

NEW MUSIC BUILDING NEARING COMPLETION

Studio Wing May Be Ready for Occupancy by May.

AUDITORIUM TO SEAT 615

Steinway Grands to be Among Equipment.

The new music building with its auditorium, having a seating capacity of 615, and well equipped studios and practice rooms, is nearing completion. The studio wing will possibly be ready for occupancy by May, according to Dr. John J. Landsbury, dean of the school of music.

The $75,000 building, which is situated on the southwest part of the campus, is to be L shaped, with one wing for the auditorium, and the other containing the studios and practice rooms. On the first floor in the studio wing, there is a large clubroom with a fireplace and sun-porch. Three studios and a lecture room and practice rooms, occupy the remainder of the first floor.

On the second floor there are thirteen practice rooms and ten studios, besides a room for the use of Mu Phi Epsilon, honorary musical fraternity for women. The studios are to be equipped with Steinway grands, and the rest of the equipment is also to be of the very best says Dean Landsbury. A detailed account of what the equipment is to consist of will be available later.

The auditorium is to be of brick, and is to have a concert platform, thus limiting the use of the hall to concert work alone.

The building was financed by the University Holding Company, made up almost entirely of Eugene business men. This corporation, which was sanctioned by a special act of the state legislature, is advancing the money and selling bonds on the loan. The building is to be rented to the University, and in about eight years will be paid for and become the University's property.

CAMPUS TO HAVE NEW ASSORTMENT OF TREES

Donald F. Shepard, Campus Gardener, Tells of Plans to Set Out Plants and Shrubs.

"First son, we're not looking for buried treasure."

The numerous holes which have made their appearance around Deady and McClure halls are not to be used for fence posts either. The "no man's land" appearance of certain portions of the campus is explained by Donald F. Shepard, new gardener of the building department in the simple words "spring planting."

Preparatory to the planting of various shrubs on the campus, several men have been at work preparing the ground. Holes to accommodate the new plants are being dug in great profusion. In those around the administration building are to be planted Japanese cypress or retinospora, which are small evergreen trees and abor vitae, also a small tree that is especially adapted for lawns. English yew trees are also to be planted around this building.

Lilacs, forsythia or golden bell, a plant with brilliant blossoms that blooms early in the spring before the leaves are out on most plants, and honeysuckle (lonicera) are to be planted around Deady hall. The men's gymnasium will be surrounded with flowers principally butterfly bush, bridal wreath and hydrangeas. Barberry bushes and cornus sibirica, or the red twig dog-wood which has white flowers in the spring, will also be planted around the gymnasium. Pin oaks are to be planted in the parkway at the side of the gymnasium and down past the music building.

WOMEN HEAR DEAN FOX TELL OF HONOR SYSTEM

Speaker Explains To Oregon Club Girls How Students May Prevent Cheating.

The honor system was explained to the members of the Women's Oregon club by Dean Elizabeth Fox at a meeting of the club March 7 in the Y. W. C. A. bungalow.

Cheating is too prevalent on the campus, said Dean Fox, and all possible steps are being taken to check it. The honor system does not consist of spying and reporting to the faculty; that would merely cheapen it, she said, but the idea of stopping a cheater on the same basis as one would a burglar is different. The cheater could be asked to leave the room, and if he should refuse to do so, the case should be reported to the student committee.

The student body committee has no cut-and-dried form or code to follow in establishing this honor system, and Dean Fox suggested that each organization propose resolutions regarding it, present them to the student council who will act upon them and tell the faculty of the desire of the students for this system.

"We should respect one another's property," said Dean Fox. "Not only coats, textbooks and such, but that intangible property which one obtains through study. It is one thing to help a person and another thing to give him your work."

Bertha Hayes and Bertha Atkinson were asked to make further investigations of the honor system and report at the next meeting.

It was suggested that any ideas for the stunt to be put on by the girls at the April frolic be given to Glenn Frank, president of the club, so that they may be worked up into something original.

Griffin Writes On Eastern Countries for Historical Outlook.

Eldon Griffin, professor of history, has an article "Why Study Eastern History" in the April number of the Historical Outlook. It is a discussion of the presentation of the history of eastern countries in such a way that a proper and intellectual understanding of these countries may be had.

Mr. Griffin is preparing a more general article on educational subjects, laying particular stress upon the relation between history teaching in high school and in college.

U. OF O. GRADS HONORED

Graduates of the University of Oregon are receiving favorable recognition in eastern graduate schools, as again evidenced by the following extract from the Bulletin of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for January, 1921: "The fifth year includes six men who hold degrees from other colleges; three of these have come to us from the architectural school of the University of Oregon. This nucleus of highly trained men is a stimulus and incentive to the lower classes. Prizes offered at the beginning of the scholastic year for summer sketches were given as follows: first prize, Walter Church; second prize, Roger Hayward." Church is a graduate of the University in the class 1916.
