

TRACK OUTLOOK NOT ROSEATE WITH ONLY 5 LETTER MEN BACK

Walkley, Sunderleaf, Hayslip, Koepp and Peltier Look Best in Distance.

NEW FIELD TO BE DONE FOR CONFERENCE MEET

Washington, O. A. C. and Likely Multnomah To Be Met in Dual Contests.

With but five letter men out for track in the tri-weekly workouts and with a heavy schedule in prospect Oregon's chances for a successful season seem pretty slim. However the men are in the capable hands of Bill Hayward, who has worked wonders with the Lemon-Yellow squads before, and who is ably assisted by Hank Foster, '20. Hank as every one knows burned up the conference cinder paths for three years, under varsity colors.

As yet the new track on Hayward field is not completed, there being a delay in securing materials. Volcanic ash may be used in the place of cinders, in the event that cinders cannot be secured. The date for the new track's completion is not definite, but it will undoubtedly be finished in time for the Pacific coast conference meet to be held here in May.

Honors Predicted for Runner.
Of the five letter men who are out Glen Walkley is by far the surest bet, he is a stepper in his event, the two-mile; Hank Foster predicts coast honors for the rangy Eugene lad.

Sunderleaf and Hayslip are two middle distance men who wear the lemon "O" and are consistent performers in their events, while Don Portwood and Si Starr are out for the pole vault. Doh is a broad pumper of ability as well.

Last year's freshman squad contributes some valuable material to this year's varsity. Art Larson and Del Oberteuffer are out for the sprints and both of these boys had the stuff last year. Collins, who ran the quarter for the frosh should do it this year under 50 seconds, which ought to mean some points against most of them; Gay Koepp brought home the bacon in the mile while wearing frosh colors last year, and should repeat for the varsity; "Speed" Peltier is a good man in the half, and then of course there is Art Tuck. Art has had a lot of hard luck in the last year and spent a lot of time in the hospital, but Bill may be able to round and round him into shape, and when Art's right he's one of the best on the coast in nearly any event though the discus and javelin were his long suits last year.

Meets Are Arranged.
Roscoe Hemenway and "Scotty" Strachan are men of varsity caliber who will have a chance to show their mettle this year. Hemenway is good in the sprints, especially the 220, while Scotty works in the weights.

So far dual meets have been arranged with O. A. C. and the University of Washington, O. A. C. at Eugene and the Sun Dodgers in Seattle, probably there will be a dual meet with Multnomah to be staged either here or in Portland. Then there are the two big conference meets, the Pacific Coast in Eugene and the Northwest at Pullman.

OREGANA STAFF FILLED

Haseltine Schmeer to Help on Sports; Work Moving Fast.

Staff appointments on the Oregana have been completed with the naming of Haseltine Schmeer who will work on the athletic staff.

"The work of getting out the Oregana is coming along splendidly," said Wanna McKinney, editor for 1921, "and there is no doubt that the book will be out according to schedule during Junior week-end. A few of the departments have already completed their part of the book, and others have their work almost done.

The feature staff is working out an entirely new treatment for the department which promises to be one of the noticeable attractions of the annual.

Staff members are on a still hunt for snaps and pictures of all kinds. Many have already been handed in, but more are needed.

METROPOLITAN TENOR TO BE HEARD HERE

Paul Althouse.

ALTHOUSE CARUSO'S EQUAL, SAYS CRITIC

Takes High Notes With Ease, Asserts Madame McGrew.

"I think that Mr. Althouse sings as well as Caruso," said Madame Rose McGrew, head of the voice department of the University school of music when asked her opinion of the rumor that Paul Althouse, Metropolitan tenor, who will appear in concert in Villard hall on Thursday evening, would be chosen to take some of the big Caruso roles in Metropolitan opera, as soon as his concert tour is completed. "Of course, Mr. Althouse is younger and has not had as much experience nor so great a reputation as Caruso, but I think his voice is as good."

"His voice is large and rich and mellow and at the same time soft," continued Madame McGrew. "He takes the high notes with the same ease as the low ones. Some have likened his voice to that of John McCormack, but their voices are different. Mr. McCormack is just a singer of songs. Mr. Althouse's voice is more cultivated. He is an opera singer."

