

UNIVERSITY TO LEAD IN HEALTH PROGRAM

Dean Dillehunt of School of Medicine Gives Outline.

SCOURGES TO BE MET

College Agencies to Unite In War on Disease.

The University of Oregon is undertaking the leadership in a definite health programme for the state, according to a recent statement by Dr. Richard B. Dillehunt, dean of the University school of medicine.

The health of the people of the state will be materially affected by the program, which will include the combined efforts of the school of medicine, school of sociology, the public health nurse training school, school of physical education, extension division, and the correlation of the various public and semi-public health associations of the state.

The terrible scourges which not so many years ago carried off a heavy toll of human lives have been to a great extent eliminated by medical research and health education. The most prevalent diseases in Oregon at the present time are cancer, tuberculosis and goiter. Ten per cent of the yearly deaths in Oregon are caused by tuberculosis, while one man out of every ten and one woman out of every eight, more than 40 years old, die from cancer. Leprosy and goiter also are diseases which the medical profession has not as yet completely mastered.

Hope Lies In Laboratories.

"Hope of the elimination of disease comes through scientific research in laboratories. Research has been the source of practically everything the medical practitioner has available," said Dr. Dillehunt. The University of Oregon school of medicine, the only school of its kind in the northwest, is contributing to the general health program by scientific research in its laboratories, producing well-trained physicians and surgeons, and by direct ministrations to the sick and crippled. Under the crippled children's law, 40 children received free treatment last year by the medical school. The majority of these were referred to normal health by surgical means.

A well baby clinic has also been established, where the mother may without charge, take her baby to be examined to determine its health progress. In the free dispensary, maintained by the medical school, 5000 persons were given free treatment last year.

Sociology School Aids.

Through the education and management of the county health nurses the school of sociology is doing its work. The extension division is educating the populace along lines pertaining to health through speakers, motion pictures, and regular courses.

The correlation of the various health associations throughout the state is considered a valuable accomplishment by the medical profession. These societies have long needed a central bureau or clearing house, by which to increase not only their activities but materially increase their efficiency. To these ends the University is offering to the state a much-needed health plan.

Veterans of Foreign Wars To Install Officers Tonight

All Members of Organization Are Requested To Be At Installation.

This evening in the Armory the local post of Veterans of Foreign Wars will install officers for the present year and outline plans for the year's work. Notices have been sent to all members and a large attendance is expected. According to word given out by one of the post officers, the V. F. W. has been requested to take a poll of its members on the Fordney Adjusted Compensation bill and other bills now before the senate. The poll to be taken is to show how the members of the post stand on the provisions of the bill and to give the number of men that will select certain provisions of the bill should it pass in its present form. It is also stated that refreshments will be served after the regular business has been finished. The committee in charge of this are E. A. Rhone, E. F. Peachey and J. L. Randle. The officers to be installed are W. G. White, commander; E. A. Rhone, senior vice commander; D. A. Elkins, junior vice commander; Orval Rasor, adjutant; J. Harold Beylein, quartermaster; H. G. Campbell, officer of the day; M. B. Huntley, patriotic instructor; R. S. Heston, present commander of the post, will act as installing officer.

Chess Is Revived.

Cheers at the Leland Stanford University have revived the old game of chess and are organizing a team which will soon challenge teams of other colleges.

NEW ART BUILDING NEARS COMPLETION

Class Rooms for Designs and Sculpture Provided.

LECTURE HALL IS ADDED

Quarters Will Be Ready For Occupation in 10 Days.

The classes in normal art under Miss Rhodes and the classes in sculpture under Avarad Fairbanks expect to move into their new quarters in about ten days. They will occupy what formerly was the woman's gymnasium.

The outside of this building as well as the inside is being remodeled. In place of the front entrance there is going to be an artistic balcony, where flowers will be planted. The windows are being built along the lines of Spanish architecture, with a porch on the north where there will be an entrance both above and below.

