OREGON SOCCER TEAM TO VIE WITH ALL-STAR EUGENE AGGREGATION

All But Two of Regular Line-up Scheduled to Play on Saturday.

DEAN DYMENT TO PLAY WITH VARSITY RIVALS

To "Kick Conceit Out of His Protegees," Coach Joins Eugene Eleven.

Next Saturday afternoon at 2:30, possibly on Hayward field, 22 of the most adept soccer players residing in the city and environs of Eugene will go into action in an exhibition game of association football, played expressly for the enlightenment of persons not versed in the great Scotch past-time. Neill Ford, former Oregon-Stanford-O. A. C. soccer player, will captain the city eleven which is to meet the Oregon team.

Except for the absence of Koerber and Patterson, the two star players whose counter attacks shattered the concentrated Aggie onslaughts in the two tie games played last fall, Oregon's line-up will probably be the same as the one which battled O. A. C. These two vacancies in the backfield will either be filled with men from the second string or soccer players who have entered school this term. R. R. Ratner, former Stanford player, registered at Oregon this term, will likely be given a try-out with the University squad.

Neil Ford and his brother Hugh; Colin V. Dymont, Oregon's soccer coach who has consented to join the Ford camp in order to kick some of the conceit out of his proteges; a Danish player, and possibly other Eugene soccer men, supplemented with Oregon varsity football men, Spike Leslie and Mart Howard, will make up a team guaranteed to give the spectators a pretty exhibition of skilled soccer playing.

The University squad has been practicing occasionally on Hayward field during the past two weeks and the warm days have helped the men get back into condition after two months of rest. Coach Dymont has been unable to give any of his time to the coaching of the team this term, but the men are confident that Captain Ford's men will have to stage some clever footwork if they desire to annex the championship of Eugene next Saturday afternoon.

DECORATOR VISITS HERE

Bertha Stuart Plans for Interior of Women's Building.

Miss Bertha Stuart, an interior decorator of Portland, was on the campus last week-end to make some of the final arrangements for the decoration of the women's building. This was the first time that Miss Stuart has done any work on the campus, but she has decorated one or two homes in Eugene.

Miss Stuart came to get the measurements of the shades for the four large lamps that will be placed in the alumni hall in the east end of the building. These lamps are of canton ware and the shades are to be made of burnt orange color.

Miss Stuart has studied in the famous art institute of Chicago and has done a great deal of interior decorating in the Portland homes.

Training for Track and Field

By W. L. HAYWARD.

No. 2. The 220-Yard Run.

Most sprinters who run the 100-yard dash generally enter the 220-yard dash also. This is a much harder race, and the 100-yard man is not always successful at the 220-yard dash, for the reason that it takes more and harder work to stand up under the strain of the longer sprint. The systems of training for both are much alike, only the 220-yard runner must develop a longer and easier stride. The runner must know himself and his ability to finish. Many boys run so hard at the first half that they are completely run off their feet and consequently tie up at the finish.

In all 440-yard tracks the start of the 220-yard is generally a short distance from the turn. I would advise all young runners to sail the turn. Start-

LEMON PUNCH COVER DESIGN COMPLETED

Wilbur Hulin Design Sent to New York; Editor Calls for Life in Gooif Number.

The cover design for the next issue of the Lemon Punch, drawn especially for the Gooif Number by Wilbur Hulin, has just been completed and sent to New York, where it will be printed, according to Frank Short, art editor. The next issue will be increased to 28 pages and many new features are being worked up for the number, which will make its appearance about April 7.

"We want this to be a real issue with lots of life," said Stan Eisman, editor. "Just now the contributions consist mostly of pins and buttons. Contributors seem to think that the magazine represents only a picked few. If it did the 'picked few' would flunk out of school after the first issue, for it takes work to put the magazine out. The Lemon Punch goes all over the United States and others judge Oregon by the standard of the magazine. The students have got to get busy and help us out. Everything must be in by March 18."

The Lemon Punch now has a circulation in Eugene, Salem and Portland, as well as throughout the high schools in Oregon, according to Harris Ellsworth, business manager. The total number of copies printed for next number will be about 2,000, he states.

SWIMMING TRY-OUTS FOR WOMEN THURSDAY

Class Teams To Be Chosen From Results of Finals.

Final try-outs for places on class swimming teams will be held at the pool in the women's building Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. About twenty women took part in the preliminaries Monday night, and from these and any others who care to enter Thursday afternoon, the class teams will be chosen. Frances Moore, head of swimming in the women's athletic association, urges all women who swim, to come to the finals even though they have not taken part in any preliminary try-outs. The inter-class swimming meet will be held within the next two weeks, although the exact date has not as yet been decided upon.

"Interest is very keen over the class meet," said Miss Moore, "and we hope to get the best material in the University out at the final try-out, because from the class teams we are going to choose the varsity team which meets the Oregon Agricultural College in the spring." Strokes for form, speed races one and two lengths of the pool, plunge for distance and diving are some of the events in which entries will be made in the class contests. A special class for women interested in making the class and varsity teams has been meeting regularly since the opening of the new building, and has been well attended.

