

WOMEN'S DELEGATE TO GO TO CONVENTION

Executive Council Votes For Representative's Expenses

OREGON'S RANK IS HIGH

No One Chosen Yet to Make Trip to Bloomington, Ind.

The University will be represented at the convention of Women's Athletic Associations in Bloomington, Indiana, later in the month. The executive council at the last regular meeting refused to comply with the request of the association to furnish funds for one delegate but reversed the decision at a special meeting held this week-end. Women's League was dissatisfied with the original decision of the council, and a motion unanimously passed that the council reconsider the question at a special meeting last Friday afternoon, which resulted in the desired action of the executive council. The Women's Athletic Association will finance the other delegate.

All Phases Discussed.

At the special meeting of Women's League Friday night, all phases of the question were discussed, including student body funds, the importance of women's athletics and the value of the convention to the University women.

"It is true," said Miss Ollie Stoltenberg, president of the Women's Athletic Association, "that the women have not done very much in athletics in the past, but now that we have our new building and new equipment, we want to keep up with our sister institutions, and, if we do not have a delegate at that convention, they will be in a position to dictate to us in all matters concerning our athletics."

The University women were not alone in the desire for representation at the conference. Miss Harriet W. Thomson, assistant director of the department, of physical education for women, spoke in behalf of the faculty at the women's league meeting.

"We realize it will be expensive," said Miss Thomson, but the University can ill afford to have no representative at that convention, and furthermore, the convention will be more complete with our representation. Since we have our new building and are one of the leading departments on the coast, we should by all means be represented."

The delegates have not been chosen as yet, to represent the University. Other western institutions sending delegates are Washington, California, Nevada and the Oregon Agricultural College. One of the most important features of the convention will be the revision of rules governing women's athletics, especially basketball. Constitutions, re-organization and finances will also be included in the discussion.

The University women felt that if they were not represented at the convention, other coast schools would be far ahead in their athletics, and in the organization of their athletic associations. Hence, the decision to provide for representation made by the executive council is greatly appreciated by the women, according to Miss Stoltenberg, who feels that the Women's Athletic Association will now be able to make use of the new building and equipment to a better advantage and more far-reaching results.

WASHINGTONIAN'S CLUB TO MEET WEDNESDAY

Plans To Be Made At Final Sessions of Winter Term for Further Work of Oregon.

For the purpose of making plans for next term and of settling up finances, the Washington club will hold its last meeting of the winter term on Wednesday evening, at 7:30 in Oregon hall. Among the business matters to be attended to is the formulating of plans for taking care of new students who come to Oregon from Washington in April, and also of getting them fixed up in school. The social activities of the club for the coming term will also be discussed, and arrangements for them started. A report of the activities of the club will be made.

All members of the club must be present, and if they cannot give a good excuse for their absence, they will be dropped from the organization, it is announced. It is also earnestly requested that all members who have not yet paid their dues will do so at this meeting.

There are now more than fifty members in the Washington club, and it promises to become one of the liveliest organizations on the campus, if all University students who are from the northern state will turn out and co-operate in the work of the organization. The club has a good line on students who are coming down to Oregon, and especially on those expected to register here in April. The members of the organization represent nearly all the large high schools in Washington, and through their personal communication, and the sending of Oregonians and other University publications, great interest in the work of this institution has been spread throughout the northern state.

SCHOLARSHIPS OPEN TO RAILROADER'S SONS

College Education Made Available to Children of Pennsylvania System Employees.

A notice calling attention to the Frank Thomson and John Clark Sims memorial scholarships, which are available to the children of Pennsylvania railroad employees, has been received at the president's office. Two Frank Thomson scholarships offered this year amount to a yearly sum of $600 each, while the John Clark Sims scholarships exempt the two holders from tuition fees at the University of Pennsylvania.

In all there are eight Frank Thomson scholarships for a period of four years each. Two of them are awarded each year, and entitle the successful candidate to select the university, college or technical school which he desires to attend, subject, however, to the approval of the railroad company.