Appeals to Young People.
The great tenor has a strong appeal for young people, according to the Madame. That and the fact that he is such a great singer, she said, were the reasons that she did all she could to get him here. His singing is wonderful. Another thing that should appeal to the young people, she said, as she looked over the program he is to give, is that he is bringing fresh songs. Most of the songs on the program are new. The singer is not bringing a lot of old stuff.

The "Celeste Aida," section of the program, he sings wonderfully well, she said.

Mr. Althouse's personality is delightful, Madame McGrew continued. He is perfectly at ease from the moment he comes upon the stage. He just seems to beam upon the audience. And as he beams, he gathers them all to him. They are his almost immediately.

Mr. Althouse is assisted at the piano by Rudolph Gruen.

Tickets may be obtained from members of the committee, the school of music, the Co-op, and Kuykendall's Drug Store, according to Glen Morrow, sales chief for the council. Seats may be reserved at the two places last mentioned.

Active members, alumni members and the freshman pledges to the society will all be present and according to the plans the society will put on the best ever.

Patrons and patronesses for the evening will be Dean and Mrs. John Straub, Professor and Mrs. Raymond H. Wheeler, Professor and Mrs. Kimball Young and Dean Fox. Some fifty couples will probably be present.

NOTED ARCHITECTS COMMEND WORK OF SCHOOL AT OREGON

American Institute Officers Pay Visit to Campus Yesterday.

SPIRIT OF STUDENTS IN WORK IS PRAISED

Undergraduate Training Here Ranked With Eastern Universities.

Henry H. Kendall, of Boston, president of the American Institute of Architecture and Robert D. Kohn, of New York, a director of the national board of the institute, two of the most widely known architects in the country, were visitors upon the campus yesterday.

Visiting the school of architecture here as a part of their nation-wide inspection tour to similar institutions, they brought with them a valuable concept of the progress in this line throughout the country. The work done in preparing students for the architectural profession by the Oregon school was examined, and highly commended by the visitors. Mr. Kendall and Mr. Kohn were accompanied by their wives.

The work done in the various departments of the school of architecture was an exhibition during the afternoon. In speaking of his impression of the school here, Mr. Kohn said: "You have an admirable architectural school. I am quite surprised, as I had no idea that matters had been so well developed. The interest of the students in it, as well as the work done in the decoration and sculptor classes, is something that I did not know any western coast college was doing. The work done here is better than that carried on in the universities of the East, like Columbia and Pennsylvania, when I myself was a student there. The undergraduate work is equal to undergraduate work done in the East today. Western universities seem to tackle this work in a new spirit."

Tour Conducted.
The other guests, who accompanied them yesterday from Portland were Mr. and Mrs. William Purcell, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Holford and Mr. and Mrs. George Reed. These are all prominent architects, and Mr. Purcell is president of the Oregon chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The two national officers of the organization are conducting a tour of inspection of the western chapters. In speaking of the purpose of the trip, Mr. Kohn said: "This is a part of a general trip around the country to visit architectural societies and schools, in order to find out what they are doing, and to tell them what other schools are doing.

The Institute of Architects is a body composed of the principle architects of the country, who have much interest in the students who are to be the followers of this profession in the future. I realize that unless students get the right impression now of their obligations as professional people some time in the future, they will not be able to serve society in the fine sense of the word."

Luncheon Held.
The guests arrived on the 12:25 train, and at 1 o'clock Dean E. F. Lawrence

GIRLS' DEBATE MARCH 1

Womens' Contest Will Be Held in Eugene; Date of Men's Competition Is Undecided.

March 1 has been definitely decided upon as the date for the girls' debate with O. A. C. to be held in Eugene. Dean Elizabeth Fox will act as chairman.

The girls who will make up the team to meet O. A. C. are: Wanda Daggett, Elaine Cooper, Jessie Todd, and Lurline Coulter.

The date for the men's Washington-Stanford-Oregon triangular debate is at present undecided. The original date selected was March 4, but Washington now wishes to change this date, and hold the debate at some other time. Nothing as yet has been decided upon regarding the change.

Tryouts for the Washington-Stanford-Oregon triangular oratorical contest will be held on February 23 or 24. Complete orations will be given at this time by those trying out for this contest.

Foster-Child Fantasy Causes Investigation by Dr. Conklin; Definite Theories Formulated

Have you ever thought that your father and mother were not your real parents? It is a common feeling undergone during childhood, and is the experience of 25 per cent of 904 students both in and out of the University in the state of Oregon, tested by Dr. Edmund S. Conklin, head of the psychology department, in his study of the foster-child fantasy. The tests made of Oregon boys and girls brings to light many interesting psychological features of this prevalent fantasy.

