OPAL WHITELEY WINS ADDITIONAL HONORS

Oregon Author Mentioned Among Premier Writers in Digest Summary of Year 1920.

Opal Whiteley appears with three other Americans in a list of authors of the "great year" 1920, says the Literary Digest of January 29th.

The Digest goes on to say that "there are suspicious circumstances as to the genuineness of the Whiteley Diary which time will yet unravel; but these do not seem so important to us as the fact that while by some of the leading reviewers this book was hailed as unique and a masterpiece, others damned it as a mere specimen of American sentimentalism."

CHAS. J. SCHNABEL, '91, MURDERED IN PORTLAND

Son of Prominent Attorney Attending University; Client Held for Murder.

Charles J. Schnabel, prominent attorney of Portland, graduate of Oregon in the class of '91 and father of Charles H. Schnabel, a sophomore in the University, died Friday afternoon as a result of a bullet wound inflicted by Joseph C. Poeschi, an ex-client.

The slayer had apparently been brooding over fancied grievances against the lawyer for more than ten years. Poeschi was crippled in a railroad accident in 1910 and was obsessed with the idea that much of his suffering was due to Schnabel.

Mr. Schnabel graduated from the University of Oregon in 1891, receiving the degree of bachelor of law. Since that time he has practiced continually in Portland and served for several years as assistant United States attorney.

Charles H. Schnabel, his son, has a twin sister, who is Mrs. Edward O'Neill. Mr. Schnabel's preliminary education was received in parochial schools in Fort Wayne, Ind., and Grand Rapids, Mich., and at the age of 21 years he arrived in Portland where he spent the remainder of his life.

DR. ROBBINS RETURNS FROM SPEAKING TOUR

Addresses Schools and Clubs in Southern Oregon.

Dean Robbins returned Friday from a three day speaking tour through Southern Oregon where he spoke at chamber of commerce meetings at Klamath Falls, Ashland, Medford and also to high school assemblies in the three cities.

Dr. Robbins stated that he outlined particularly to the secretaries of the various chambers of commerce the work to be covered and the problems to be handled in the short course for commercial club secretaries to be given on the campus by the school of commerce during the Easter vacation.

The high school assemblies were very good, the dean said, with large turnouts and apparently very enthusiastic bodies. He said that they manifested great interest in the prospect of attending the University, when he outlined the work to be obtained in the various departments of the institution and the increasing facilities being installed for the purpose.

Dean Robbins leaves tomorrow for Marshfield where he is to speak at the convention of the state hardware dealers.

DOZEN MAY BE OUSTED

If Laboratory Fees Not Paid by Feb. 10 Students Must Go.

Ten or twelve students will be suspended from the University on February 11. This is the prediction of Carlton Spencer, registrar, who has sent notices to 30 or more students who have failed to pay their fees and who have until February 10 at 3 p. m. to do so.

Payment of fees after February 10 will avail the tardy ones nothing, says Mr. Spencer, and they will be forced to go home to await the opening of the spring term. They will forfeit any fees already paid and any credit earned during the term.

The notices which the registration office is sending out are sent as an accommodation to the delinquent students. By paying their fees the late registration fee of $1.00 will be required.

MUTES PLAY BASKETBALL.

The fact that they are both deaf and dumb is proving no handicap to six Portland young men who stopped in Eugene Sunday night. The sextette are all members of a national fraternal society, and were on their way to the Coos Bay country to play six basketball games.

Taking the Aggies into camp by a score of 25 to 22, the lemon-yellow quintet completed the two-game series Saturday night at Corvallis with two more victories to their credit, placing the varsity in a pretty safe position at the top of the percentage column in the Northwest Conference, and climbing to third place in the Pacific Coast Conference percentage standings.

Second Game Slower.

Saturday night's game with the Aggies was a good battle, but was again somewhat slowed up by the close calling of fouls. Durno made 11 points out of 14 tries for free throws, while Stinson converted 12 out of 16 tries.

Games This Week.

The return games will be played here this week-end, the Aggies coming here for their two-game series on th Army floor.

Washington broke even with the Bears at Berkeley, losing the first game Friday night and winning in the Saturday night's contest. Montana lost two games to Idaho and one to Washington State this last week-end, in the Northwest Conference schedules.

SCULPTORS SHOW WORK

Students Exhibit in Fairbanks' Studio for Visiting Architects.

