

LIFE-SAVING CLASS FOR SUMMER TERM

Red Cross To Send Instructor In Water First-Aid

A telegram from the Red Cross to Earl Kilpatrick, director of the extension division, came over the wire today, announcing that the Northwestern Division of the Red Cross had definitely decided to assign an instructor in water first aid to the campus summer term. The man to be in charge is not known here, but it is expected that the appointment will be made at an early date. This step taken by the Red Cross is the first thing of the kind to be arranged in connection with a college summer term in the United States, so far as is known, said Mr. Kilpatrick today.

It means that everybody attending the summer term will be given an opportunity to learn to swim and to swim for two at the same time. That is he will not only be instructed in the art of keeping himself afloat in the water, but will be given competent instruction in the saving of a less fortunate person who is drowning or is in need of help. The method of Red Cross resuscitation will be taught also.

New System Used.

The system of water first aid used will include none of the violence of the old method; the water victim will not be beaten over the head until senseless before his rescuer makes an attempt to save him. Neither will the hero of the moment endanger himself in saving a drowning person by using the Red Cross method, as has been demonstrated by the practical application of the system during the past few years.

Because there is swimming to a more or less degree in every district in Oregon, and because there are a large number of Oregonians drowned each year, this course in water first-aid will be emphasized this summer in order that every summer student may go home a qualified lifesaver. At the close of the course to be offered at the University this summer a girl weighing 100 pounds should be able to rescue a man weighing 250 pounds without violence to her subject, according to Mr. Kilpatrick. That is admittedly a feat to be admired and one worth taking the opportunity to learn.

Experiment to be Watched.

The Red Cross is watching the experiment on the Oregon campus with the closest interest and if it proves practical they will install courses in summer schools throughout the United States next summer.

Joseph Hedges, a second year law student, spent some time last summer on an extension tour through southern Washington and through Oregon demonstrating the Red Cross life saving method, and as a result of this trip reports have come in of lives actually saved by the timely application of the knowledge the rescuer had gained from Mr. Hedges' lessons.

"It is doubtful if the water-aid course will be given as a regular credit course during the summer term," said Mr. Kilpatrick, "but instead we will offer it as a recreation feature to be given in the afternoons." He also said that the lessons would be given partly in the race and partly in the two tanks.

POTTER GIRLS TO GIVE PIANO-VIOLIN CONCERT

Unusual Program To Include Number From Ultra Russian School of Composers.

A piano-violin concert is to be given at the Methodist church next Tuesday, April 12, by Aurora and Alberta Potter, students and assistant instructors in the school of music. Both are well known in music circles as members of Mu Phi Epsilon, woman's national musical fraternity, and of the University orchestra. The program is particularly interesting representing various composers from Handel to MacDowell. The second number is unusual as a product of the ultra modern Russian school, combining queer harmonies and peculiar phrasing.

The program includes:

- I. Sonata for violin and piano in D majorHandel
Adagio.
Allegro.
Larghetto.
Allegro.
Aurora and Alberta Potter.
- II. Prelude Debussy
Rain in the Garden Debussy
Marche Prokofieff
Mandolinata Saint-Saens
Aurora Potter.
- III. Ballade et Polonaise... Vieuxtemps
Alberta Potter.
- IV. Concerto in A minor... MacDowell
Aurora Potter.
Mrs. Jane Thacher at second piano.

LATIN LIVING FORCE, SAYS PROF. F. S. DUNN

Reviving Interest in Roman Language Noted; Scientists and Literary Men Head Demand.

"Latin is a living force in daily life and all other studies are in overwhelming debt to it," says Professor F. S. Dunn, head of the department of Latin in the University of Oregon, in a bulletin which he has written for the Latin teachers in the high schools and colleges of Oregon.

Professor Dunn has written the pamphlet in order to stimulate interest in the study of Latin, which has received more or less a severe shock in the past from educators in practical and technical lines.

The downward trend of interest in Latin, he said, has stopped and the demand for it is increasing, although the west has not felt it as much as the east. The new demand has come about through the cry of scientists, journalists, literary men and others who have felt the lack of Latin in the school curriculum of the past years.

"The teacher," he says, "must read English from out the Latin and Latin from out the English; must see geometry, biology and physics in Caesar; must conjure legal phrases and doctor's prescriptions from Cicero's orations; must flash the Idyls of the King of Paradise Lost and The Faery Queen across the pages of Vergil; must brand every paragraph with the Romance Languages and Latin America and the Philippines; must see Rome in the clock dial; in the ten-cent piece; in a decimal fraction; in the almanac; in the days of the week; in the Sunday liturgy; in Oregon's seal; in the Omnibus bill; in the ultimatum to Turkey; in an aeronaut or a submarine; in Montana or Arizona; in Cincinnati or in Olympia; in Lucy or in Gus; in patrimony or matrimony or alimony; it matters not which, for it is all Latin anyway and everywhere you go."

THETA WEDS HILLSBORO MAN.

Miss Theo Louise King, former student of this University, was married last Saturday evening at her home in Hillsboro to Raymond Harris Emmott. Miss King is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Emmott has for years been a resident of Hillsboro, where the couple will make their home.

GIRLS' GLEE ATTRACTS

One Student Already Here As Result of Club's Trip.

Direct results of the Girl's Glee Club trip are already being felt on the campus, according to Professor Leland A. Coon, director. Interest was aroused in communities where Oregon as a possible school for the rising generation was never considered. One result is already here, namely Miss Ziphie I. Funck, of Enterprise, who determined at the time of the club's appearance in that town that she would attend the same school which produced those voices. She is now registered and well started in her work at Oregon.

Members of the club are busy corresponding with prospective students in order to keep the interest up, and announce that the freshman class next year will undoubtedly bear witness of their labors.

SKETCHES ON EXHIBITION.

Fifty pencil sketches, made by Walter Church, '16, during a vacation tour through Europe last summer, have been received at the school of art, and will be exhibited here for two weeks. They have been placed upon the wall of the exhibition room of the architectural building. These sketches were awarded the first prize at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston where they were shown in competition with other summer work.
