"WE HAVE WITH US ALWAYS"

At last the time has come for the big campus campaigns. Today the Red Cross is staging a drive on the campus under the direction of Miss Mozelle Hair, of the extension division. Thursday and Friday the soon-to-be-launched Lemon Punch will begin a subscription drive which is expected to assure its backers that the students of Oregon want a comic magazine. The Oregon club, the organization of independent men, is starting a membership drive this week. Soon the Oregonians will begin its drive to sell year-books. Indeed, we have with us always—drives and campaigns.

The Emerald is resolved to absolutely refuse to back any drive which is not worthy of the whole-hearted support of every student of the University of Oregon. Last year not a month passed without its quota of drives and tag days. This year we have been fortunate in that until this week the solicitors have left us unmolested.

Today the Red Cross, of which we all know so much and yet so little, begins a campaign to secure memberships in the national organization. The Emerald could not find a more worthy cause to support, nor could it urge its readers to invest their dollars in a more profitable way. Your Red Cross is the most unselfish organization in the world, and that organization solicits your unselfish support to carry on its work. The University of Oregon will not fail to support the American Red Cross as it has always done in the past.

Again, the Emerald pledges its whole-hearted support to Lemon Punch, the forthcoming comic magazine, because it believes that such a magazine if properly conducted, can help to place the University of Oregon on the same level as those other colleges whose humorous publications have become so widely known. Lemon Punch can, and undoubtedly will, become as great a means of advertising the University of Oregon as Oregon's football elevens. By subscribing for a year of Oregon humor, you will be helping your University with the same old spirit that you backed her football teams. It is doing something for Oregon, and there is not a student in school who is unwilling to make a sacrifice for his alma mater.

The Oregon club drive is in a way different from the others. This club, composed of independent men, is seeking more members. There are advantages in organization, advantages which most of us realize. In carrying on the work of Oregon, men are able to accomplish things more forcibly through their organizations. Independent men will not only protect themselves, but will help Oregon by joining the Oregon club this week.

ARCHITECTURE WORK PRAISED BY CRITICS

Honorable Mention Given To Many Students.

"The work of the junior class in the University of Oregon school of architecture is equal to the work of senior students in any other school of architecture in the United States," declared W. C. Holford of Portland, one of the judges in the architectural contest held Wednesday.

Unlike the art students in the Beaux Arts of Paris, who are not allowed to speak to each other nor even leave the room while competing for honors, the Oregon students are given entire freedom to work as they wish. This is not considered to lower the standing of their work.

The major sketch, in the contest which was recently judged by Mr. Holford and E. T. Mische, both architects of Portland, was the drawing of a gallery over a river, the approximate time allowed to complete this problem being one week. No first mentions are given in this problem, those receiving second mention were: Sidney Hayslip, Lyle Bartholomew, Roscoe Hemenway and Peter Jensen. Others who received mention in this problem were: Richard Sundeleaf, Francis Jacobberger and Cleo Jenkins.

The college group project, another problem which included plans for a college which was to accommodate five hundred students, was allowed four and one-half weeks time to complete. First mention in this design were awarded to Lyle Bartholomew, Roscoe Hemenway, Peter Jensen, John Gamble, Cleo Jenkins, Richard Sundeleaf, Sydney Hayslip and Francis Jacobberger.

Eight hours were allowed the students in which to draw a design for a college gateway. Roscoe Hemenway and Francis Jacobberger received the first mentions in this work, while second mentions were given to Lyle Bartholomew, Peter Jensen, Sydney Hayslip, Richard Sundeleaf and Cleo Jenkins.

OREGON CLUB TO HOLD STAG MIXER AT Y. HUT

First Social Affair of Season to Feature Boxing, Wrestling and Jazz.

The first of a series of social affairs planned by the Oregon club for the coming year will be held Saturday in the form of a stag mixer at the Y. M. C. A. hut. The smoker marks the first activity of the club under its organization this year.

A smoker was planned for November 3 but was called off due to the membership drive then being conducted by the club.

Announcements

Sophomores.—A meeting of all members of the sophomore dance committee will be held tonight at 7:30 in room 30 of the library.

Ye Tabard Inn.—A meeting of Sigma Upsilon will be held today at 12:45 in Professor Thatcher's office in the journalism shack.

Basketball Players.—G. M. Bohler, gym instructor, desires that all organizations who have not turned in a list of men turning out for doughnut basketball do so immediately. A great many men are receiving cuts due to lists not being in.

Forum

Oregon Club Campaign.

To the Editor:—When we remember that the reasons for the existence of such an organization as the Oregon club are generally known it appears purposeless to solicit memberships or to conduct a membership drive. But again when we are reminded that more than one-half of the men enrolled in the University are not affiliated with local housing organizations the possibility of some men being out of touch with the spirit of the campus is apparent.

The Oregon club is an organization of independents banded together for the furtherance of Oregon Spirit and the betterment of the University. It is an organization in which the college spirit of democracy for which Oregon is noted has full play.

Contrary to the opinion of a few men, membership in the Oregon club does not bar the student from severing his connections with the club in order to enter a fraternity. A man who takes part in collegiate activities through the Oregon club earns the respect of his fellow students. Qualities of leadership demonstrated in the Oregon club are the same personal qualifications needed in leaders of the A. S. U. O.

This week an extensive membership drive is being conducted by the Oregon club. Surely no argument is needed in order to list a man as a member of an organization devoted to the betterment of the school. One half of a depreciated dollar is no burden to carry around in a vest pocket until the carrier is able to exchange it for a membership receipt. This fifty cents will be used to pay for the jerseys of the Oregon club basketball team, and to defray the expenses of the big stag mix to be held next Saturday night.

VESPER SERVICES SET FOR SUNDAY, DEC. 5

Genevieve Clancy, George Hopkins and Glen Morrow to Sing; 45 Persons in Choir.

The next Vesper Shoir service will be on Sunday afternoon, December 5. The services on that Sunday will consist entirely of music.

The Gounod Saint Cecilia Mass will be the principal number on the program. This is a song-service used in a great many churches. Genevieve Clancy, soprano, George Hopkins, tenor and Glen Morrow, baritone, will take solo parts.

There are 46 persons in the Vesper Choir, which is made up of all of the members of the men's and the girls' Glee Clubs.

"Rehearsals are progressing very rapidly," says John Stark Evans, director of the Vesper Choir, "and the next service bids fair to be a very fine performance."

GREEN'S SUIT SALE

Entire Stock in Three Groups

$39-$49-$59

This sale means that the men of Eugene and vicinity can buy their clothes for less money than they can hope to buy the same quality again for another year.

Woolen mills are closed throughout the country; buyers have hesitated, and this means that when they go into the market to buy their needs there will be a shortage of good merchandise and prices will naturally be higher than present quotations.

As a merchant desiring your future business, my advice to every man is to buy your Suit now—you'll save money.

Fall weight Suits are better for all-year-round wear—you get more wear for the money invested.
