

ACTION? FROM MORN UNTIL NIGHT! LUNCH AND SMILES AT NOON

Campus Day to have Clean Up, Frosh-Soph Tug of War—Bonfire for Infants' Hats

(By M. A. G. G. Y.)
Pep in partes tres divisa est!
First section in the am. Second section in the pm. And at noon they render unto Caesar that which is Caesar's!

This, in brief, is the program for Campus Day—Junior week-end—this year.

The festivities will begin with a general cleanup, campus rehabilitation, and mop out. All freshmen will be rounded up and in company with the rest of the underclass men, expend the morning's pep in putting the campus in holiday garb. From behind five-cylinder, cast iron, 40 hp. stars, the w. k. senior cops with straw-boss the job, and see to it that everybody works, but Father John Straub. Special details will work on the lawns around the new education, commerce and music buildings. Another detail will drag the mill-race for snags so that the piggers may canoe henceforth in safety.

When the sun is in the zenith and the campus shines like the brass rail of a dreadnaught on dress parade, the laborers will play Caesars to the Feast. Special arrangements are being made this year for the campus luncheon—which will be guaranteed to satisfy appetites ranging from one quart to six gallon capacity. A special corps of hashers—frosh to do the heavy work, and co-eds to pass out the smiles—will see that the bread line of workers and guests are served without delay.

In the afternoon the second section of collegiate pep—stored up for the occasion—will be let loose. Events on the mill race, the time-honored tug-of-war, will all be staged. And by the way, it's going to be a square mix, for the committee in charge isn't going to let the sophs tie a Ford, or even a tin can, to the end of the rope.

An innovation comes with the burning of the frosh caps. A big fight—again between the sophs and frosh is to be staged. Each class will be given a fire hose, and the wettest side loses. Pushball and various other gentle forms of amusement will be on the program to round out a full day, and send both participants and spectators on their way rejoicing in the "fullness that followeth" either a hearty meal or a perfect day.

ing something higher than a municipal office for Portland's efficient leader. "I have a job now that keeps me busy all the time."

This failed to satisfy the persistent interviewer, who inquired whether the mayor ever was caught in the hands of his friends. "Yes," he answered, but refused to be drawn into argument.

Concerning his recent and energetic campaign against Portland's annual "crime wave," and his taking personal command of the city police force toward that end, the mayor declared that the drive was successful. "Not a 'Shadow' remains of the former condition," was his comment.

When he consented to be interviewed, the visitor had just completed an address to a group of commerce students and his closing remarks contained the advice. "If you are right, don't be afraid to make enemies." This, said the speaker, was the opinion formed from long experience in public life. And his forceful manner in stamping his words into the memory of his hearers, his strong and friendly hand grip, and his well known and highly efficient record as the chief executive of Portland, serve to fortify the statements of his admirers concerning his high place in the esteem of his constituents, and their proud boast that a man of his calibre is destined to become a leading figure beyond the borders of his home city.

Oregon Decides Not to Invite Second Team

coast than does any other member of the Pacific coast conference.

In view of a slight difference over the gate receipts clause in the contract for the Oregon-California football game scheduled to take place in Berkeley on October 22, it appears that this game is not yet a certainty. It is not probable that any serious altercation will arise over this little difference, but it is yet possible that the proposed game will not be played.

No word has been received from Stanford in regard to the Pacific Coast Conference Meet yet, but it is practically certain that the Cardinals will not come north, for it is known that they are planning to send a team to the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet in the east.

The matter of an invitation to Charlie Paddock, sensational track athlete of the University of Southern California, was taken up and at the suggestion of "Bill" Hayward, a bid was sent to Paddock to come to Eugene to the meet and put on exhibition sprints. A telegram was sent last night. Paddock is holder of the world's honors in the 100 and 250 sprints, having won these events at the Olympic games in Antwerp last summer, and his appearance in exhibition sprints at the conference meet would prove a big drawing card.

Freshmen Will Play Jefferson Nine Today

Jefferson high school will furnish the opposition to the Frosh nine this afternoon on the Cemetery Ridge diamond, the game being called for 4 o'clock sharp. Jefferson has a strong team this season and will no doubt put up a good game against the Frosh. The Portlanders are coming to Eugene for two games, the second to be played against the Eugene high school nine on tomorrow afternoon.

Coach "Bill" Steers, of the Frosh, announces the following lineup which will go against the preppers: Wright and Ringle, pitchers; W. Johnson, catcher; Allstock, first base; Knight, second base; Moore, shortstop; Douglas, Farger, Sorbury, fielders.

"Lefty" Baldwin, a member of the Frosh pitching staff, is on the sick list with tonsillitis and may be out of the game for some time.

PHONE NUMBERS CHANGED.

With the moving of the University high school and the school of education, several changes have been made in telephone numbers. The new phone number of the school of education is 1430R. The phone at the University high school is 1430T. A new extension telephone has been installed in the architecture annex, the number of which is 190R. The number of the school of architecture is 190T.

PORTLAND MAYOR SCORES RADICALS; LAUDS EDUCATION

(By M. A. G. G. Y.)

I. W. W.'ism, communism and other bolshevist ideas in the United States were scathingly denounced yesterday morning by Mayor George L. Baker, of Portland, who addressed the students yesterday in the assembly in Villard hall. After the speaker had completed his talk, there was little doubt as to his opinion of the radical elements, which are working to undermine the government of this country.

"I am a believer in the constitution, in law and order, and in free speech—but not in free license," the speaker declared, in telling of the meetings held by red leaders. People have a right to criticize the government, the church or public officials. Laws can be changed through the means provided for such changes. People do not have the right to advocate the overthrow of the government by force, he said.

GLAD FOR RESTRICTIONS.

"I am glad that foreign immigration is to be stopped for at least three years, until we have had a chance to tame those foreigners we already have. They can only be tamed by the people now in college," Mayor Baker declared. Danger that the soviet form of government which is spreading throughout Europe might become transplanted in this country unless the radicals were expelled, was seen by the speaker in the uncurbed development of radicalism. The statements of the soviet adherents that their cause was misrepresented was denied by the speaker who said that nothing could be said which could make the soviet appear more vicious than it really is.

The student does not know and cannot appreciate the opportunities he has, as much as one who has had to struggle along without a college education, he said, in referring to his own struggle for an education. He was forced to get what education he had by the study of books to which he had access, and at a time when he was making a living for himself and his parents. The most should be made of every opportunity to acquire knowledge so that it may be imparted to those less fortunate, he declared.

DRIVE 'EM OUT.

"Let's drive them out of the country," said Mayor Baker, referring to those determined to wreck the government. He cited the cases of Emma Goldman and Bill Haywood, who made great sums of money from their followers and lived in ease and luxury, at the same time inciting these to destruction and the overthrow of the organized government. "We have nothing to fear in America, for the heart of America is sound, but we do have much to fear from outside," he said in concluding.

L. L. Goodrich, of the First National Bank, of Eugene, made a plea in behalf of the Salvation Army campaign for funds. He praised the work of the Army and appealed to the students for whatever aid they feel able to give. A total of $4100 is to be raised in Lane county, this amount to be spent in the county with the exception of a small sum which is to be sent to Portland for the Girls' Rescue Home.

Dean John Landsbury, of the school of music, urged the students from Portland to boost the coming concert of the Girls' Glee Club, which is to be held there. The advertising value of this concert was pointed out. The glee club gave two selections at the assembly.

Stan Eisman, editor of the Lemon Punch, urged better co-operation on the part of the students in the next issue of the magazine, which is to be printed Junior week-end.

Never, in University History, has such a remarkable opportunity been presented.