The four letter members of last year's varsity swimming team, Frances Moore, Winifred Hopson, Helen Nelson and Valerie Coffey, are still on the campus and are going to enter the try-outs. A large number of others are promising material, Miss Moore says, including: Margaret Russell, Marian Nicholai, Muriel Meyers, Frances McGill, Wenona Dyer, Carolyn Cannon, Star Norton, Betty Pride, Naomi Robbins, Ollie Stoltenberg, Harriet Veazie, Dorothy Blyberg, Emily Houston, and Ruth Hayman.

OREGON WOMEN WIN 2 TO 1 FROM O. A. C. AT HUT LAST NIGHT

Elaine Cooper and Lurline Coulter Represent University.

MEN ARE TO DEBATE USING SAME QUESTION

Washington and Stanford Will Be Met in Friday Night's Series.

In a closely contested debate the affirmative side of the Oregon women's debate team defeated the O. A. C. team by a vote of two to one at the Y. M. C. A. hut, last night.

The Oregon team debating the affirmative side of the question was composed of Lurline Coulter and Elaine Cooper. The girls on the O. A. C. team were Elvira Van Hollebeke and Erna Von Lehe.

The judges for the debate were: A. A. Knowlton, former acting president of Reed College; Frank Davey, member of the state legislature, and Professor Gardner C. Basset, professor of psychology at Reed College. Dean Fox acted as chairman.

The question debated was one which deals with the question of labor unrest. It was stated: "Resolved, That Congress Should Pass Laws Prohibiting Strikes in Essential Industries."

Oregon will meet Washington and Stanford in the men's annual triangular debate Friday evening of this week. Oregon's affirmative team, composed of Remy Cox and Frederick L. Rice, will meet the Stanford negative team here, in Villard hall, at 8:15 and the Oregon negative team, John Canoles and Kenneth Armstrong, will meet the Washington affirmative team in Seattle.

The judges for the debates here have not yet been selected. Dean Colin V. Dymont will act as chairman.

Speeches for the debate will be twenty minutes in length, with four minutes for rebuttal. The subject is the same as that debated by the Oregon-O. A. C. girls' team last night.

The triangular debate series with Stanford and Washington was started in 1909, when the Pacific Coast Debating League, consisting of these three schools, was organized. Last year both the debates were won by Oregon.

The Oregon teams are coached by Professor William Manford Michael.

950 SUBSCRIBERS IS FINAL OREGANA TOTAL

No Extra Books Will Be Printed; Most of Copy and Pictures Now In Hand.

The total of subscriptions to the 1921 Oregon now stands at 950 according to Wilbur Hoyt, circulation manager, and the Oregonian will go to the press with the notice that there are to be but 950 books printed. It was hoped that there would be 1200 subscriptions obtained, but with the subscribed amount the Oregonian can just about break even.

Many people have had the idea all along that they would be able to get a book when the circulation began but there has been sufficient warning given and it is certain that no extra books will be printed, according to the editor.

Almost all the copy and all the pictures will be in by the end of the week according to Wanda McKinney, editor. "We have sent 317 pieces of work to the engravers to be made into copper cuts," said Miss McKinney, "and this is about three-fourths of the total which we expect to send in."

DR. STUART WILL SPEAK

Effect of University Women's Health Work Will Be Discussed Today.

Dr. Bertha Stuart Dymont will speak at the regular Y. W. C. A. meeting Thursday on the "Relation of the Body and Spirit," which is in line with her health program.

Miss Melba Williams will sing. Tea is served at 4:45 o'clock and it is hoped that all the girls on the campus will try to attend the meeting.

PLEDGING ANNOUNCED.

Professor Dunn Shows Many Washington Portraits; Light Cast on Historic Personality

"George Washington sat for his portrait upwards of fifty times for as many as twenty painters and sculptors," said Professor F. S. Dunn, of the department of Latin, last night in his talk in connection with the showing of about seventy different portraits and replicas of the first president of the United States. During the last three years, Professor Dunn has made the collection of prints that were thrown on the screen in the Latin lecture room in Villard hall. "We are so familiar with Gilbert Stuart's Washington," said Professor Dunn, "that we scarcely recognize as Washington some portraits made by other artists." Some of the pictures shown are very unlike the familiar Stuart Washington, and bring out entirely different phases of the great general's personality.

Peale Soldier with Washington
Charles Wilson Peale, who was a soldier with Washington, made more portraits of him than any other artist, he having made fourteen different originals from which he made replicas. He made the earliest known portrait of Washington which shows him in the British Colonial uniform. The picture was made about three years before the Revolution, when Washington was forty-one years old.

Another portrait by Peale was made at Valley Forge, on a piece of old bed-ticking. The original of this picture has recently been secured by the State Normal of Pennsylvania, and placed in one of the halls at Westchester. The picture shows the General in uniform, and is said to be one of the most attractive of his many portraits. The artist, Peale, held that it was exceedingly difficult to paint a good likeness of Washington because his face expressed so much, and the expression changed so often.