The John Clark Sims memorial scholarships were created as a memorial to the late John Clark Sims, formerly a secretary of the Pennsylvania railroad company, and for many years a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania. One of them is available to persons nominated by the trustees of that university, while the other is open to competition among the sons of living or deceased employees of the Pennsylvania railroad system.

'MIKADO' TO OPEN AT GUILD HALL TONIGHT

Faculty Actors to Carry Leads in Light Opera

CHORUS TO NUMBER 30

Satirical Trend of Play Gives Promise of Fun

With a select cast of eight, including Rose McGrew, Fergus Reddie and Charlotte Banfield, supported by a chorus of thirty voices, Gilbert and Sullivan's light opera, "The Mikado" will open at Guild theatre tonight for a run of five nights. The play, the last production of which will be given March 12, will be presented through the co-operation of the school of music and the department of public speaking. It is the first time for some years that such a vehicle has been presented.

The story, briefly is of the Mikado's court in Japan. Ko-Ko, a crazy individual, has been made Lord High Executioner on account of some service. Katisha is a rather "tough" character who was to have been married to the prince, but he disappeared and all hope for his return was given up. So Katisha tries to vamp the Lord High, wielder of the Snickersnee. Ko-Ko has three wards in school, Yum-Yum, Petti-Sing and Peep-bo, Nanki-poo, a wandering fellow, seeks the good graces of Ko-Ko in order to win the hand of Yum-Yum. It makes a good scramble of love affairs in general and there is a lot of fun before things are straightened out.

Satire On Japanese.

The whole opera is a satire on Japanese customs. Ko-Ko has a terrible time living up to his dignity as Executioner, coming as he does from a lower level. Mme. McGrew, as Katisha, says "I'm tough" with vigor, and she carries her part through with a punch that is characteristic.

Professor Reddie promises a lot of fun with Claire Keeney as carrier of the Snickersnee and Verna Shute as carrier of the imperial sunshade. He looks to these lesser parts to round out the color of the whole thing.

"It is going to go off with a bang" said Professor Reddie. "I am confident that it will take the campus by storm."

OREGON KEEPS CLEAN SLATE BY BEATING W.U.

Willamette started passing the ball at the upper end of the court in an effort to keep the Oregon forwards from getting a chance at the goal before the final whistle. Willamette excelled in this branch of the game and the efforts of the Oregon players were futile until Wapato attempted to pass to Dimick at the lower end of the court, but he underestimated the speed of Couch, Oregon guard, who had been substituted for Reinhart a few minutes before, when the latter was taken out of the game for four personal fouls.

Couch, by a clever piece of head work copuled with his speed, succeeded in intercepting the Willamette pass and with a perfectly calculated and beautiful throw he shot the ball the length of the court to Durno who in turn passed with lightning speed to "Hunk" Latham who stood directly under the Oregon basket with the result that Oregon won the game with one point, the result of this final field basket.

Church, the famous Harvard substitute halfback who won the game from the University of Oregon in the spectacular contest at Pasadena for the football championship of the United States, might have won a little more publicity than substitute Couch in the Saturday night's basketball game, but he never won a more spectacular contest, in which 1500 howling fans and fanettes went wild, than did Couch by his pretty piece of play.

The game was a fitting close to the 1921 season and enabled Oregon to close the schedule with a record of having been undefeated in the Northwest conference.

The percentage standing in the Pacific coast conference is now complete with the exception of two games which are being played between O. A. C. and Washington State at Pullman the fore part of this week. These two games will also effect the standings of the two tail enders to some degree in the Northwest conference standings.

The Pacific coast conference title goes to California with eight wins and two losses.

The score and line-up in Saturday night's game follows:

Oregon—26.	Willamette—25.
Durno 14.....F.....	Wapato 4.....F.....
M. Latham 4.....F.....	Gillette 5.....F.....
H. Latham 6.....C.....	Jackson 6.....C.....
Beller 2.....G.....	Dimick 10.....G.....
Reinhart.....G.....	Rarey.....G.....
Couch.....Spare.....	McKittrick.....Spare.....
