SEVEN OF FACULTY ON LEAVE FOR YEAR

Several Doing Advanced Work For Ph.D. Degree

Seven members of the faculty of the University have been granted leave of absence for the year to complete scientific research or to do advanced work toward degrees in other colleges. Three of these were here last year and the other four have been away for some time.

Professor O. F. Stafford, of the chemistry department is at Kingsport, Tennessee, completing the installation of equipment for the final tryout of his discovery of an improved method for the utilization of certain by-products of wood. Retorts and accessories will be in operation by November 1. The outcome of the experiment is said to be of wide interest among chemists.

Miss Grace Edgington, assistant professor of rhetoric and secretary to Dean Colin V. Dymont, is doing literary work and study at Steilacoom, Washington. After completing her work as acting dean of women at the University during the summer term Miss Edgington spent some time on a ranch, which she owns in Central Oregon.

Andrew Fish of the history department, will spend the year at Clark University at Worcester, Massachusetts, working toward his Ph.D. degree. He will return to the University of Oregon in the fall of 1922.

On the request of Major General Leonard Wood, appointee to the governorship of the Philippine Islands, Dr. Warren D. Smith of the geology department of the University has been granted an additional year's leave. Dr. Smith is in the bureau of science doing research work for the government.

Louis C. Rosenberg, of the art department, is now in Rome, studying and has visited a number of the art centers of Europe since leaving Oregon.

Professor Peter C. Crockatt will be Professor Peter C. Crockatt will be term. He is now at the University of California doing advanced work. John C. Almack, of the extension division, is working toward a Ph.D. degree at Stanford University and will not return until next fall.

LETTER MEN MEET TODAY

First Session of Order of the O to be Held This Afternoon

Members of the Order of the O will hold their first meeting of the year this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the varsity room of the men's gymnasium. Many major problems face the organization this year, according to President Glen Walkley, who has issued an appeal to all letter men to attend the meeting.

The proposal to issue a lifetime card to all letter men for all games played on the Oregon campus will be discussed and organization work for this year's doughnut league games will be started. The Order of the O will invite all lettermen of the University not on the campus this fall to return for Homecoming and the annual Order of the O parade will be a feature of the Homecoming program this year.

OREGON CLUB WILL MEET

Non Fraternity Men Asked to Attend Meeting Monday Evening

All men not living in fraternities or dormitories are urged to attend the meeting of the men's Oregon Club in the "Y" hut Monday evening at 7 o'clock. The Oregon Club is an organization of non-fraternity men banded together to take part in general college activities.

With the increased enrollment this year, the Oregon Club should be one of the largest and liveliest bodies on the campus, but this end can only be attained if every eligible member cooperates to make it so.

320 STUDENTS TAKING COURSE IN ACCOUNTING

Two New Teachers Added to Staff in School of Business Administration, in New Quarters

According to registration reports, Professional Accounting is the most popular course in the School of Business Administration, which has been moved to the new Commerce building between the Library and the Oregon Building. More than 320 students are already enrolled in the class in Beginning Accounting, against 170 at the close of registration last year. The course in Foreign Trades is a close second popularity among the majors in the department, who number about 360.

Two new teachers have been added to the staff. Dr. Frank R. Rutter is from Washington, D. C. and has had practical experience with Foreign Trade relations both in the United States and Japan. Philip Janney, who will teach Principles of Accounting is an Oregon man, graduate of the class of '20. He comes direct from Whitfield-Whitcomb Co., Certified Public Accountants, Portland.

It is the aim of the commercial department to accomplish a great deal this year in research work, a branch of the department which has been developed very slightly heretofore. For this work two seminar classes have been organized, an Accounting Seminar and a General Business Seminar.

CO-OP MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED

Four Solicitors at Work, and 500 Are Added to Rolls of Organization

The drive for memberships to the University Co-Op was started yesterday on the campus and will last until next Wednesday. Up until yesterday only about 500 had joined.

According to Virgil DeLap, head of the committee directing the campaign, the dividends paid last year were in some instances as much as ten dollars. A dividend of six per cent was declared, which was based upon the purchases indicated by slips turned in.

"The Co-Op has been financially successful ever since it was first organized in 1916," said Mr. DeLap, "and even when it was discontinued during the war, there was no loss. Money borrowed from the student body was later returned with interest."

Marion F. McClain, former graduate manager, is spending all of his time managing the store this year.

Those soliciting are Alice Baily, Marguerite Miles, Johanna Johnson, and Wolcott Buren.
