THE GRADUATE MANAGER.

The position of graduate manager of the associated students is awaiting someone. The present holder of the position is not a candidate for re-election, and the athletic council is now considering candidates. As soon as the athletic council selects a successor to the present incumbent, perhaps before the present term has expired, a new graduate manager will be at the helm.

The qualifications of a good graduate manager are hard to define. While Oregon has never had a manager who stood head and shoulders above others in the conference, she has at least been fortunate in having one who was able to hold his own with the others. And very clever managers represent other members of the conferences of which Oregon is a member.

It seems the athletic council is waiting for candidates for the position to offer themselves, which seems a poor way to do business. A graduate manager must be a man with reliability, and men with real ability are not often running around looking for positions. More reasonable it would seem, would be for the job to seek the man.

An agreeable and winning personality, a good business head, and a knowledge of publicity are necessary for a successful graduate manager. It is a difficult position to handle successfully, and not every man can do it. It is to be hoped that the athletic council will secure for the next graduate manager the best man that can be secured.

The Emerald favors a graduate manager in preference to any inducted into the position without having had the benefit of several years of Oregon spirit and Oregon honor. A graduate manager must stand for the things which Oregon stands for in his dealings with other schools. Get the best, athletic council!

The Colored Giants play the varsity this afternoon. The bleachers will likely be filled with zealous Oregon rooters. But let's not forget the Giants are visitors. Treat them as Oregon's guests, rooters.

ORIGINAL CAST PLAYS IN 'SWEETHEART SHOP'

THE SWEETHEART SHOP—

The speed limit musical comedy is "The Sweetheart Shop" with the entire cast and chorus intact, which comes to the Eugene theatre, Wednesday, April 13th. It comes here with a high record of success in New York, Chicago and Boston for the past year and direct from the Columbia theatre, San Francisco where it played for four weeks. "The Sweetheart Shop" played longer in San Francisco than any other musical comedy in the past five years.

The book and lyrics are by Anne Caldwell, who wrote "The Night Boat," Fred Stone's "Jack O'Lantern," "Chin Chin," "Tip Top" and many other successes. The music is by Hugo Felix, whose charming melodies in "Madame Sherry," "Pom Pom" and "Lassie" are well remembered. There is a well defined and most entertaining story told in "The Sweetheart Shop," which is light and humorous in situations and thoroughly entertaining throughout.

The story is told in mid novelties and surprises. Edgar J. MacGregor, under whose direction "The Sweetheart Shop" is presented, has provided elaborate and artistic stage settings and beautiful costumes, with rich display of gowns of the ultra-fashionable kind. The company presents to an unusual degree the charm of youth and boasts of an exceedingly pretty chorus whose witchery of face is only equalled by the magic of their dainty feet.

Oregon Products

In our exhibit at the Home Products Carnival we are featuring exclusively Oregon products. This occasion affords us an excellent opportunity to again mention our policy of favoring Oregon goods. Multnomah Trunks, Bags and Suit Cases are the kind that take you there and bring you back securely, and intact—that's the duty of these incomparable Oregon products. Of course, it is the duty of all leather goods to do the same. But, somehow, it seems more to be expected from Oregon products.
