

MATERIAL FOR FROSH QUINTET PROMISING

Twenty-five Out for First Practice Last Night.

TENTATIVE DATES SET

Freshmen Meet Rooks Same Time As Varsity.

Approximately 25 men are now competing for positions on the freshman basketball five. Most of the material looks promising, and the coach of the first-year tossers, as soon as he is named by the athletic council, should be able to turn out a creditable organization.

The frosh held their first separate practice under Coach Bohler of the varsity last night. "Shy" Huntington, who coached the varsity last season, is slated to act as freshman basketball coach, although formal action has not yet been taken by the athletic council. Huntington has not yet returned from Pasadena where he attended the California-Ohio State game. Until he returns and formal action is taken by the athletic council, the frosh will probably stage their practices under the direction of Coach Bohler.

Schedule Not Completed.

The schedule for the frosh five has not yet been completed, although a tentative outline of the games was given out yesterday by Jack Benefiel, assistant graduate manager. The freshman team will play the O. A. C. rooks on the same dates as the varsity teams from the two institutions mix, except that the place will alternate. Thus when the varsity meets O. A. C. here on February 4th and 5th, the frosh will travel to Corvallis to mix with the rooks on the same dates. On February 11th and 12th, the frosh and rooks play in Eugene while the varsity travels to Corvallis.

The frosh five will also make a trip to Portland and probably up the Columbia during the season. An exchange series has been arranged with Franklin high of Portland, and some other champion Portland team may mix with the babes. A high school down the Columbia river may also be met, although definite arrangements have not yet been completed.

High Schoolers Listed.

A number of former high school stars are listed among the men trying for berths on the first year quintet. Francis Alstock, who formerly played with both Christian Brothers college and later with Columbia in Portland, Hadden Rockney, a former Portland Y. M. C. A. player, Myron Wilson, who played for Lincoln high in the Portland interscholastic league, and Alan Mooers, who has played on both the Eugene and Astoria high school teams, are among the several candidates for the forward berths.

Bill McMillan and Warren Oliver seem to have the edge on the rest of the contenders for the center position. McMillan is a former Ashland player, and is a tall, rangy athlete, who appears to be accurate on close shots. Oliver is a former Lincoln high player in the Portland interscholastic league.

There are more men out for guards than for the other stations on the frosh five. Eddie Edlund, Hal Chapman, Leo Gore, Carl Black, "Dutch" Gram and "Bus" Douglas are all stepping out in great form in an endeavor to annex one of the guard positions. Edlund played with Washington high in the Portland interscholastic league last year. Chapman, a brother of Nish Chapman, a varsity basketball letter man, hails from Marshfield. Gore is a Hillsboro product, while Black gained his experience on Roseburg fives. Gram and Douglas played in the Portland interscholastic league last year, Gram for Jefferson, and Douglas for Columbia. The doughnut series conducted last term did much to bring out the stellar players among the first year men.

HONOR SYSTEM DEFEATED.

The honor system, as drawn up by the Women's League at the University of Cincinnati was voted down at a meeting of the student council. It was discussed from various points of view. The strongest opposition came from the engineering and medical students.