Girls are more likely to hold this belief than are boys, according to figures tabulated from questionnaires sent out by Dr. Conklin to high school students and under-class men in the University. Preliminary experimentation and inquiry revealed that some persons could recall definitely having experience with the fantasy, but merely as a day dream, while others actually had believed themselves foster-children. For this reason the question, "Was it merely a day dream or did you believe it to be true?" was asked to bring out the frequency of the two groups, but it did rather more than was expected.

Many Children Believe Fantasy.
The results of this question were classified as follows:

Belief—Male 17, female 54, total 71, or 25.4 per cent.
Day dream—Male 58, female 101, total 159.

Casual thought—Male 12, female 15, total 27.
Out of 258 boys and girls who believed in the fantasy 87 were made and 171 female.

Nearly all children conceive the notion that they are the children of much greater parentage, maintain some psychologists, especially those of the Freudian school. If this fact is so, it asserts much influence upon the conduct of the children, says Dr. Conklin.

Three Stages Are Discovered.
Three stages of the fantasy were discovered by Dr. Conklin—believing themselves to be poor orphans or foundlings, 15 per cent; development of ideas of greatness, 18 per cent; while in 54 per cent of the cases the idea did not take a definite form.

The greatest cause of the child fantasy is suggestion. Forty-five per cent of the children held this belief because of books, stories, etc., and the hearing and seeing of actual instances of foster parentage.

Mistreatment, actual or supposed, of the boy or girl is the second most common cause.

Harshness, partiality, teasing, fault finding inconsistent treatment, desire for affection, lack of respect for parent caused 25 per cent to think that their parents were not their real fathers and mothers.

How does the child act when under this delusion? Conspicuous alienation from the parents is the most common effect. The seeking of profound meditative thought might be considered as a stage preliminary to the alienation in the fully developed phenomenon; so also the depressing emotional experiences undergone.

Survey Develops New Data.
This survey has brought to light causes and developments of the foster-child fantasy not revealed by other scientific researches along this line. The 904 school children considered in Dr. Conklin's survey attended school in the following cities: Baker, Eugene, McMinnville, Roseburg, Klamath Falls, La Grande, Cottage Grove and Medford.

DROWNED IN MILL RACE
D. Read, Aged 78, Was Resident of Lane County 30 Years.

D. Read, an aged war veteran, who has resided in Lane county for thirty years, was drowned off the Alder street bridge on the race Monday night. His body was found Tuesday morning and was taken to the Veatch chapel.

Mr. Read was 78 years old, and had been despondent for some time. Last October he was hit by an automobile and his arm was broken. He has often been seen around the campus with his arm in a sling.

He was the father of Dr. S. D. Read, a dentist in Eugene, and has a daughter, Mrs. W. A. Hemenway, of Cottage Grove.

Of the children held this belief because of books, stories, etc., and the hearing and seeing of actual instances of foster parentage.

LEMON PUNCH TO BE OFF PRESS THIS WEEK

Cover Is Feature; Drawn By Bernice Butler.

A cover by Bernice Butler, and a frontispiece by Wilbur Hulin are two of the features of the Formal number of Lemon Punch which will be distributed to subscribers the latter part of this week. The magazine is now on the press, and only a few days work is required until the magazine is ready for the perusal of its readers.

An unusually large number of contributors are listed for this number, among them being Paul Farrington, ex-'21; Bill Bolger, ex-'23, and Ernest Crockatt, ex-'21, all of whom have been identified with humorous work on the campus in past years. Farrington was editor of the humorous section of last year's Oregana, and his contributions for this number are well up to his standard of the past. Bolger, the originator of Bashful Bertram, who conducted a column in the Emerald last year, and Crockatt were both members of the staff of Lemon Punch last year when it was issued as a supplement to the Emerald.

Farrington contributes some lively articles, among them "a handy dictionary for formal goers" and several other humorous articles relative to the formal and its ives. Bolger and Crockatt

ZETA RHO DEFEATED BY HENDRICKS HALL

Oregon Club Wins From Alpha Phi Basketeers.

Hendricks hall retains its undefeated position in the doughnut league basketball series, through the defeat of Zeta Rho Epsilon 17 to 6, Monday evening. Oregon club won her first game by defeating Alpha Phi 24 to 11. Charlotte Howells, in spite of slightly injuring her finger in the first half of the game, won 22 of the total 24 points for Oregon club.