Last term's work in sculpturing is on exhibition in Avarid Fairbanks' studio today for the architects who are visiting on the campus.

This work was done by the students this year without models. At the end of each month the students were asked to turn in an original creation. The final test of the term's work was a small original form, which will be worked on and improved during the year.

The second term's work consists of detail sculpturing and the technical parts of modeling.

The third term will complete the model which was done the first term. The students will cast it in plaster, and finish the perfected product.

Professor Avarid Fairbanks has emphasized the fact that art is creative and not imitative. He declares that the students are extremely interested in the work, and are doing remarkably well.

EXAMS CALLED BARBAROUS.

A professor at Northwestern University has come out with the startling declaration that examinations are barbarous and ridiculous survivals of the dark ages.

Oregon Topped All States In Ratio of Enlistment Credits to Draft Quota Says Carlisle

"I wonder, just how many of the younger students of the University realize that Oregon topped all the states of the Union in its ratio of enlistment credits to its gross draft quota," remarked Dr. Chester L. Carlisle, who has spent one year at the University directing the Oregon state health survey, which the University has been conducting at the request of the legislature.

Dr. Carlisle has been promoted to surgeon in the United States public health service. The commission carries the rank and insignia corresponding to a major in the army. "Now that the preliminary statistical report of the Oregon state survey is in the hands of the legislature and most of the manuscript has been edited for the full report, I begin to realize that I am soon to back track down the trail somewhere east of—not Suez—but let us say the Rockies," said Dr. Carlisle.

"The army draft findings for mental defects and all neurological disorders for the entire U. S. show the ratio of 15 men per 1000, rejected for such causes. In Oregon the same finding made a ratio of 11 per 1000, or nearly 50 per cent better than that of the whole country."

"The Oregon state survey found 3094 insane persons in communities and in the two state hospitals; 1733 mental defectives in communities and special institutions; 3014 mental defectives are classes as delinquents, (criminals) and 955 mental defectives were cared for as dependents. The combined total of all known insane and mental defectives in the state is 7686. This is a ratio of nearly 10 persons per 1000 of the general population. The Oregon state survey is therefore a trifle more conservative in its figures than the army draft findings. But when one considers that the Oregon state survey was wholly a co-operative citizen project and as such could never have the opportunity afforded the examining officers of the army it is nothing short of remarkable how closely the figures produced by this great citizen effort in in mental hygiene approach the official army findings."

ROOKS AGAIN DEFEAT FROSH FIVE 21 TO 9

Saturday Score Is Identical With That of Friday.

By a 21 to 9 score, identical with that of the first game, the O. A. C. rooks triumphed over the frosh in the second game of the series last Saturday.

The frosh put up a much better game than on the day previous but the superior team work and play of the rooks was too much for them. It was again the frosh guard combination that looked the best on the floor. Chapman and Douglas time and again broke up the rook forwards when they were within scoring distance of the basket. The game was very rough and many fouls were called.

Altstock and Rockhey were not able to get within shooting distance of the basket often, and couldn't score. Rockhey made two field baskets, and Altstock made one. Wilsley who was substituted for Altstock in the second half scored one field basket and converted one foul. During the entire game only two fouls were called on the rooks. During the first half none were called. Eight fouls were called on Oregon.

Two free throws were awarded to the rooks because the crowd was noisy when the rooks tried to convert other fouls. In the second half the crowd refused to quiet down when the O. A. C. man tried to convert and Referee Fabre awarded them four more. The rooks refused to take these free throws, Hjelte their captain, saying that they wished to win on merit only.

There was a very poor crowd in attendance.

The team line-ups were as follows: Oregon Frosh—9. O.A.C. Rooks—21. Altstock . . . . .RF. . . . . Fernley

Substitutions: O. A. C. Rooks, Crane for Garrity, Ryan for Crane, Alford for Ryan; Frosh, Blackman for McMillan, Wilsley for Altstock. Referee: Leon Fabre, Portland.

"One may say that for all practical purposes the ratio of 10 per 1000 is the same as 11 per 1000. That means there is one person in every 100 who is constitutionally unfitted by reason of mental defect, disease or disorder to take his place in the world as a constructive citizen. There is and will be always this minimum residue of one per cent of the population who will require segregation or lifelong constant official supervision. Advance methods of care, treatment, and training hold all there is in the way of rehabilitation which should be carried out as thoroughly as possible to protect both the subnormal individual from the folly of his own acts and the ultimate interests of the taxpayers."