Painted by Foreigners.
The great American general was painted by artists of all nationalities; French, German, Austrian, English, and others. Some of the foreign artists persisted in painting his as a Roman general, wearing a toga and having his hair short with the Roman fillet around his head.

Professor Dunn showed a picture of the celebrated Houdon statue of Washington, the original of which now stands in the rotunda of the state capitol of Virginia. Bust replicas of this statue are placed in many buildings throughout the United States, and the head used on our postage stamps is a copy of the head of Houdon's figure. A replica of the whole figure is to be presented to England, together with a copy of the celebrated Lincoln by St. Gaudens.

One of the pictures which Professor Dunn thinks is the most attractive of all is called "A Human Washington." This picture, painted by Peale, shows Washington in uniform; but in the face is a wonderful softness combined with strength with little of the austerity that

GRIFFIN TO DESCRIBE ORIENT AT ASSEMBLY

Internal Conditions in Japan To Be Topic Thursday.

Professor Eldon Griffin, instructor in Oriental history in the University of Oregon, former member of the faculty of the National College of Japan, and member of the American Historical Association, will address the regular student body assembly Thursday morning on the topic "Internal Conditions in Japan."

As an instructor for three years in the National College of Japan, Professor Griffin had ample opportunity to study at first hand the social, economic and commercial conditions of modern Japan, and his wide acquaintance with many prominent Japanese citizens and his discussion with them of some of the problems of the Orient that have a direct bearing on the Pacific coast, has qualified him to speak with authority on a subject that holds a critical interest at this time.

The present shifting economic and political conditions of the Orient and their possible connection with the United States will be touched upon by Professor Griffin in his address.

Professor Griffin is a graduate of Harvard and later took post-graduate work at Stanford University and has been a member of the University of Oregon faculty since the fall term.

OREGON BASKETEERS DEFEAT W. S. C. BY SCORE OF 28 TO 35

Cougars Lead 15 to 13 End of First Half; Rally Is Staged by Locals.

DURNO HIGH POINT MAN WITH 19 COUNTS

Pacific Coast Schedule Ended; Willamette Here for Week-end.

Washington State, leading by a score of 15 to 13 was unable to withstand the onslaughts of the Lemon-Yellow scoring combination in the latter part of a fast game at the Armory last night, and the Oregon quintet added the second game of the two game series with the Cougars to the string of victories. The final score stood 35 to 28, Oregon marking up 22 points in the last half while the Cougars were amassing 13.

The latter period of the contest was by far the faster of the two and both teams took on new life, playing a superb game of basketball. The first half was slow and made doubly so by the large number of fouls made by both teams. Rockey was again the star of the Cougar quintet on hooping long and difficult shots and had seven field baskets to his credit when the final whistle blew, six of which were made in the last half. Friel playing the opposite forward for the Cougars hooped two from the floor in the first period. All of the Washington State points in the final period were made by Rockey with the exception of one converted foul by McIvor.

"Hunk" Gets Five Baskets.
"Hunk" Latham for Oregon was close on Rockey's heels in the latter period, hooping five field baskets from the floor and making six of the two point markers during the game. "Doc" Bohler attempted to stop "Hunk" in the final period by sending Loomis, who had been taken out early in the game from a guard position, into Cisma's place against the Oregon center, but his efforts were in vain. Durno, was as usual, Oregon's high point man, scoring 19 points for the Lemon-Yellow five. Beller and Marc Latham each annexed a field goal in the game.

Bellar ad Reinhart worked their defense combination on the Cougar passes to a good effect and played a consistent guarding game against Rockey and Friel, the two fast Washington State forwards. McIvor played a consistent game for the visitors and slipped two field baskets over in the initial period, in addition to converting four free throws.

Friel, W. S. C. Scores First.
Friel annexed the first field basket of the game, although Durno followed shortly afterwards, and two free throws converted by the Oregon captain placed the Lemon-Yellow in the lead. Friel and Rockey each chalked up a field goal and this coupled with the two that McIvor slipped in and one by Cisma put the Cougars in the lead, although the repeated fouling by the Cougars gave Oregon many chances at free throws which Durno made good. Eddie Durno and "Hunk" Latham did all the scoring for Oregon in the initial period, Durno getting two field goals and converting 7 out of 10 attempts for free throws and "Hunk" getting one goal from the floor.

Durno added two more field baskets to the Oregon score in the latter period and converted his four free throws, while "Hunk" Latham garnered five field baskets and Marc Latham and Beller each hooped one.

Willamette Coming.
Last night's game was the final game for the Oregon quintet in the Pacific Coast conference, and the two wins over Washington State places the Lemon-Yellow quintet with the University of Washington in second place in the conference percentage column. Both Washington and Oregon have won 8 and lost 4 games. But two games remain in the Northwest conference schedule and these will be played against Willamette University here on Friday and Saturday nights of this week.

The score last night follows:
Oregon—35. Wash. State—28.
Oregon 19..... Friel 14
M. Latham 2..... Friel 4
H. Latham 12..... Cisma 2
Beller 2..... G..... McIvor 8