The teams of shorter girls seemed to have the advantage in the two games. Both winning teams were noticeably shorter than their opponents. However, Maudine Elrod, Alpha Phi forward, succeeded in throwing several baskets over the heads of the Oregon club guards. The co-operation of the Quinlan twins, Hendricks hall forwards, supported by their well-organized team mates easily won from Zeta Rho Epsilon, who defeated Oregon club last Friday evening. Several members of the teams are caring for minor injuries, such as bruised knees, black eyes, and stiff fingers as a result of the games.

The line-ups were as follows:
Alpha Phi. C. Thompson, F. C. Howells, M. Maurine Elrod, E. Brattain, H. Carson, S. Martin, M. Gillia, C. L. Vander Sterre, W. Hopson, G. Sue Stewart, A. Mork, L. Keizer
Zeta Rho Epsilon. Hendricks Hall, M. Largent, L. Quinlan, L. Biddle, V. Quinlan, E. Largent, H. King, E. Hildebrand, A. Christie, F. Furuset, G. R. Wolff, R. Baugh, E. Perry

AGGIE FIVE IS BEST TEAM MET THIS YEAR, SAYS COACH BOHLER

No Easy Time Expected By Oregon Men on Friday and Saturday.

U. OF W. WON'T PLAY LEMON-YELLOW HERE

No Change in Either Line-up Is Expected for This Week's Games.

"The Aggies were the best aggregation we have been up against so far this season, and we are not taking any chances on an easy time with them on our home floor," Coach Bohler said last night, while discussing the two-game series between Oregon and the O. A. C. five to be played here on Friday and Saturday nights of this week.

The team was given a rest Monday night and last night, a program which Coach Bohler believes in enforcing after a hard game. Active practice will begin again tonight with a light workout scheduled for Thursday night, both practices to be held at the Armory. As the scores will indicate, the games at Corvallis were not sewed up by any means by either team before the final whistle blew, and indications are that the two games here will be as hard fought as any on the schedules.

Victories Are Needed.
Oregon needs these two games to give the Lemon-Yellow a chance at the Pacific Coast conference title, the University of Washington five having cancelled their games here which were originally scheduled for February 25 and 26. Coach Bohler was not very much pleased with the action of the Washington five in refusing to keep their scheduled games here and eager for a chance at the Sun Dodgers on the home floor.

Washington gave the reason that the faculty would not sanction their trip to Eugene, as they had already taken a trip to Washington State and to California. It is the opinion here that Washington usually handles these schedule matters in the same manner as the other schools do, receiving the faculty sanction before closing their schedule contracts, but evidently things of that nature are handled differently at the northern institution.

Two Dates Open.
The two dates of February 25 and 26 are left open on the Oregon schedule, and while it is not known whether another team will be secured to play here on those two dates or not, it is probable that an effort will be made. Both California and Stanford will make their northern trips next week, California playing Oregon and O. A. C. and Stanford including Washington and Washington State in its itinerary. The only other games in the conference schedules this week-end will be the Idaho-Washington Stat contests, one at Moscow and one at Pullman. These games promise to be a real battle as this is the second series the two teams have played, in the former one, each is credited with one win.

The lemon-yellow five is in good shape and it is not expected that Coach Bohler will make any changes in the line-up which will go against the Aggies this week. "Tom" Gawley, of the Portland Y. M. C. A., who refereed the contests at Corvallis, will handle that end of it in the games here.

Referee Draws Hoots.
Coach Bohler mentioned that the Aggie rooters took particular delight in hooting the decisions of the referee in the games at Corvallis, and stated that he hoped the Oregon fans would not make the games as disagreeable as those at Corvallis were on this account.

It is not expected that Coach Rutherford of the O. A. C. quintet will make any changes in his line-up over that used against Oregon last week, which will probably mean that his team will go on the floor with Stinson and Arthur in the forward positions, Sanders at center and S. Ross and Hubbard at guards.

TWO GIRLS TO TEACH.
In response to the demand for teachers, Alice Hamm, a senior in the English department has accepted a temporary position as teacher of English in the Eugene high school, and Ruby Fenwick has accepted a full-time position in the Lincoln school. Miss Fenwick is a freshman in the University and is majoring in household arts.