Dr. Carlisle intends to leave the University for which he has acquired great admiration and respect, in the near future. Dr. Carlisle's alma mater is Ohio State University where he was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

SECOND GAME TAKEN BY HENDRICKS HALL

Zeta Rho Defeats Oregon Club in Doughnut Series.

Hendricks hall won her second victory and Zeta Rho Epsilon her first in the two doughnut league basketball games last Friday afternoon in the outdoor gymnasium. Hendricks hall defeated Thacher cottage 21 to 15, and Oregon club lost to Zeta Rho by a 14 to 7 score.

Eight organizations have entered teams and Pi Beta Phi expects to enter this week. Two games each evening will be played in order to get the doughnut series out of the way of the class games, which will soon be scheduled. Miss Emma Waterman is basketball coach and refereed both games Friday night.

MAPLE MOORE SELLS POEM.

Maple Dell Moore, a junior in rhetoric, has sold a poem called "Season Sketches" to the Munsey people. Miss Moore is from Wilbur, Ore., and is new this year at the University. She attended O. A. C. last year. The poem was done originally as class work. It consists of four five-line stanzas, each descriptive of a season. The poem sold on its first trip out.

ALUMNI IN PORTLAND INDORSE ADVANCE IN OREGON STANDARDS

RISE STILL HIGHER IS DECLARED ESSENTIAL

Lack of "Wildcat Advertising" Praised; Many Good Points Are Evident.

Following is an article which is intended to give the attitude of the alumni of the University towards the present program of standard raising. The writer won some distinction as an athlete while here. He is now head of the biology department of Lincoln High School, of Portland.—Editor.

(By Charles N. Reynolds, '13.)

Portland, Ore., Feb. 4. — (Special to the Emerald.) — After considerable discussion, a group of University alumni, here in Portland, reached the decision that some good might come to the University through constructive criticism occasionally given through the Emerald, by means of open letters to faculty and student body. If such a plan should meet with the approval of the editors of the Emerald, a letter might occasionally be sent in expressing ideas, in a sense coming from some informal group of University people, or at least crystallized after a friendly discussion.

The group referred to above, decided that the students and faculty alike, might like to hear echoes from the outside indicating ways in which the recent campaigns for "standard raising" are causing the reactions about the state, and, in particular, about Portland. That a great change has been taking place in the University, we have known for some time. While standards have been constantly rising, a speeding up process has developed last year and this year, which calls for more attention to the facts.

Adverse Conditions Changing.

In Portland there are seven large high schools turning out each year about four-tenths of the boys and girls who will enter colleges and universities from the entire state. Considering only those who take up courses which are given at Oregon University, of this number, in the past, nearly one-half have gone to other institutions, notably to Washington, Berkeley, Stanford, or to schools in the East. This year, there are unmistakable signs that this adverse condition is beginning to change.

I was curious to find out the reason for this condition as well as for the present favorable signs, and a number of parents of students planning to go

NENA SORENSEN FIRST TO SIGN FOR TRAVELS

Oregon Graduate, Teaching in Nebraska, Wants to See Europe.

The first girl to decide to spend her summer's vacation seeing the cities, lakes, castles and battlefields of Europe and to have paid her reservation fee for the tour, is Nena M. Sorensen who graduated here last year and is teaching this year in Plainview, Nebraska. Miss Elizabeth Fox, who with Miss Julia Burgess is conducting the trip, received a letter from Miss Sorensen in which she declared that the itinerary made her anxious to see all the places mentioned and says "The trip will be wonderful, I know."

It is anticipated that Charlotte Banfield and Marie Ridings will vie for second place on the reservation list. Original plans for the trip were made for a party of about sixteen, but if more than this number of girls are desirous of going no one will be disappointed.

The itinerary is planned for a two-months tour and includes sightseeing in Paris, trips to the battlefields, a visit to Rome, Venice and Switzerland, and a tour of England and Scotland. The trip is to be made at the minimum of expense but is so planned that every day will be spent in seeing something new. Miss Fox and Miss Burgess have both spent much time in the countries to be visited so the trip will be educational as well as recreative.
