

PROFESSOR SEES PLACES OF INTEREST IN EUROPE

Ruins in Old Italy Studied; High Seas Encountered

Professor King of the architecture department of the University, returned recently from a most interesting and thrilling trip abroad this summer. He spent most of his time in Italy, visiting places of greatest interest to a man of his profession, and has returned with an interesting account of his travels, both on sea, and on European soil.

Professor King's first destination was Palermo, the capital of Sicily, where he spent five days in the city and vicinity. He made a trip to the Greek temple at Segesta, the ruins of which date back 500 B. C. and are seven miles from any railroad station. The professor considered his pilgrimage there well worth while.

On the continent, in Italy, Professor King spent several weeks in Rome, Venice, Florence, Naples, Pompeii, Pisa, Bologna, and Verona. Naturally the many remaining examples of architecture of the country were the chief object of his visits to all of these places.

Paris, and Versailles, where he saw the table upon which the treaty of peace of the recent war was signed, were the next stopping places in Professor King's travels. He also included a trip to Belgium, visiting Antwerp, Brussels and Malines before crossing the channel for a brief stay in London.

Professor King remarked that in Belgium it was easy to understand what the front line must have been like from the scenes which he saw in the devastated area. Owing to lack of time he did not visit the battle fields.

On his return trip across the Atlantic, Professor King said, he spent 14 days on the water in the midst of hurricanes, cyclones and extremely rough seas which did not abate until the steamer was within a day's journey of New York. At one time the boat rolled to an angle of 45 degrees without disaster. After two thrilling and perilous weeks at sea the ship finally landed at New York in safety.

Professor King was away three months, two of which he spent on European soil.

SOLVE SEES PARIS WITH FORMER OREGON STUDENT

Former Faculty Member Tells of Trip Through Italy and Spain; Arrived in America in February

Counted among the many interesting experiences which Professor Melvin Solve, of the rhetoric department, enjoyed while in Europe was his meeting in Paris with the Louis Rosenbergs, who were formerly connected with the University, and are now living in France's gay capital.

Mr. Rosenberg, while here, was a major in the school of architecture, and Mrs. Rosenberg, who, before her marriage was Miss Mary Louise Allen, was a major in the architecture department.

Mr. Solve found the Rosenbergs at home in the celebrated Latin quarter. He spent some time seeing the sights of Paris with them. They had much to tell of their journey through Italy and Spain. There were frequent street fights in Italy while the Rosenbergs were there, which added color and excitement to the life of the traveller. In Spain a bull fight was witnessed.

Mr. Rosenberg received a travelling fellowship from the Boston Institute of Technology and left America for Europe in June, 1920. On his return to America next February he intends to take up commercial architecture.

BEAR FANS SPEED NORTH

Fast Time Made on Trip; Say U. of C. Will Defeat W. S. C. by Huge Score

"California will wallop W. S. C. 48 to 0!" Eight spirited U. of C. men ventured this remark as they motored through Eugene, about 2 o'clock Friday afternoon enroute to Portland, where the Bears will battle the Cougars. But when bets were called for, the travelers were only willing to cover 13 points.

The football fans left California Wednesday night in a Mercer car. They admitted making 83 miles an hour on good stretches of road. Two lights and a spring were broken on the way. Coming through southern Oregon their car straddled a fence. They inquired anxiously about the speed-cops between Eugene and Portland.

CAMPUS BEAUTIFUL PRESIDENT'S WISH FOR HOMECOMING

Cooperating with the student body committee will be W. K. Newell, superintendent of properties at the University. With the work from these two sources and the faithful co-operation of every student it is believed that the desired results will be accomplished in the tidying of the campus and that the returning old grads will be impressed with its aspect of neatness. "Every wad of waste-paper has a meaning of its own in the eyes of the visitor. Let each student remember this, and feel that he is really doing his share of helping the work by saving his gum wrappers and Hershey papers for a waste basket." This is the significant message which the campus committee would have the students remember if they are willing to lend their assistance in the beautification of the University grounds.

Upon recommendation of the student council, the University vesper services will be held down town this year, because of the organ, and better facilities for the service in other ways.
