CO-OPERATION.

Reports of games played at such small towns as Pullman are not easy to obtain, and the Emerald report of Tuesday's game was erroneous. W. S. C. defeated Oregon 12 to 7. The Emerald apologizes for the mistake.

Not merely because of the error made in reporting the game yesterday morning, but because the Emerald feels that an injustice has been done, are these facts being put into print. As usual, the Emerald made every possible attempt to secure the scores of all the games played while the team was in the north, so that Oregon students could be kept fully informed as to the varsity's progress.

Before the team left, two non-playing members of the squad promised an Emerald reporter that they would see to it that the score of each game was sent down, together with the batteries, and interesting features of the games. They haven't sent a word.

A wire was sent last Friday to a member of the squad in Seattle, asking him to personally write a brief outline of each game and send it to the Emerald. This man received the wire after the game Friday, but promised a member of the track squad, then in Seattle, that he would write and send down the results of each game after that. He hasn't sent a word.

A letter was addressed to another member of the team at Pullman, asking him to at least send the results of each game down, or see to it that someone kept Oregon students informed as to the success of the team during its series of games in the north. He hasn't sent a word, nor has anyone else.

After making every possible effort to provide Oregon students with the facts of each game, and being faced by such co-operation, the Emerald feels that it must put in a word for itself. Perhaps the men have been too busy, but telegraph offices generally stay open quite late, and most baseball games are over before six and generally much earlier. If the men who were asked to give Oregon students an opportunity to follow the games have a reasonable excuse when they return, the Emerald will apologize for these statements. But if they have not, the Emerald cannot help but feel that somewhere is lacking a spirit of co-operation between the team and the rooters.

Athletic relations between Oregon and California may be seriously strained as a result of the refusal of California to enter the coast meet, and send a second team instead. California seems to consider herself too good for the other coast teams. If she is, let her go. Oregon didn't rate as a second class institution when she played Harvard, and she isn't going to at any time.

Mother's Day will be a success only if the students cooperate in making it a success. Bring your mother to the campus if you can, and do your utmost to make the stay of all our guests as pleasant and enjoyable as possible.

Every dog has his day, and the man or woman who doesn't believe in "pigging" will revel Saturday night. The all-University men's smoker is in Villard; the April Frolic is in the Women's building. There won't be anyone missing at either place.

Politics are lots of fun, but most people can't see it that way. If elections weren't taken so seriously, we'd all have a good time and nobody's feelings would be hurt.

CAMPUS CHIEFS PICKED

State College of Washington, Pullman, Wash., April 21.—Lloyd Gillis was named Big Chief for Campus Day at a recent session of the executive council. Dave Hartz, president of the Associated Students, appointed four prominent athletes as assistant to the chief.

Eva Mae Leonard was made Big Chief for the women's division, and Roy Hanley, chief of police.

UNIFORM DRESS FOR WOMEN IS OPPOSED

Dean Fawcett Believes O. A. C. Girls Dress Well; Clothes Express Personality.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, April 27.—"I do not believe in uniform dress for young women of this college," said Dean Mary E. Fawcett.

Uniforms take the pleasure in dressing away, believes Dean Fawcett. They are pieces of cloth which label the persons they are on and make them feel like a part of the institution.

A Correction.—Through a typographical error in the Emerald yesterday, the date of the Girls' Glee club concert in Portland was given as May 8. The date is May 18.

ROBBINS SHOWS CHANGE

Attitude of New School Pointed Out By Dean to Science Club.

Three important changes in the business world formed the subject of Dr. E. C. Robbins' talk before the social science club of the University Tuesday evening. The apparent breakdown of the competitive system, the breakdown of the apprenticeship of training, and the definite movement for business men to assume community leadership were the changes discussed.

The formation of associations in practically all trades was given by Dean Robbins as the chief reason for decreasing idea of the need for a competitive system in business. Discussion as to the status which the school of business administration should assume in regard to various principles was also brought forth.

1919 GRAD WRITES TO Y. M.

Marion Andrews, a graduate in the class of 1919, has written to the Y. W. C. A. asking about the summer conferences to be held at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. Miss Andrews expects to spend the summer in the east and wishes to attend this meeting. While on the campus she was actively interested in the Y. W. C. A. and one year represented Oregon at Seabeck conference. Miss Andrews is teaching school in Dallas.

PLAN FOR SUMMER WORK.

The American Education Association has sent a representative to the campus to try to enlist college girls to work for them this summer. Mrs. R. Grosvenor told the girls of the plan, which is for them to sell a magazine which the company publishes. Several girls have expressed interest in this plan to make money.