The main floor of this building is divided into two sections. The front part is to be occupied by Miss Rhodes for her classes in normal art, and the rear part is to be occupied by Mr. Fairbanks for his classes in sculpture.

Loom Room Added.

The largest room in Miss Rhodes' section is a design drafting room and the other room is being fitted for a loom room. Downstairs in the normal art half, there will be a room for making cement tiles, plaster casting, drying of textiles, tie dying Batik that will be used in various classes in normal art work. All the crafts will be in the basement. Miss Rhodes will have an office in what used to be the physical examination room, and is choosing the paint and decoration now. There will be a balcony over the front part of the building that is to hold cases of work. In time they hope to have rugs and artistic hangings for this portion of the building, and give an oriental atmosphere to that part of the room.

Fairbanks Has Section.

In Mr. Fairbanks section he is having two balconies which are to be used for classes in composition. The two rooms down stairs will be used for classes in sculpturing and modeling. On what was the sleeping porch, will be an office and a room for Mr. Fairbanks.

The room in the architecture building which Miss Rhodes has occupied will be turned into a lecture room for any lectures in that department. There will be dark curtains and the room will have a lantern in it that will be used to illustrate lectures. Professor A. H. Schreff will hold his classes in art appreciation in this room, and will show lantern slides with his lectures.

The foundation is completed on the twenty foot addition to the north side of the architecture building. This room will be used for classes in water color and life drawing. In the old studio a ten foot partition is being put in to make a small office for A. Runquist. The center portion of the building is now a store room with lockers. The north and west corner of the building is to be used for classes in design will have desks all around the edge of the room where the light is good.

The University of Washington also has expressed a desire to play Oregon next season, according to McClain. Washington has three games definitely scheduled, Stanford at Seattle, November 5, California at Berkeley, November 12, and Washington State College at Seattle, Thanksgiving day. It is likely that the Puget Sound institution will want another game, and since she has expressed a desire to meet Oregon, McClain feels reasonably confident that if a suitable date can be arranged, Oregon will play Washington next season. California has as yet arranged no game for October 29, when she was originally scheduled to play Oregon, and there is a possibility that she might confirm this date.

Idaho also may play Oregon if a suitable date can be arranged. Practice and early season games arranged at present are: Multnomah Athletic club at Eugene, October 8, Willamette at Salem, either October 15 or 22. Oregon also has an option on a game with Multnomah in Portland on Turkey day.

Objection Raised to Schedule.

The schedule as arranged for Oregon at the coast conference meeting last month, which was never adopted by Oregon's representatives was October 22, Stanford at Palo Alto; October 29, California at Eugene; November 12, Washington at Seattle, and November 19, O. A. C. at Eugene. Oregon objected to the schedule on the grounds that since she had played Stanford at Palo Alto this year, she should not be asked to play there again this coming season, and immediately afterwards play California. Since it would have been impossible to arrange a different schedule allowing for four conference games, the four-game schedule was shelved by Oregon's opposition.

Immediately afterwards various members of the conference expressed their disapproval of the coast conference and much talk followed of new combinations. The "Big Three" comes as a result.

Combination Not Feared.

When asked as to whether the new combination would function effectively, Jack Benefiel, assistant graduate manager said, "I do not believe that any combination can exist without healthy competition, and healthy competition within the 'Big Three' is impossible, because of the long distances which the teams must travel. Under the schedule adopted, Washington must play Stanford at Seattle and immediately undertake a four-day's trip to Berkeley to meet California. Long distances between institutions was the real trouble with the coast conference." This attitude was also taken by McClain.

Neither McClain nor Benefiel believed that the action taken by California, Stanford and Washington would materially effect other athletic schedules, although both stated that they had nothing definite to give out until word was received from other institutions.

Immediate steps will be taken to complete arrangements for other games to fill out the 1921 football schedule.

WATER PIPES BURST.

Due to bursting pipes in the kitchen range, the Phi Sigma Pi kitchen was flooded yesterday morning, and the cook was so handicapped that early risers were forced to attend 8 o'clock classes without a hot breakfast.
