

CHURCH ANNOUNCES VOCATIONAL SERIES

Dean Dymont and Miss Edgington to Discuss Journalism Sunday, At Central Presbyterian.

Are you a newspaper man, a doctor, a lawyer, a merchant, a teacher, or a church worker? What chance have you to serve God and your fellow-men through your profession?

This question is going to be answered in a series of six lectures, on six consecutive Sundays, at the Vesper Services of the Central Presbyterian Church. Each lecture will deal with one of six professions: journalism, medicine, law, industry, education, the church. The opportunities for service in each vocation will be discussed by both a man and a woman speaker. The Christian Endeavor hour immediately following Vesper Services will be given over to discussion of the points brought out in the lecture.

The program follows:
Feb. 6, Journalism—Dean Colin V. Dymont, Miss Edgington.

Feb. 12, Medicine—Dr. O. R. Gullion, Miss E. May Sibbald.

Feb. 20, The Law—Dean Wm. G. Hale, Miss Alys L. Suttan.

Feb. 27, Industry—Ex-Governor Bass, Miss Madeline McManus.

Mar. 6, Education—Dr. R. H. Wheeler, Miss Mary Watson.

Mar. 13, The Church—Rev. Boudinot Seeley, Dean Elizabeth Fox.

Vesper Services begin at 5 p. m.; Christian Endeavor at 6:15. A social hour and light refreshments will be enjoyed at the close of Christian Endeavor. A special welcome is extended to University students.

O.A.C. ROOKS WIN FIRST GAME FROM FRESHMEN

The support of the women of the University for the team was noticeable by its absence. There was a good sized crowd of men present, but very few of the co-eds ventured out into the rain to see their team play.

The Oregon team made a large number of fouls both personal and technical, and the Rooks made points on converting these. Rockhey, Altstock and Chapman each had two personal fouls called on them, and McMillan had one. Four personal fouls were called on the Rooks.

Leon Fabre, of the Multhomah Club of Portland, refereed the game. The second game of the series will be played in the men's gym at 4 this afternoon.
