

MOTHERS' VESPER PROGRAM GIVEN OUT

Professor Graham Taylor to Be Speaker.

The program for the annual Mothers' Day vesper service in Villard hall at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon is given out by M. H. Douglass, chairman of the committee on religious and moral activities.

Professor Graham Taylor, of the Chicago Theological Seminary, which is affiliated with the University of Chicago, will give the address. He will speak at the but Wednesday evening and will be the next assembly speaker. "Professor Taylor is a very impressive speaker and always carries his audience with him," said Mr. Douglass. He is very interested in his work and is the best informed social worker in the country, according to Bishop Walter T. Sumner.

Professor Taylor is the founder and resident warden of the Chicago Commons Social Settlement. He is president of the Chicago School of Civics and Philanthropy, and is associate editor of the Survey.

OREGON BATS OUT 6 TO 3 VICTORY

the second hit of the inning over third base and scored Maloney.

Reinhart Plays Short.

Coach Bohler started his lineup with Reinhart at shortstop and Base on first, with Zimmerman in the left garden in Reinhart's position. These were practically the only changes the coach made over the lineup which he has been using during the season.

The game was fast throughout and easily the best which has been played on the local diamond this season, but was witnessed by a small crowd of fans. Coach Bohler's outfield worked well yesterday, Zimmerman, Knudsen and Gamble each getting several long fielding chances which they handled in big league style. From appearances yesterday it is probable that Oregon has hit the stride at last, and the infield looks better than it has at any time this season.

Today's game will start at 2 o'clock and Rollo Gray will in all probability be on the mound for the Lemon-Yellow.

WOMEN'S HALL HAS ANTIQUE DECORATIONS

rugs, the special gifts of the Wilcox family.

The principal room, the large alumni hall, carries out this air of dignified beauty. The walls are of paneled wood and blocks of stone. The stone has been stained in a way to give the appearance of having been colored with age. The woodwork is of Oregon Douglas fir, stained a dull brown. The ceiling is tinted a soft ivory and the cornice shades this with tones of gray and blue. The hangings are dull blue tapestry from the William Morris shop in England. This same color is used in the upholstering of the large Davenport and comfortable chairs. The tables are of heavy oak and were brought from old European monasteries. Many old pieces of copper, brass and pewter lend charm and hominess. An old English clock with a hand-carved case softly notes the hours. There is an old pew from a church in Edinburgh, and a Spanish chest. Many pieces show the wear of generations and others are reproductions of antiques.

Schroff Paints Murals.

Oil paintings by Alfred Schroff, of the art department, are mantle decorations over the fireplaces at each end of the room. The fireplace mottos are also expressive of the room. One is the summary of the Christian teaching, "Lve God abfe al and yi Nyotboirs as yi self." This is the spelling in which the motto appears over the door and long windows in the John Knox home in Eng-Pompeii. "Hic Habitat Felicitas." The entire furnishings of the rooms are marked by this distinction in details. In the long sun room much of the furniture is of wicker.

Between the alumni hall and the sun room is a very modern kitchen, completely furnished. An electric elevator leads to the third floor, where there are rooms to be used for club rooms of the various organizations and for committee meetings.

"We expect this to be the social center of the University," says Mrs. Gerlinger, "and a meeting place for the faculty, alumni, townspeople and students."

BOOSTERS' CLUB MEETS.

The Boosters' club, composed of the sophomore and freshman members of the Y. M. C. A., had a meeting and made plans to decorate Villard hall for the Mothers' Day vespers Sunday afternoon. They are planning to use Scotch broom. Lenore Cram is chairman of the committee.
