Start.

While Duke Hodler and Joe Kasberger will probably start at halves, Stan Summers and Claire Seely, their reliefs, are good men also.

Hughie McKenna will play quarterback for the Aggies Saturday unless replaced by Kasberger. McKenna is a wonderful open field runner, and blockers tacklers by his speed and shiftness. The punting will fall on Hughie McKenna or McFadden. McKenna has been doing the punting this season and gets them off well. McFadden's kicks are good for about 45 yards.

The O. A. C. student body is backing its team to the limit. It will be a big week at O. A. C. starting with the rally tomorrow and the students from our sister institution are expected to come and share it with us.

John Whitaker Likes to Swim-- He Probably Enjoys This Weather

INTRODUCING JOHN WHITAKER.

Who has classes in salesmanship and merchandise at the University and at the extension department in Portland.

John Whitaker likes to swim, almost better than anything else, he says, and he has made use of the pool in the men's gym every Monday night since school began.

Mr. Whitaker has some very decided ideas in regard to students working their way through school. He made his own way through school and hence can speak from experience. "If it is necessary to work your own way through school," he remarked, "do it in the summer, or at some time when working won't interfere too much with your college life and work."

New York city was his birthplace, but Mr. Whitaker has spent most of his life in Philadelphia. He was graduated from the Wharton school of finance and commerce in the University of Pennsylvania last year. He is interested mostly in salesmanship and the selling phase of business, and has had a lot of experience along this line.

Last summer he was a salesman for a publishing house in the east, and also had charge of the correspondence for the firm in twenty states.

This is Mr. Whitaker's first year in the west. He happened to meet Dean Morton last year in Philadelphia, and the former Dean of commerce at the University was largely responsible for his coming to Oregon. "If the opportunity offers itself, I intend to stay west because I like it immensely," concluded Mr. Whitaker.
