COLUMBIA MAN PRAISES Plan Is Instance of Modern Trend, Says Professor.

The change in the medical educational policy introduced at the University last fall when Dr. Harry Beal Torrey was given the position of professor of zoology and director of fundamental education in medical science, was recorded in a recent issue of "Science," and again referred to in the foreword of "In the Form and Function of the Central Nervous System," by Tilney and Riley. The foreword was written by George S. Huntington, professor of anatomy at Columbia University, and was published last December.

The reference quoted in the foreword explains the action of the medical faculty and states that "an attempt will be made to bring together in one course the pre-medical and medical years and to obliterate the division commonly existing between premedical, preclinical and clinical studies." Professor Huntington's comments on the proposed plan follow:

Action Held Interesting.

"This action of the Oregon institution is interesting as an instance of a modern trend in the evolution of medical education, which is beginning to make itself felt not only in this country but also abroad. This movement is in the first place based on a fuller recognition and evaluation of the cardinal fact that morphology, physiology and biochemistry underlie all sound ideals of medical education. Upon the breadth and solidity of this supporting fundamental basis rests the security of the entire superstructure of medical teaching in the clinical branches of the later years, which is constantly expanding into greater complexity and specialization of detail with the steady advance in medical research and technique.

Three Factors Realized.

"Coupled with this realization and as its direct result is a reaction on the part of the teachers of the laboratory branches. While the fundamental biological sciences are accorded their full value as indispensable preparation for the study of the practical side of medicine by clinicians, the teachers of these so-called preclinical branches are in turn beginning to realize the importance of utilizing the three clinical factors of injury, disease and variation as invaluable demonstrations illustrating the significance of the structural, functional and chemical with which they primarily are concerned."

school here," he said, in referring to his son, H. C. Staples, who is a student in the University.

Representative W. C. Templeton, of Lincoln county, introduced as a former athlete in the University, told of the early days when the school consisted of a gymnasium, Deady and Villard halls. He was a member of the first winning football team, which defeated Albany College, 42-2 in 1895. Good roads and good schools are advocated by Mr. Templeton, in building up the state.

Woman Given Ovation.

The only woman in the legislature Mrs. W. S. Kinney, of Astoria, was given a standing ovation as she was introduced. Mrs. Kinney said that she had reasons to feel interested in nearly every school of learning in the state. "I have especial love and loyalty for the University as it represents the state of Oregon," she said in pledging her future support of education.

"I am glad to think that I have had a part in helping to make possible the improvements I have seen and have been told of," said Senator I. L. Patterson, of Polk county. Mr. Patterson was here two years ago with the lawmakers when they made their visit to the campus. He stated that he was a friend of education and would remain so.

Pleasure To Help, Says Gill.

Senator John Gill, of Multnomah county, said that it was a pleasure to help the institutions of learning. He told how he had acquired his education. He had been unable to attend college, but had used his spare moments to good advantage. In less than a year, according to Mr. Gill, he acquired enough knowledge, merely by utilizing time he would have otherwise wasted.

Carlton Savage told of the democratic spirit on the campus, and of the number of students who are earning their way through college. Two-thirds of the students, he stated, are working part of their way through college while the other third are putting themselves through without outside aid.

Glee Club Furnishes Music.

The girls' glee club, under the direction of L. A. Coon, gave a number of selections and Miss Genevieve Clancy sang a solo, accompanied by Mr. Coon. At the conclusion of the assembly program the visitors were escorted to Hendricks hall where luncheon was served. Besides the visitors the guest list included members of the faculty, the student council and the student guides, totaling 169 people.

Girls Serve Luncheon.

A three course luncheon was served by the Hendricks hall girls, between each course toasts were given. Dean Dymont acted as toastmaster. The first speaker was Representative W. T. Gordon of Lane county who welcomed the visitors in behalf of the Lane county delegation. Representative Frank Davey of Marion county responded in a stirring address. Mr. Davey is an orator of the old school. The keynote of his talk was patriotism in teaching.

Representative Belknap, of Benton county, was introduced as a preacher who has not been corrupted by a term in the legislature and, because he loves to hunt and is a good shot, as a "dead game sport."

The faculty was represented by President Campbell and Mr. W. K. Newell, superintendent of properties, who explained the building program and the use that is being made of the millage money. Elmer Pendell represented the students in a very appropriate talk.

A great hit was made by James L. Stewart, a visitor from Benton county, who, having noticed that the University was too modest to state the case of the Medical school to the legislature, took it upon himself to present it. He said that to his personal knowledge the Medical school had been maintained separately from the University and was not intended to be included in the second millage bill.

Mrs. Gerlinger Introduced.

Several guests were asked to stand and be introduced, among which were Mrs. Irene Gerlinger, who was introduced as "the heroine of the women's building. Joe Sanger, sergeant at arms of the house of representatives, was also ordered to stand so the guests could see a "celebrated character."

The Hendricks hall girls furnished the music by singing at various intervals during the luncheon.

The legislators party which left Salem at 8:30 Saturday morning numbered 83, this included President P. L. Campbell, Dean John Straub, Dean Elizabeth Fox, Dr. Harry B. Torrey and about 30 legislators with their wives and secretaries. Dean Straub distributed badges among the legislators telling the name of the wearer and the county or district which he represented.

The party was met at the train by a large crowd, and automobiles brought them to Villard hall where the students were assembled and waiting.

'NIBS' PRICE PRAISED BY CALIFORNIA MAN

"I happened to be on the campus today, and I was interested in the discussion regarding the coaching situation here. I do not know the ins and outs of the controversy and therefore I make the following statement absolutely impartially, and in the hope of doing just one thing—the clearing up of some of the evident misconception concerning the ability of 'Nibs' Price as a coach.

"No one who really knows Price or his record would call him a 'second rater' or a coach 'who has not proven his ability.' On the contrary, they would go out of their way to say that he had already shown enough to stamp himself as a remarkably successful coach. Knowing him as I do, I wish to go further than that and express my belief that within a few years, he will be recognized as one of the leading coaches of America.

"Today Price is probably the most popular man on the University of California campus, and every man on the football team will tell you that 'Nibs' was one of the main cogs in this year's successful machine.

"Of late there has been a lot of talk among California men that Price was the man for head coach at U. C., and although Andy Smith had such a good year that re-engaging him was an absolute necessity, it is only a matter of time until 'Nibs' is sought for the place. If Oregon takes Price, she will be taking a man who will constantly be receiving offers from other universities, and to keep him she will have to be prepared to give him real money.

"After this year's experience, Price is qualified to coach any team in the United States. He not only has unusual ability in getting every ounce out of his players, but he also is a real student of football and a fine strategist. He is a man of strong and likeable personality and if he came to Oregon would have every student back of him to the limit within a month. Perhaps his biggest contribution would be his fine influence on campus life and on his players. The men that he turns out are practically without exception clean-living, fair-playing sportsmen.

"I boost 'Nibs' Price without qualification. Personally I hope that for California's sake he stays there, but I cannot refrain from taking this opportunity to tell of the straight-shooter that he is. If Dobie is worth $8500 to Oregon, Price would be worth $85,000. If Oregon does choose to change systems, I sincerely believe that next to Hugo Bezdek, 'Nibs' Price would be the best bet.

"Signed: HARRY KINGMAN." Three years secretary Y. M. C. A., University of California. Coaching staff, 1919-1920.

UP TO THE TIME of the first Liberty Loan it was said that there were not to exceed 300,000 individuals in the country who regularly invested in Bonds.

NOW there are many millions of men and women who have learned that a properly safeguarded Bond represents—

- (1) A lien on property and earning power.
- (2) A source of regular income to the owner.
- (3) Something which can be converted into cash by sale.
- (4) A sane and easy way to put money to work at a profit.
